MILWAUKEE, WIS.

The Market.

The market has been glutted with stock of all kinds for about two weeks. Of course, prices have had a corresponding decline and stock has been sold for next to nothing in many cases. The quality of the roses has been excellent and they have moved fairly well. There has been a large surplus, however, which was not disposed of. Carnations have been plentiful and are moving slowly. Prices are down, but as Mothers' day approaches there will be improvement. White carnations have not been in so large supply as colored, and they will probably be somewhat scarce for Mothers' day.

Spring stock is plentiful, but is getting poorer every day. Since Easter there has been little demand for this class of stock. Sweet peas are abundant, but are moving well. The demand seems quite steady for this stock. Violets are on the wane and the quality is steadily deteriorating. It will not be long before they will be entirely out of the market for the season. Both valley and lilies are in large supply and are not moving at all well. There is much room for improvement in all stock and a shortening up of the supply would be a blessing.

Various Notes.

Mrs. R. E. Miller, of the Racine Floral Co., Racine, Wis., was in Milwaukee, Saturday, April 17.

Theo. Boettcher had a rather bad fire last week. The damage was largely confined to the shed, but considerable glass was ruined.

The Holton & Hunkel Co. is busy putting in new benches and repairing generally at the Brown Deer range.

H. J. S.

Buffalo, N. Y.—Charles W. Henning has secured a permit to erect a greenhouse, 20x100 feet, on Mineral Spring road.

DAYTON, O.

The Market.

Business since Easter has resumed its normal condition. There is not much doing in the cut flower line, with the exception of funeral work and a few decorations. The florists are all busy getting their bedding stock in condition, for which all are looking forward to a big demand next month. Prospects are brighter for this city than they have been during the winter. Several of the large factories here have taken large contracts for foreign governments, and of course the florists are expecting their share of the prosperity. Stock of all kinds is abundant, especially lilies, which were not in time for Easter. Most of them are consigned to the dump.

Club Meeting.

The meeting of the Florists' and Gardeners' Association held at the Y. M. C. A. April 13 was well attended. Several new members were enrolled.

A communication was received from the Toledo Florists' Club, which is seeking to have the legislature modify the law requiring a licensed fireman for boilers of thirty horsepower or more. This would entail extra expense to small growers, as the average pay is $3 to $3.50 per day for a licensed fireman, and we all know that a man brought up in the greenhouse makes a better fireman than a man from a factory. The action of the Toledo florists was heartily endorsed by the local club.

Various Notes.

The Bohlender nurseries, at Tippecanoe, report good business in all lines of nursery stock. This firm employs eighty-five men. They have splendid shipping facilities; both steam and electric lines adjoin the property.

URBANA, ILL.

Students' Display.

Over 2,600 people attended the third annual exhibition of floral arrangements, given by the class in floral decoration, assisted by Miss Emily Dorner, of La Fayette, Ind., Sunday afternoon, April 18, in the Floricultural building, University of Illinois. Most of the visitors were students and faculty members, but both Urbana and Champaign were well represented. A better day could not have been chosen, as the weather was ideal.

Of greatest interest were the table decorations, wedding bouquets and corsage bouquets. In connection with the wedding bouquets was staged a large doll dressed as a bride and carrying a bouquet of valley. This was an entirely new feature and was quite attractive. Besides this, there were many funeral designs, plant baskets, flower baskets and box and vase arrangements.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

THE COAL MARKET.

The coal market is dull and any description of it is in danger, therefore, of being dull reading. About the best that can be said about the situation is that there has been no cutting of prices, but that is never expected in April, when prices of coal are regularly at their lowest level.

Still, the reporters state optimistically that the tone of the market is better than it has been and that "the sentiment in bituminous trade is decidedly improved." "There is an indefinable something in the tone of every market report," they say, "which leads definitely to the suggestion that business is improving and that it will require but little to transform a normally dull market into an extraordinarily good one." That may all be true; it would be difficult either to prove or disprove any statement about anything so vague and illusory as the tone of the market when there are no more decided symptoms than in this case.

The truth seems to be, however, that any existing healthfulness of tone is due to the extremely precautionary, conservative management of affairs by the mine owners and dealers, in curtailing the output of the mines and otherwise controlling the trade. For instance, the Black Diamond states, with reference to conditions in St. Louis, that "while there is no improvement in business in that district, the tone of the market is much better, because the operators are refusing to sell their product for less than cost. They are closing down the mines when prices are not satisfactory."

"In smokeless coal at Chicago," says the journal just quoted, "the market has been cleaned up of any free coal, because even the auctioneers have abandoned the practice of shipping any coal on speculation. This leaves only small current shipments to take care of a rather consistent but small demand for spot coal from retailers who have to take care of current orders. The spot market is just about firm on the basis of circular price of $1.25 for mine-run."

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

Last week was an exceptionally hard one, for the supply of flowers was so great that it was difficult for the wholesale and commission houses to handle them. The sale on all varieties was limited and only orchids and lily of the valley held a price. So great was the glut of carnations that it was hard to find buyers at any price for the ordinary run of the stock and no offer was refused. Roses have also been overplentiful; the local crop was large and added to this were the enormous shipments from nearby points. Local roses are not quite so good as those from the north, because the warmer weather here has affected the plants. The market was swamped with southern daffodils, and to a large extent these were turned over to the street men at from 1 cent to 5 cents per bunch of twenty-five. The store men refused to handle them. The dealers are glad to note that tulips are practically off the market, as this will tend to relieve the situation somewhat. Snapdragons are without value. There is a slight call for pansies and these clean up when offered in small quantities. There is no demand for lilies, although there is more than the usual amount of funeral work. This condition exists because the retailers are well supplied with potted Easter lilies left over from the Easter business. Beauty roses went as low as $6 per hundred in quantities, but this price has advanced considerably with a falling off in the supply. Orchids, though

What the Users Say

Kroeschell Replaces Two Cast Iron Boilers

The Marysville Floral Co., of Marysville, O., installed a No. 4 Kroeschell Boiler in 1905. Previous to this time they used cast iron boilers. The following letter speaks for itself:

"Has the Kroeschell given entire satisfaction? Yes! We had two cast iron boilers, but yours proved by far the best. Your boiler has already outlasted the two cast iron boilers by five years, and all the expense that we have been put to was a smoke dome."

not plentiful, are not selling. There is some demand for the darker shades, but the lighter colors hang fire.

However, the height of the great glut has passed and the retailers already are looking forward to Mothers' day. A few large events are scheduled for the coming week and the retailers are more optimistic. This is the first time in many years that Congress has adjourned for a long period and the effect of this recess is making itself felt. A slow summer is expected.

Club Meeting.

The Florists' Club of Washington spent a most enjoyable evening viewing motion pictures showing the trend of events in foreign countries, as well as the beauties of Spain, and listening to a concert given with a Victrola I. Goldsmith, better known as the Italian barber, gave one of his inimitable recitations, during which he made a number of sharp quips at the expense of those present. Other entertainment was provided by members who made short talks.

The club on this occasion had as its guests Senator William E. Chilton, of West Virginia, and Richard Vincent, Jr., of White Marsh, Md. The latter spoke of his proposed organization of a dahlia club. He made reference to the small number of delegates to the S. A. F. under the new plan of admitting clubs as a whole. He urged that the local organization endeavor to increase its membership, that it might secure such representation. He was answered as to this by Wm. F. Gude, who pointed out that the limited field offered by the District of Columbia would make it a hard matter to run the membership up to the required number.

Fred H. Kramer, for the committee on the coming banquet, stated that preparations for that event were being made and a further announcement would be made later.

H. Suydam, representing the Garland Co., of Cleveland, O., a guest of the club at this meeting, submitted an application for membership, which was referred to a committee consisting of R. L. Jenkins, Geo. W. Hess and Otto Bauer. A favorable report was made upon the application of Wm. F. Sharper, of Oxon Hill, Md., and he was admitted to membership. During the entertainment a buffet lunch was served.

encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, to be held in this city early in the fall, are progressing rapidly. The plans call for the liberal use of flowers and evergreens in the decoration of stands, monuments and places of historic interest, as well as the meeting places of the regiments of the old soldiers. For this purpose and for other entertainment of the veterans a fund of $25,000 is being raised. A first announcement of contributors acknowledges the receipt of $100 from Gude Bros. Co. and $25 from J. H. Small & Sons. Wm. F. Gude is chairman of the committee arranging for the encampment.

Mrs. J. A. Philipps, of the Flower Store, 2820 Fourteenth street, northwest, has returned from a ten days' vacation spent with friends in Virginia, following a strenuous Easter business.

The Florists' Exchange is receiving a fine lot of valley from a nearby range of greenhouses. The carnations offered by them are also excellent.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

Business has been practically normal, both as regards supply and demand as well as the range of prices. The only acceleration was in connection with the opening of the season of the stock company at Keith's theater, when a large number of baskets and bouquets were used. These were well distributed among the downtown stores. Funeral work has been good during the week, although no special demands were made.

Various Notes.

H. Howard Pepper, of the Melrose Rose Gardens, reports that one of the sites where he has his outdoor rose gardens having been sold, he is disposing of the stock thereon.

Henry Patry, with Smith the Florist, is on the sick list.

The Westminster Greenhouses have added a new machine to their delivery department.

Mrs. Drabble, of Woonsocket, is in Washington, D. C., on a visit.

The M. J. Leach Co. has remodeled its store at Pawtucket and made a number of improvements.

Mrs. Foster, of Woonsocket, who has been suffering from a severe attack of the grip, is at her duties again.

A HALF-INCH ADVERTISEMENT

here will keep your name and facilities before the whole trade, at a cost of only 35c per week on a yearly order.

PAPER POTS AND DIRT BANDS

Our Square Paper Dirt Bands are the original of all that are on the market today. All others being sold are imitations of these we advertise, and some of the imitations being sold are made of cheap paper, costing only about half as much as our heavy stock. We sell no experiments. Ours have been tried out by long use in the greenhouse. They will stand up in any wet and heat as long as wanted. Samples of all sizes FREE.

"I had some of your paper pots last year. I want more this year."—W. R. Wissinger, Homer City, Pa.

"We used 10,000 of your paper Dirt Bands last Spring and we like them. They are just the thing. Please give us prices on 40,000 or 50,000."—S. K. Green Co., Paris, Ill.

"Ten thousand paper pots came duly to hand. We are enclosing check for 15,000 more. Kindly rush them out as before."—L. A. Budlong Company (700-acre gardens). Chicago, Ill.

"Please ship immediately 150,000 2-in. Dirt Bands and 20,000 3-in. Dirt Bands."—B. B. Dilks, Philadelphia, Pa.

"Could you ship me by freight at once 15,000 more 2-in. Dirt Bands and 5000 3-in. Dirt Bands? I like them very much."—H. B. Weaver, Bird-in-Hand, Pa. (Mr. Weaver grows Carnations, Mignonettes, Sweet Peas and Cut Flowers. He got 5000 2-in. Dirt Bands in December, 40,000 in January, 20,000 in March last year, and we have just shipped him 70,000 more.)

"I have now about 14,000 Carnation plants started in 2-in. bands which are making a RAPID GROWTH, scarcely losing a plant in transplanting from the sand.

I also have about 20,000 Aster plants transplanted in 2-in. bands, which can stay there till time to plant out-of-doors WITHOUT FEAR OF BECOMING ROOT BOUND, as would be the case if I used 2-in. pots.

Plants SELDOM BECOME ROOT BOUND enough to injure them IN THE DIRT BANDS, and DO NOT REQUIRE NEAR THE AMOUNT OF ATTENTION that a pot plant does, in watering, shifting, transplanting, etc.

I believe anyone using these bands ONCE WILL BECOME A REGULAR CUSTOMER."—H. B. Weaver, Bird-in-Hand, Pa.

"We note friend H. B. Weaver's testimonial. Coming from a man like H. B. Weaver, it is WORTH ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD."—James Brown, Jr., Florist, Coatesville, Pa.

"Tomato plants which without your Pots sell here at $1.00 per 100, raised in your Pots sell at $4.00 per 100."—The Dalles Floral Company, The Dalles, Oregon.

"From about 2700 Tomato plants I picked 1140 MARKETABLE CRATES of Tomatoes, which brought me $600."—D. B. Moses, Purchase, N. Y.

"Tomato plants raised in the 4-inch size sell readily at FIVE CENTS EACH."—W. J. Symonds & Son, Decorah, Ia.

"Your Paper Pots gave better plants than clay pots and sold at Double Price."—Mt. Gilead Floral Co., Mt. Gilead, Ohio.

"BANDS WILL GIVE BETTER PLANTS THAN POTS." (Clay Pots.)—F. B. Murdock & Co., Kingston, Pa.

"We got BETTER PLANTS, BIGGER PLANTS AND PLANTS WHICH WERE HEALTHIER AND MORE VIGOROUS THAN IN CLAY POTS."—Wm. Schruers, Gardener, Oil City, Pa.

"We find that WATERING ALONE SAVES TIME ENOUGH TO PAY OVER CLAY POTS, and with proper handling there is NO QUESTION BUT A BETTER PLANT CAN BE GROWN."—H. Russell & Son, Market Gardeners, Boonville, New York.

"I find them SUPERIOR TO EARTHEN POTS IN EVERY CASE, requiring about half the water—at least that is the case after the sun gets well back and very drying."—W. L. Leeka, Fairmount, Ill.

"We grew Tomato plants and Chrysanthemum plants in your Dirt Bands last year and they proved VERY SATISFACTORY AND CHEAP, A GREAT SAVING OVER CLAY POTS."—L. M. Smith & Co., Laurel Greenhouses, Laurel, Del.

"They do not dry out as fast as clay pots and MAKE BETTER PLANTS in the same length of time. They hold the plants longer in fine condition without getting yellow than clay pots. They are also better for shipping plants, as they are light and pack better than clay pots."—Evan R. Miller, Florist, Bridgeton, N. J.

"All worked very satisfactory and they DO NOT REQUIRE THE ATTENTION THAT SMALL POTS DO. We certainly like Dirt Bands."—Reimers Bros., Rapid City, S. D.

"Please ship us 200,000 2½-inch Dirt Bands."—Hudson River Orchards Co., Saugerties, New York.

"We were well pleased with the Dirt Bands we got. Our Asters are GROWING FINE in them."—Koopmann Bros., Davenport, Iowa.

"We used the Paper Pots last year for Coleus and found the plants GROW SO MUCH FASTER than those in clay pots."—E. P. Houston, Lowellville, Ohio. (The roots of plants are pumps. They had twice as much soil to pump substance from and could not help grow faster.)

"We have tried these pots and THINK THEY ARE THE FINEST THING OUT."—E. E. Keener, Florist and Rooted Cutting Specialist, Little River, Kansas.

NEW ORLEANS.

Club Meeting.

The New Orleans Horticultural Society held its regular monthly meeting April 15, at the Association of Commerce building. President P. A. Chopin and Secretary C. R. Panter were in their places and a large membership was present.

As it was a public meeting, six of the sixteen ward clubs of the home garden organization, composed of flower-loving women, sent representatives, headed by their president, Mrs. J. Michaelis. President Chopin addressed the assemblage and asked the ladies present to help make the coming flower show, the first one for several years, a financial success. The exhibitors will undoubtedly do their utmost to make it an artistic success.

Mrs. J. Michaelis and several of the other ladies spoke of the great interest manifested by the different wards of the city. Each ward has offered one prize for the best kept lawn and also one for the best looking garden. All the wards, acting together, have offered three prizes for the best looking gardens in the city. Before leaving, the ladies offered the full support and coöperation of the home garden association in making the flower show a success.

After the close of the public meeting the members sat in special session and the site for the show was again discussed. Chairman J. A. Steckler, of the exhibition committee, brought in a report suggesting the renting of the Athenæum. Situated on the most beautiful thoroughfares of the city, and with its beautiful large hall and the outdoor space elegantly lighted up, this would prove a safer and more advantageous place for the show than the space on Lafayette square, as first proposed. It was decided, therefore, to hold the show at the Athenæum, May 6 to 9. Saturday, May 8, will be school children's day, when an extra large attendance will be expected.

Another public meeting will be held April 29 and the ladies of the different wards will be invited to attend. A meeting of the exhibitors will be held April 22, at the residence of President Chopin. At that meeting the selection of space, from a drawn plan of the exhibition hall and grounds, will be made by the intending exhibitors, of whom there are already a good many, and the closing of the entries will take place.

If the show proves to be a financial success, all space money will be refunded to the exhibitors. Therefore everyone interested in the florists' business and its allied trades should take advantage of this opportunity by exhibiting. The benefit is bound to come; show your goods and the purchasers' money is yours. R. E.

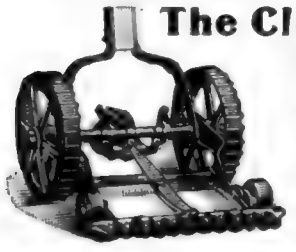
The Market.

Continued pleasant weather has tended to a quicker development of flowers and a consequent larger supply for the market, which, however, has been a little quiet since Easter. Carnations continue to be plentiful and of good quality, selling at from 60 to 75 cents per dozen. Roses are plentiful and the prices medium, but the quality is not quite up to what it has been during the winter. Daffodils are still popular and there is a plentiful supply. Hyacinths are not quite so abundant as they were. Pansies of good quality can be purchased cheaply. Iris and other outdoor flowers are beginning to come into the market. More boxwood was seen in the stores last week. Stores which handle seeds have had a large sale during the last few days, as weather conditions are almost ideal for preparing gardens and planting the early varieties. A large number of rose bushes for outdoor culture are being sold.



Various Notes.

Newark observed a half holiday on the afternoon of April 16, when the local baseball season began. The store of Philips Bros., in front of which the parade passed, was decorated with the American colors. Henry A. Strobell made three large floral horseshoes which were presented to the "Peps" by the Elks.

Chris Penek was one of the few who cleaned out his stock at Easter. He is located at Broad and Market streets, locally known as the "four corners," and his store was therefore handy for people who were changing cars and who did not want to go to florists' shops located farther away because of the snow storm. Mr. Penek deals almost entirely in cut flowers. R. B. M.

Columbia City, Ind.—Dr. Burket, of Warsaw, who purchased the North Side Greenhouses from Fred A. King and E. A. Stanton, has made arrangements with T. A. Baker to take charge of the business. Mr. Baker came from New York last August to enter the employ of the previous proprietors.

The Market.

Trade has been keeping up remarkably well since Easter, especially on funeral work. Stock has been quite plentiful in the way of roses and carnations. Beauties are a little more plentiful, with an increasing demand. Some good stock is coming in. Some fine Richmond, Sunburst, Killarney, etc., are seen.

Carnations are fine, and they find a ready sale, owing to the fact that most of the bulbous stock is gone. Sweet peas are fine, and some extra fancy stock is to be seen. The demand has been extra heavy on them, as they are used more every day for corsage work.

There is still a large quantity of lilies among the growers, and it seems as though some of them missed Easter by a good many days. Violets are about done. There are still some singles to be had. There are still a few stragglers in hyacinths. Valley is scarce again for a few days; the demand is quite good. Potted plants are moving quite well.

Various Notes.

Sherman Stephens has been seriously ill with gallstones for the last week or two; at last report he was somewhat better.

Winters & Kramer are cutting some extra fine sweet peas, especially some Spencers, which have 18-inch stems and find a ready sale at fancy prices.

Mrs. Jones & Son are running the cut flower business in the room formerly occupied by Fred Bauman.

C. A. Roth is now located at the greenhouses, having moved everything from the store out there, where he can take care of his telephone trade as well as downtown. J. M.

The Newport Horticultural Society held a ladies' night in Music Hall April 13, at which more than 100 members and friends were present. The program, arranged by the entertainment committee, consisting of Andrew S. Meikle, John T. Allan and Frederick Carter, was interesting and diversified. Vocal selections were given by Mrs. Frank S. Hale, Miss Elaine Meikle and John T. Allan, Jr., and violin selections by John Hodgson. Andrew K. McMahon, treasurer of the society and one of its oldest members, gave an interesting historical sketch of the organization. Refreshments were served, followed by dancing. W. H. M.

HARM FROM ILLUMINATING GAS.

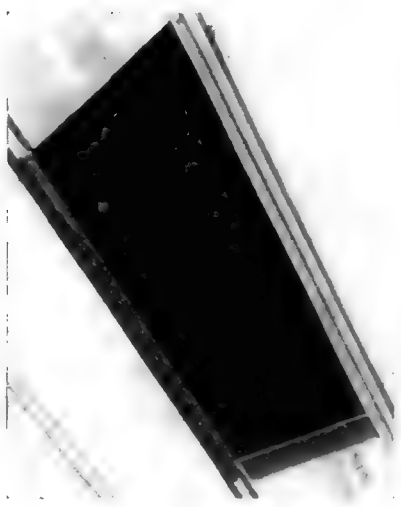
Certain constituents of illuminating gas are—even when present in small quantities—extremely poisonous to plants, and unquestionably are frequently the cause of injury. The amount of these gases escaping in small and unnoticed leaks is doubtless sufficient to cause appreciable injury. It has, for instance, been shown that one part illuminating gas in 40,000 parts of air is sufficient to prevent carnation buds from opening, and that exposure for three days kills the young buds. Subjecting carnations for twelve hours to an atmosphere containing one part illuminating gas in 80,000 parts of air causes all flowers to close. It has further been demonstrated that one part of ethylene—a constant constituent of illuminating gas—in 1,000,000 parts of air causes the flowers to close. Especial care should therefore be taken to prevent as much as possible the escape of illuminating gas, whether from leaks or careless lighting, says a bulletin of the Missouri Botanical Garden.

LILIUM SPECIOSUM.

I am sending you a lily bulb which has grown in my garden for years and of which I would like to know the name. Is it a good commercial sort for cut flowers. They do well here.

G. C.—Ill.

This seems to be Lilium speciosum, probably either roseum or rubrum. This is a good commercial lily, coming next in popularity to Lilium longiflorum. From retarded bulbs flowers are had through the entire fall and winter, but there is a good sale for well grown spikes at the time the outdoor-grown bulbs flower. C. W.



Tiffin, O.—Edmund Ullrich, manager for the Ullrich Floral Co., donated 5,000 carnations for a sale on the streets April 17 for the benefit of Mercy hospital. The tidy sum of $325 was realized. It proved an excellent advertisement for the florists.

Springfield, O.—In the Springfield Daily News for April 11 appeared an article occupying about two-thirds of a page and dealing with the greenhouse industry of this city, which was written by George D. Leedle, of the Leedle Floral Co. The account, which was historical as well as expository, dealt not only of the "Big Four" mail-order concerns but also of the many smaller establishments.

Jiffy Glass Board in Place

Notice that it laps over the lower light. The notches in the board hold it snugly in place. Two tacks on either side of the flaps do the rest.

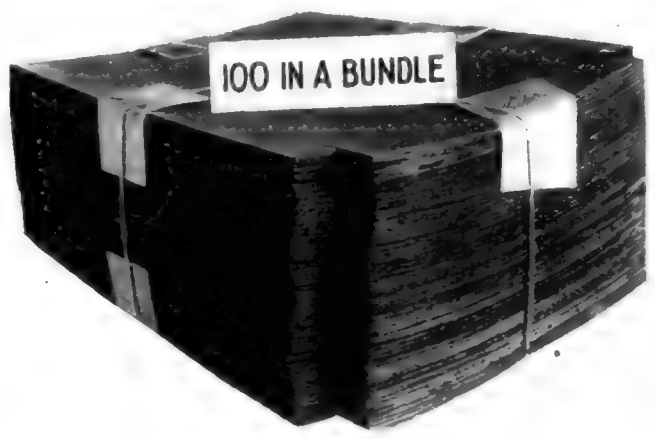
It is made of thick waterproofed pasteboards, having a top and bottom layer, with heavy corrugated paper between. They are slightly bowed, making them fit snug against the glass when sprung into place.

HERE is a quick, practical solution of your broken-glass problem. In a jiffy you can take one of the Glass Boards, bend the flaps over, insert the lower light between the notches, and with two tacks on either flap fasten it securely to the roof bars.

Being waterproofed, it will last for weeks.

No more running around to find something to stop up the hole a broken or slipped-down light leaves.

So cheap you can't afford to be without them.



Think of the time they will save!

Think of the injury to your plants they will prevent!

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

ONE FOR ALL AND ALL FOR ONE

When we work for Mothers' day, we work for ourselves, for each other, for all. We owe it to the Trade to do each his individual part to bring Mothers' day to the attention of the public. If our business acumen does not prompt us to push, our self-respect should keep us from sitting back to profit by the work of others.

THE trade quite well understands that the enormous sale for flowers at Mothers' day has been the direct result of The Review's work of exploitation, begun when nobody knew what the day was, or what it meant, but there still are thousands who have not thought of their own duty in the matter. They have not yet realized that they owe it to themselves to put their shoulders to the wheel along with the shoulders of those who thus far have done the work.

The Review saw the possibilities of the day and brought them forcefully to the attention of the trade. This paper could not go direct to the public; that part of the work rests in the hands of those who deal with the consumers of flowers.

Possibility Now Fact.

When The Review first made a feature of Mothers' day it presented no more than an opportunity; today it presents an actuality. It is more than a possibility; it is an established fact. The possibilities have been demonstrated. The men who first put their time and money into advertising Mothers' day to the public back in 1909, according to The Review's suggestions, perhaps were taking a chance; but those who advertise it for the first time next week will take no risks. Indeed, if they overadvertise they will be only returning some of the profits they already have had on the work of others.

As Done in Los Angeles.

Let there be no misapprehension; the idea of Mothers' day was conceived outside the trade, but it would have amounted to nothing had it not been for the florists. The trade made Mothers' day—made it by advertising it.

"Bright Flowers."

How generally the day has been exploited along the lines suggested by The Review is well shown by the almost universal use of the lines coined for these Mothers' day articles:

For Mothers at home, flowers bright,
In Mother's memory, flowers white.

The lady who originated Mothers' day named the white carnation as its emblem, but The Review appreciated that the day had possibilities greater than the supply of carnations of any color and suggested the couplet as a means of turning the demand to include everything in the florists' stock. That practically all the work that has been done grew out of The Review's suggestions is proven by the use of the "bright flowers" idea in a great majority of the advertisements.

Make Everybody Welcome.

In certain quarters there has been a disposition to feel that, because one was first to exploit Mothers' day in a certain territory, others who took it up were interlopers—buttinskies. It is the wrong view. Welcome each one who adds his might to the force now back of the movement.

That first year The Review told what might be done BEFORE Mothers' day, dozens took it up. The next year, hundreds; then thousands. Let us hope for still more help this year.

One man alone can bestir no appreciable number of the hundred million people in this country. Miss Jarvis, with her open letter to a Philadelphia daily, stirred a few. The Review, with its first feature article, started several of the live-wires, but the day took on no real importance until a small army of workers had been enlisted. Indeed, Mothers' day still is an affair of the towns and smaller cities; the retail florists of the three or four largest cities have not yet got up sufficient steam to have attracted much attention to the day in their busy, blasé communities.

Columbus Used the Dollar Box.

St. Paul Knows How to Do It.

Fort Wayne and Mother's Day.

In a small town it takes less effort to arouse interest.

How to Do It.

In a big city the coöperative method of advertising appears to have had the best all-around results. It was to encourage this that The Review devoted several pages of its issue for April 15 to showing what was done last year, and how it worked. There were, of course, many different advertisements, and three general characters of advertisements, but they practically all used:

For Mothers at home, flowers bright,
In Mother's memory, flowers white.

And there was enough variety of opinion to keep life on this well known footstool from becoming a humdrum affair, but on the whole the letters in the article showed splendid results from last year's efforts.

Coöperative advertising must be set on foot early and the article of April 15 has resulted, as was planned, in starting something of the sort in dozens of cities—many more than tried it last year.

Individual Work.

Today it's time to start the individual effort. It's up to every florist to do something, if no more than to put a sign in his window. But of course the best work is done by a strong advertisement in the best newspaper. Don't fritter away your money, as so many florists do, by advertising, just because they ask for business, in every paper that has a solicitor on the street. Put the money in a big, strong display in the one paper most buyers read. If you are not sure, make the publishers prove their circulations. Don't take the solicitor's word that he has "as much as the other paper;" on the contrary, you can regard such a claim as probably a confession of its untruth.

An Indianapolis Model.

What Shall It Be?

The Mothers' day ad should not only be as large as the funds available will permit, but it should be illustrated and well displayed, not crowded. In this issue are small photographic reproductions of individual retailers' ads of last year, when Mothers' day fell May 10. This year it is May 9. These ads are worth studying. Each is attractive in its way, but some of them show things better not done, unless under exceptional circumstances. Better not use a cut of carnations; better not mention carnations in any way unless you are seeking to increase the demand for that special flower. Better not feature the dollar box unless you are satisfied with dollar deals on a holiday. Better not feature any one flower; better recommend "her favorite, they're all appropriate." Better not omit:

For Mothers at home, flowers bright,
In Mother's memory, flowers white.

Better tell the newspaper to supply an attractive cut for you; they nearly all have facilities for doing it, one way or another, but they will nearly all show carnations unless you forbid it.

Each for All.

But by all means, do something. If you have not joined with the rest of the trade in your town to do some coöperative advertising, pick out from the suggestions here given the idea that best fits your case and get something started today. Of course you will do a good business for Mothers' day anyway, whether or not you lift a hand to help it along, but can you afford to sit back and let the rest of the trade build up a business for you? Can you afford to let "the other fellow" be known as the progressive florist of your town? Doesn't your self-respect forbid?

Remember, what you do for Mothers' day benefits all the trade—and what all the others do benefits you.

So, get busy.

THE TELEGRAPH ORDERS.

Get Some to Send Out.

Retail florists should remember that Mothers' day affords a chance for telegraph orders not even second to St. Valentine's day or Christmas. It can be made by far the best day of the year for sending flowers back home by wire.

Millions of men and millions of women are separated from the mothers they love. It requires only the hint that the florist can deliver fine, fresh, fragrant flowers to Her on the designated Sunday morning—the orders will come as easily as any business you ever tried to get.

For anybody to receive telegraph orders, somebody must send them—and pocket twenty per cent for his trouble. The florist who sends the most orders also, in the long run, receives a great many of them.

Get some orders to send to other florists; that, and your card in the Telegraph Delivery department of The Review, will do the rest.

Explain the telegraph delivery feature in your Mothers' day advertising—newspaper, circulars, window and store cards.

SUNDAY CLOSING.

One by one the states are passing Sunday closing laws. While in most cases these are not so strict as to prevent florists from delivering work on the Sabbath, they afford an excellent pretext for remaining tight shut on Sunday. And what can be done in compliance with the law can be done in accordance with one's own inclination. All florists who really wish to do so can keep closed on Sunday without the coöperation of the law or their competitors.

A florist in New York is sending out this notice:

"In compliance with the requirements of the labor law (Chap. 36, laws of 1909 as amended), hereafter no orders for cut flowers or plants will be taken for Sunday delivery. All cut flowers intended for Sunday's use will be delivered Saturday afternoon late, extra precaution being taken in packing same in order that they may keep fresh, if the box is placed in a cool room unopened until wanted. Always clip the stems of cut flowers before placing them in vases and give them plenty of fresh water."

PEACHES UNDER GLASS.

I enclose some twigs of peach trees grown under glass. They have been growing for about ten years and have always borne heavy crops. Last season they had a touch of the same trouble, but seemed to recover and looked perfectly healthy on starting their growth this season. However, many of the branches failed to grow and the rest came like those enclosed. I should like to get your opinion on these, as my treatment may be at fault. We are on low land here and get a great deal of fog from the river.

By Mr. Valentine, of Denver.

S. R. C.—N. H.

The wood on the peach trees did not appear to have been well ripened. Are you sure the trees have good drainage and that there is no likelihood of their having wet feet? Or have you sprayed with the lime-sulphur solution or one of the soluble oil sprays while the trees were dormant? This spraying often does considerable harm to peach trees, which are less tough than apple or pear trees. Avoid spraying with insecticides, also, while the foliage is young and quite tender. I could not find any signs of San Jose scale on the wood sent. If this pest attacks your peach trees, it will soon kill them unless hydrocyanic acid gas is used.

C. W.

MATERIAL FOR SHADING.

We shall appreciate it greatly if you will inform us as to the best formula for shading glass. We have several recipes, but we want something that will stay on as long as we want it on, yet will come off when we so wish, without taking off the paint.

J. W. D. C.—Ia.

The best shading I have used consists of whiting and turpentine, but since it is rather expensive and should be applied with a brush, it is not desirable for large ranges. It is excellent, however, for show rooms and small conservatories.

A much cheaper and quite satisfactory shading may be made by using whiting and hydrated lime, with skimmed milk. If a shading for the entire season is desired, the proportion of lime should exceed that of the whiting, but about equal weights will give good results. For a thin wash, equal parts of water and skimmed milk may be used.

Geraniums

GERANIUMS FOR MEMORIAL DAY.

Will you please tell me of something that will force geraniums? They seem to be healthy, but are not growing as fast as I think they should. I want them to bloom for Memorial day. They are now about six inches high.

H. C. B.—Md.

If your plants are healthy, I would not recommend any strong food to force them along. It would merely promote a soft growth at the expense of flowers. Try a dose of nitrate of soda water, at the rate of five pounds of the soda to fifty gallons of water. One dose will suffice to brace up the plants. Follow this twelve to fourteen days later with a top-dressing of fine bone. This can be given in liquid form if preferred. Mix it in a barrel of water three or four days before applying. These will be found better than liquid cow or sheep manure, which promotes too soft a growth. C. W.

SPIDER ON GERANIUM FLOWERS.

I am sending you some geranium blooms. There seems to be a little insect working on them, causing the flowers to dry up. The trouble is in the bloom only; the plants have a good growth and fine foliage. Can you tell us how to get rid of this pest? Also, please tell us whether the sample carnation forwarded is Beacon.

T. G.—Kan.

The flowers sent had some red spider on them. Probably the affected plants had been standing near heating pipes and had been allowed to get somewhat too dry; this would make them an easier prey to this pest. I would pick off all the spidery trusses, keep more moisture about the affected plants and give one or two sprayings with soap and water. Try five pounds of Ivory soap in twenty-five gallons of water. Apply it through a fine, misty spray nozzle. Ventilate your house well. Do not let the temperature go above 50 degrees at night if outside conditions permit its being kept down to this figure.

The carnation petals were black when received. I could not say whether this is Beacon or not without seeing the fresh flower. C. W.

A SEEDLING AND A SPORT.

Under separate cover I am mailing you three varieties of geraniums. No. 1 is a sport from No. 2. No. 3 is a seedling. Please let me know whether there are any like Nos. 1 and 3 now in commerce. I have tested both of them here for three seasons and both delight in a hot, dry situation and are free bloomers. S. R. C.—N. H.

The flowers were somewhat faded on arrival. Each of the varieties sent is good, but I would hardly care to state that any of them are distinct from others now in commerce. Varieties of geraniums are numerous and are ever increasing. As your varieties are of good colors and have proved to be splendid bedders, I would certainly hold on to them and prepare good batches for another season. There never seems to be any surplus of good bedding geraniums. C. W.

GERANIUM FLOWERS BLIGHTED.

Under separate cover we are sending you a sample of our geranium blooms, which have been blighting badly. The plants are in 4-inch pots and have been shifted twice. They are 2 years old and are healthy and growing well. Can you tell us what is the trouble?

W. E. P.—Okla.

I failed to find any insects on the flowers. If such had appeared, they would undoubtedly have attacked the foliage also. If your foliage is clean and healthy, it may be that the plants are making too luxuriant a growth to produce satisfactory flowers. They do best if potted quite firmly, and it is not a good plan to use animal manure of any kind in the compost unless the manure is old and thoroughly decayed. Fine bone promotes a short, stocky growth, which gives plenty of flowers of fine quality, but if you use animal manure too freely, it will cause a rank, soft growth at the expense of flowers. Seeing that your plants are healthy, I think there is no great cause for worry. Apply a sprinkling of fine bone on the surface of the soil. The roots will soon find their way into this. Give a second application two weeks later. A teaspoonful of bone will suffice for a 6-inch pot. Do not coddle your plants, do not shade, ventilate freely, and I think they will come out all right. C. W.

THE MELVINII PEPPER.

Solanum capsicastrum Melvinii, a Massachusetts product, has caught on better in England than it has in the United States. Perhaps the reason is to be found in the following paragraph, by W. A. T., in the Horticultural Trade Journal:

"It is doubtful also whether Solanum Capsicastrum Melvinii would ever impress the R. H. S. sufficiently to win an award of merit, yet the fact remains that this variety bids fair to knock the usual type badly as a market plant. After a second season's trial from home-saved seed from selected plants, Ward Bros. have satisfied themselves that it is a variety worth hanging on to. The original American stock was somewhat variable, but change of cultural details, coupled with selected seed, has produced a type that is favored by many customers. The plant is less stiff than the old type, and the branches spread more gracefully, while the pointed berries also tend to make Melvinii attractive."

WHAT NEXT!

I hear that certain Boston florists are likely to adopt a new idea in floral gifts. Thus:

When a young lady opens a box of roses or orchids sent by an adoring young man, she will see great, brilliantly-hued moths flutter out from among the blossoms. Moths are to be used because it has been found difficult to keep butterflies.—Boston Post.

NEW FLOWER STORES

Bloomington, Ill.—Sylvester H. Girmsley is opening a flower store in the Sweeney building.

Omaha, Neb.—F. H. Swanson has opened a retail store at 532 North Twenty-fourth street, south.

Wheeling, W. Va.—G. L. Greiner has moved into the Feinler building, at the corner of Market street and Alley 7.

Detroit, Mich.—The Norwood Rosery is the name of a new store at 1509 Woodward avenue, of which C. H. Maynard is manager.

Claremont, N. H.—Easter week saw the opening of the Claremont Floral Shop, a new establishment inaugurated by a Massachusetts firm.

Cedar Rapids, Ia.—Frank Diserens is trying to buy a triangular piece of land that was recently deeded to the city by the North View Land Co., to add it to property he has secured from John Ely, on which to build a greenhouse. If the land company's permission for the land's sale can be obtained, the city will set a price on the tract.

Plainfield, Ill.—Miss Mary Cropsey is starting business in a small way in flowers and plants at her home on Bartlette avenue.

Arlington, Wis.—Ed. Woerner has opened a downtown store for the distribution of the stock from his greenhouses, on North Sixth street.

Green Bay, Wis.—The Meier-Schroeder Co. expects to be settled in the concern's new location, at 119 North Washington street, by May 1. The new store will be handsomely equipped.

Detroit, Mich.—So successful has been the Atlas Floral Co. since it started in business five months ago that it has taken a 7-year lease on the store at 7 Campus Martius, adjoining its present location. The rental is about $7,200 per year. The partition between the two stores will be removed and the place remodeled at a cost of $3,000. The work is expected to be completed by May 1. H. A. Atlas and D. Friedman compose the firm.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Woburn, Mass.—Carl O. Everberg has filed a petition in bankruptcy. His liabilities are $10,255.76 and his assets $1,890.14.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y.—A voluntary petition in bankruptcy has been filed by T. J. Totten, Inc. Liabilities are listed as $11,152 and assets as $9,814.

Dansville, N. Y.—Reilly Bros., wholesale and retail nurserymen, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the United States District court at Buffalo April 20, showing liabilities of $31,535.42 and assets of $71,060. Edward Bacon, of Dansville, was appointed receiver. Counsel for Reilly Bros. said the action was taken not because the firm was insolvent, but to effect an adjustment with creditors.

Fulton, N. Y.—Theodore Foederer, against whom Gustav Bartolme and other creditors filed a petition in bankruptcy January 13, filed a schedule of his liabilities and assets in the United States court April 20, and it has been referred to Referee Wright, at Oswego, before whom a meeting of creditors will be held. Mr. Foederer conducted the Fulton Flower Shop. H. L. Gilman, of Fulton, is his attorney. The bankrupt's liabilities total $1,525, distributed among twenty-seven creditors, and the value of the assets is placed at $400. Mr. Foederer's creditors include Gustav Bartolme, $100; Emma Bartolme, $250; Helen Hastings, $100, and Baker Floral Co., $45, all of Syracuse; Henderson & Thomson Co., $45; Whitaker & Bogardus, Inc., $45; George O. Dumas, $252, and Rosa Foederer, $250, all of Fulton.

Grand Rapids, Mich.—The Grand Rapids Trust Co. has sent the following letter to creditors of Crabb & Hunter Floral Co.: "The Crabb & Hunter Floral Co., of this city, finding themselves embarrassed financially, have turned over to us under trust mortgage and trust deeds for the benefit of creditors, all of their property. We have caused an inventory to be made of both real and personal property. The real estate consists principally of vacant lots in the suburbs of Grand Rapids. This is high class property and valuable but of necessity a very slow asset. It is inventoried at $36,357. We find this to be incumbered with mortgages amounting to $18,300. The store and greenhouses with their contents have been inventoried at $7,800. The accounts receivable amount to $3,400, about one-third of which is more than a year old and of doubtful value. We find notes payable of $2,700 and accounts payable of approximately $5,000. Under our direction they are operating both store and greenhouses with a prospect of at least three months of good business. At the expiration of this time we will doubtless be in position to know whether their business can be conducted profitably or not. In the meantime we are conserving their assets to the best of our ability, paying the taxes, etc."

LIFE HISTORY OF GREEN FLY.

What deposits the egg from which the green aphis hatches? I have noticed that as the small leaves open on the new growths of my rose bushes the young aphides appear to be thick on the inside of these leaves, and I have never discovered where these eggs come from.

J. R. D.—Okla.

The eggs are deposited on some portion of the wood by the female aphis. These eggs are, of course, so small as to be hardly distinguishable by the naked eye. The eggs first develop into active six-footed larvæ, which molt several times. These give rise to six-footed pupæ and later to the winged aphides. The aphis family breeds with incredible rapidity. It takes, under suitable weather conditions, but a few days for the full life history to be run. The young aphides themselves rear new families in a day or two and scientists estimate that a single aphis will, in its short lifetime, raise a progeny computable only in billions. However, storms, sudden climatic changes, the voracity of birds and other insects, in addition to the efforts of man himself, keep them in subjection in large measure. C. W.

KELLER KEEPS CLIMBING.

There are various Kellers in the florists' trade, a dozen or so. The one to which the caption particularly refers, though it is not unlikely that it might truthfully be applied to the others, is Charles Keller, of Detroit. Accompanying are views of Mr. Keller's establishment, which is located at 2517 to 2521 Fort street, west. Although these give an adequate idea of his store, they do not show the extent of his range. And it is in regard to this that Mr. Keller has within the last year made the greatest advance up the ladder. To his old range of 14,000 feet of glass, Mr. Keller added 18,000 feet, considerably more than doubling his greenhouse capacity. Perhaps Mr. Keller made the addition of 18,000 feet as a kind of tally-mark, for it is eighteen years since he began business there. His location is near a cemetery, which supplies one source of large income. That it does not account for it all is clearly shown by his store and the delivery automobile.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS FOR SOUTHERN FLORISTS

ROSE HOUSES FOR THE SOUTH.

Should Be Specially Designed.

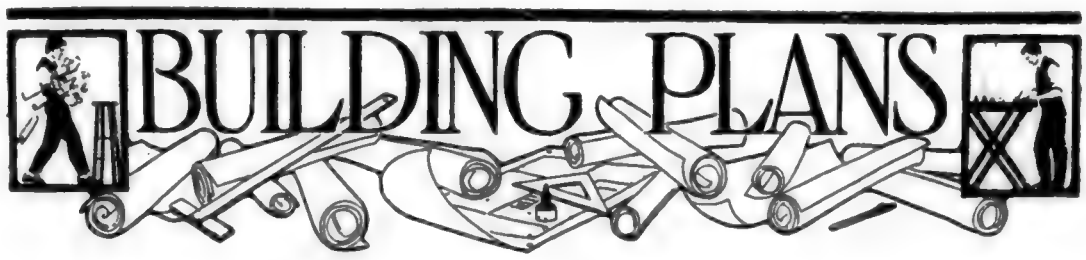
In erecting houses for rose growing in the south, there is too much of a disposition to imitate closely the greenhouses designed to meet northern conditions and not enough attention is paid to the differences, especially the climatic differences, between southern and northern states. By all means use the same good material in the houses for the south that is used in the best northern houses, but there, it seems to me, the similarity should end. Here, in the south, hot summer conditions prevail from six to nine months in the year, with winters that are a misnomer compared with the same seasons in the north. It is the summer season that rose growers really have to fight in the south; hence the need for houses designed to be as cool as possible and yet give the utmost light in winter.

The coolest houses are those which run north and south, and such houses also get all the light necessary during the winter months. Southern houses should also be narrow rather than wide. Two houses twenty feet wide, with iron gutters seven or eight feet high, ventilators on each side of the ridge and side ventilation, are much better than one house of the same style but forty feet wide. The narrow style provides double the amount of ventilation. The houses may be of any practical length, except in the extreme south, where houses 100 feet in length are better than longer ones, because every foot of the shorter houses will get the benefit of the ventilation from the open doors and windows at each end. A variation of a point from exact north and south will not matter. Such houses may be a little longer in warming up in the morning during winter, but they more than even this up by getting the full benefit of the afternoon sun until it disappears.

Solid Beds Best for South.

Solid beds, I find, are much superior to raised benches in the south, producing finer plants and flowers and also lengthening the flowering season. If the sides and ends of the beds are made of concrete, three inches thick and eighteen to twenty-four inches high, they will last a lifetime and will be of a convenient height to work over easily. No drainage of bricks or cinders is required in the beds.

In two such houses, connected with an iron gutter, there should be no difficulty in providing a perfect circulation of air. The gutter should have a fall of twelve inches in every 100 feet, to run off the heavy rainfall quickly, and there should be a 4-inch opening every fifty feet into an underground drain.



During heavy rain storms I have seen the water in the gutters reach over the top of the bottom glass, and of course much of it found a way through. Houses of a length of 200 feet should have the high point at the middle and should slope to each end. The inside drip conductors should also have numerous outlets to underground drainage. The overflow from these conductors is one of the causes of black spot on the foliage.

In piping the houses, be sure to provide a single run of pipe in each house, and make the remaining coils, necessary to give the desired temperature, as small as possible; that is, rather have three coils of two pipes each than two coils of three pipes each. There are many nights, during the whole season of fall, winter and spring, when the outside temperature is too warm for a coil of two pipes and when one pipe and a little top ventilation will make conditions ideal. L.

PRIMULAS IN THE SOUTH.

April, in the south, is a good month in which to sow seeds of these useful plants, especially the obconica and Chinese primulas. P. malacoides grows much faster and may safely be left until the end of May. The soil for the seed boxes should be three parts leafmold and one part loam, finely sifted, the top being put through a mosquito wire screen. The seeds of P. obconica and malacoides should not be covered, but merely pressed down with a board or block. An excellent plan is to lay a piece of cheesecloth on top of the seed box, removing it only when the seed has germinated. This prevents the fine seeds from washing.

Handle the young seedlings as soon as possible, first pricking them off into boxes until fit for small pots and shifting them as required. In the south they do best in a coldframe covered with lath sashes during the summer and will need a lot of water. A little water on the foliage does no harm, provided the plants are not crowded. P. malacoides will do much better planted out than grown in pots. They can be potted just before bringing them into the house in the fall and will soon establish themselves. These make beautiful specimens in 6-inch pans, and when full of flowers they sell on sight. Give this variety plenty of room when growing. L.

Reinbeck, Ia.—John McCullough & Son are planning a range of three connected houses, one for roses, one for carnations and one for pot plants.

Haddonfield, N. J.—A 5-acre tract fronting on Spruce street has been sold to Niels D. Fromm, of Philadelphia, who will put up greenhouses on the land.

Middlebury, Mass.—William Ford has resigned his position at the range of E. G. Hunt, Jr., and will begin the erection of a greenhouse near his home, on North street.

Fremont, O.—Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Hummel, of Garrison street, have purchased a 12-acre tract of land from Adam Spohn, in Green Creek township, on which they expect to build a greenhouse next fall or sooner.

Hutchinson, Kan.—J. Ralph Souder, who not long ago sold out his share in the Emporia Floral Co., at Emporia, Kan., to his partner, E. M. Robinson, has obtained a permit for the erection of a $3,000 greenhouse on Tenth avenue, east.

Madison, Wis.—N. T. Dingman, a dwelling house builder, is going into the greenhouse business with a man experienced in this line from Sioux City, Ia. The property on which he is to build is in the southern part of the city. Work will begin at once.

Franklinville, N. Y.—James A. Godfrey is erecting two large greenhouses on Howard street on the lots recently purchased of Fred Myrick. Mr. Godfrey had charge of the Gardner greenhouses, in East Aurora, for two years before moving here.

Wolcott, N. Y.—George Bousquet, for several years in business at Gloversville, has been in this village making plans for the erection of a greenhouse here. It will probably be on the east side of town.

South Manchester, Conn.—Henry Nettleton is planning to enlarge his range and also his business. Up to the present he has grown only violets, but he now plans to grow other kinds of stock, including vegetables.

Cedar Rapids, Ia.—Bain Bros., who are large owners in the Polland Floral Co., with greenhouses at Twenty-seventh street and First avenue, have organized the Cedar Rapids Floral Co. and opened a store in the corner room of the Montrose Hotel building. Miss Marjorie Dodge is in charge of the store.

Olean, N. Y.—Dana R. Herron has let a contract to the King Construction Co., of North Tonawanda, for four greenhouses, each 28x150 feet. They will be located in the rear of the greenhouses on West State street and heated from the plant which supplies the present range. The houses will be devoted to carnations, on which Mr. Herron is planning to specialize.

Xenia, O.—Edward J. Engle, proprietor of the Engle Floral Co., is planning extensive changes in his range on Dayton avenue. He will build a residence and greenhouse in the rear of the present location; his house and business establishment will then face Woodland avenue. Nine lots fronting on Dayton avenue will be platted and sold, including the one on which his present residence stands.

OPEN LETTERS from READERS.

GROWING CANNAS FROM SEED.

In the March 18 issue of The Review appeared an inquiry as to how and when to start canna seed, under the head "Propagation of Cannas." I thought the reply was rather discouraging if one wanted good flowering plants the coming summer, and I felt sure I could advise better. Let me tell what I have done.

March 22 I received a half-pound of seed from a seed concern. I have access to an emery wheel, and I ground down to the white meat on every seed. That same evening I poured hot water on them, and kept them in hot water until the evening of March 27, giving the seeds a five days' bath. I found four seeds showing a white germ the size of a pin-head. I put the lot in a big dish of sand, covering them about an inch. The dish stood in a hot place over a stove, where the seeds luxuriated in bottom heat and had hot sunshine. Fifteen days after I put the seeds to soak, there were more than 200 plants, averaging two inches in height. Some are three inches and some three and one-half inches tall. If these plants keep growing as they have begun, they will match any plants started from roots by the time warm weather comes. Heat and moisture do the business, and March is a good month for starting the seeds, for fire heat is needed.

In my opinion, any time in March is early enough for cannas. Sow them when you put in your earliest tomatoes, but run them hotter.

F. P. Avery.

DAHLIAS FROM CUTTINGS.

We have noticed considerable inquiry this spring in the trade papers as to the best method of propagating dahlias from cuttings. We used to have considerable trouble with these cuttings, but at present we have none. The present season we have rooted more than ninety-nine per cent of them.

We bed the tubers, preferring the undivided field-grown clumps, in a sunny place in a bench of the greenhouse, bedding them in soil enough to cover them an inch or more and making sure that there is at least two inches of soil under the tuber. When the shoots are three or four inches tall we pull them up, just as we do sweet potato plants. We do not use the knife on the plants, except on the few that break between nodes. We stick the plants in sand in the propagating house without shading them. We find that shade causes them to rot. On the other hand, it has been our experience that they are not at all sure to grow if potted up in soil before they are rooted, as we have been informed some of the larger growers do. We cannot succeed that way.

There seems to be no limit to the number of times the eyes will sprout if the plants are pulled carefully, so as not to tear the eye off the tuber. We can get a crop of cuttings about every ten days, and when we have done taking cuttings, the tubers can be divided and planted in the field just as well as before they were used for this purpose. As there is little advantage in planting dahlias in the field for some weeks yet, at least here, in northern Tennessee, there is still time to propagate freely of the different varieties, of which we have but few. F. B.

CLIVIAS.

The old name, imantophyllum, still clings to clivias, just as people prefer croton to codiæum, dracæna for cordyline and spiræa for astilbe. Anyone not knowing clivias would at once conclude that they were bulbous plants, but, while botanically they have bulbs, it is merely in the way of thick, fleshy roots like the agapanthus, as they do not produce a bulb like the amaryllis, although they belong to the natural order amaryllidaceæ. Clivias are not much used commercially, but some growers are now handling them. They will never be cheap plants, and for that reason they will always find purchasers. They flower in late winter and early spring and the flowers are usually of a rich orange color. Some are reddish orange and others pale in color, almost approaching soft yellow. All are of easy culture and do well in a cool greenhouse.

This is the proper time to pot clivias. They do not need frequent disturbance, but any plants containing several growths can be separated, preserving all possible roots, and will soon become established if placed for a few weeks in a warm, moist house. If grown in a tropical house, clivias will grow well but flower sparsely. They need a cool house in winter, 45 degrees at night being ample. In repotting, give them ample drainage and a coarse compost. Rough, fibrous loam, lumpy charcoal and cow manure with coarse sand suits them. The old C. miniata is the best known sort, but there are numerous grand hybrids, mostly raised by the noted firm of James Veitch & Sons, London.

CARRYING OVER CYCLAMENS.

We have a lot of cyclamens in 4-inch and 5-inch pots, left over from last season. They are heavy in foliage and we have them under a bench, owing to lack of room. Shall we repot these and put them on a bench? What kind of food do cyclamens require? Any information as to the handling of these will be greatly appreciated.

C. F. B.—Ohio.

Of course your cyclamens will suffer badly if they remain long under the bench. Stand the plants on a bench in a cool, sunny house, where they can complete their growth. Gradually reduce the water supply as the foliage begins to decay, but do not keep them absolutely dust-dry at any time. If greenhouse bench space is scarce, place the plants on a bed of coal ashes in an ordinary coldframe. Shake out and repot the plants about the end of July, continuing to keep them in coldframes. Shade with lath coverings during hot weather. Leave fully exposed on cloudy days and at night, removing the sashes. Cyclamens, when well rooted, appreciate some feeding. Weak liquid manure is good. C. W.

IN WESTERN PENNSYLVANIA.

By additions from time to time, the Crissman Greenhouse Co., of Punxsutawney, Pa., has built up its range of greenhouses at Pine and Sycamore streets to its present extent of 50,000 feet of glass. This is partly shown in the accompanying illustration. The company has a downtown store, in the Y. M. C. A. building, and has, altogether, built up a quite satisfactory trade. M.

Wilmington, Del.—George Fountain, whose greenhouses are at Greenbank, this season grew a number of plants of perpetual-flowering ten weeks' stocks and had them in good shape for Easter when they cleaned up readily at $1 each.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Asters.

If the ground on which asters are to be planted has, for any reason, not yet been properly prepared, it should be given attention at once. Of course fall plowing is a great asset when it comes to the successful growing of this annual most useful for cutting, but sometimes work which should be done then is postponed until the strenuous spring season arrives. The ground should be liberally enriched with well rotted manure, that from cows being decidedly the best. It should be deeply plowed and thoroughly harrowed both ways; in fact, it scarcely can be too much cultivated in advance of planting. The more thoroughly pulverized the soil is, the better will the asters or any other plants grow.

The earliest asters should be getting well hardened off. In some sections they can go out with safety the first week in May, but elsewhere it is unsafe to risk them so early. It is time now to sow a generous batch of late asters. These can just as well be sown outdoors as in frames, if the latter are not at disposal. Be sure the soil in the seed bed is thoroughly pulverized. Vick's Branching or American Branching are good sorts to sow now. Of course certain varieties can be sown as late as June 1 and will bloom, but the American Branching types require a somewhat longer growing season than most other varieties.

Scented Bedding Plants.

Nearly everyone purchasing bedding plants will ask for three varieties, viz., scented geraniums, lemon verbenas and heliotropes. This trio has a never-failing popularity and every florist should prepare sufficient stock to meet demands for them. The heliotropes can be rooted quickly in a brisk heat and soon grow into nice plants. At this season they will do particularly well if partially plunged in a gentle hotbed, closing the frames about the middle of the afternoon and bottling up a good, moist heat. The scented geraniums do not want this warm treatment, but the lemon verbenas like it and will grow surprisingly fast in a close coldframe. Not only is there a sale for the plants of the scented geraniums and verbenas, but the shoots also are in demand in the summer and fall, giving off, as they do, a most delightful odor, either on a piazza or in a room.

Evergreens in Tubs.

Such evergreens as bays, Irish yews, box, laurels, hollies and others of doubtful hardiness, which have been carried, as boarders in many cases, over winter in a cold greenhouse or pit, can now go outdoors, having previously been overhauled. Some may have needed new tubs, others merely a good top-dressing. Fibrous loam and cow manure make a suitable compost for these evergreens. Where they will need to stay in the tubs for some years, some quarter-inch bone can also be added with advantage. After standing the plants outdoors it is an advantage to give partial shade, especially if they have been stored for some months in a rather dark pit, and, no matter where they have been wintered, be sure they are freely sprayed overhead and are given an abundant supply of water at the roots. Plants which are at all starved in appearance should have a mulch of cow manure through the growing season and, in addition, have occasional applications of liquid manure.

Hardy Lilies.

In some cases where hardy lilies could not be planted late in the fall and they have been carried over winter in comparatively small pots in a cellar, frame or pit, planting out should be done without delay, for if they get much potbound they will not do so satisfactorily. Be sure to plant quite deeply, covering the bulbs of such varieties as auratum, speciosum and Henryi not less than six inches deep. Do not allow any fresh manure to come in contact with the roots, but a mulch of manure after they are planted will prove beneficial. One reason why these lilies should be planted deeply is that nearly all roots are sent out from the bottoms of the new shoots, which are on the tops of the bulbs, and such lilies, if not well buried, will soon suffer from summer drought.

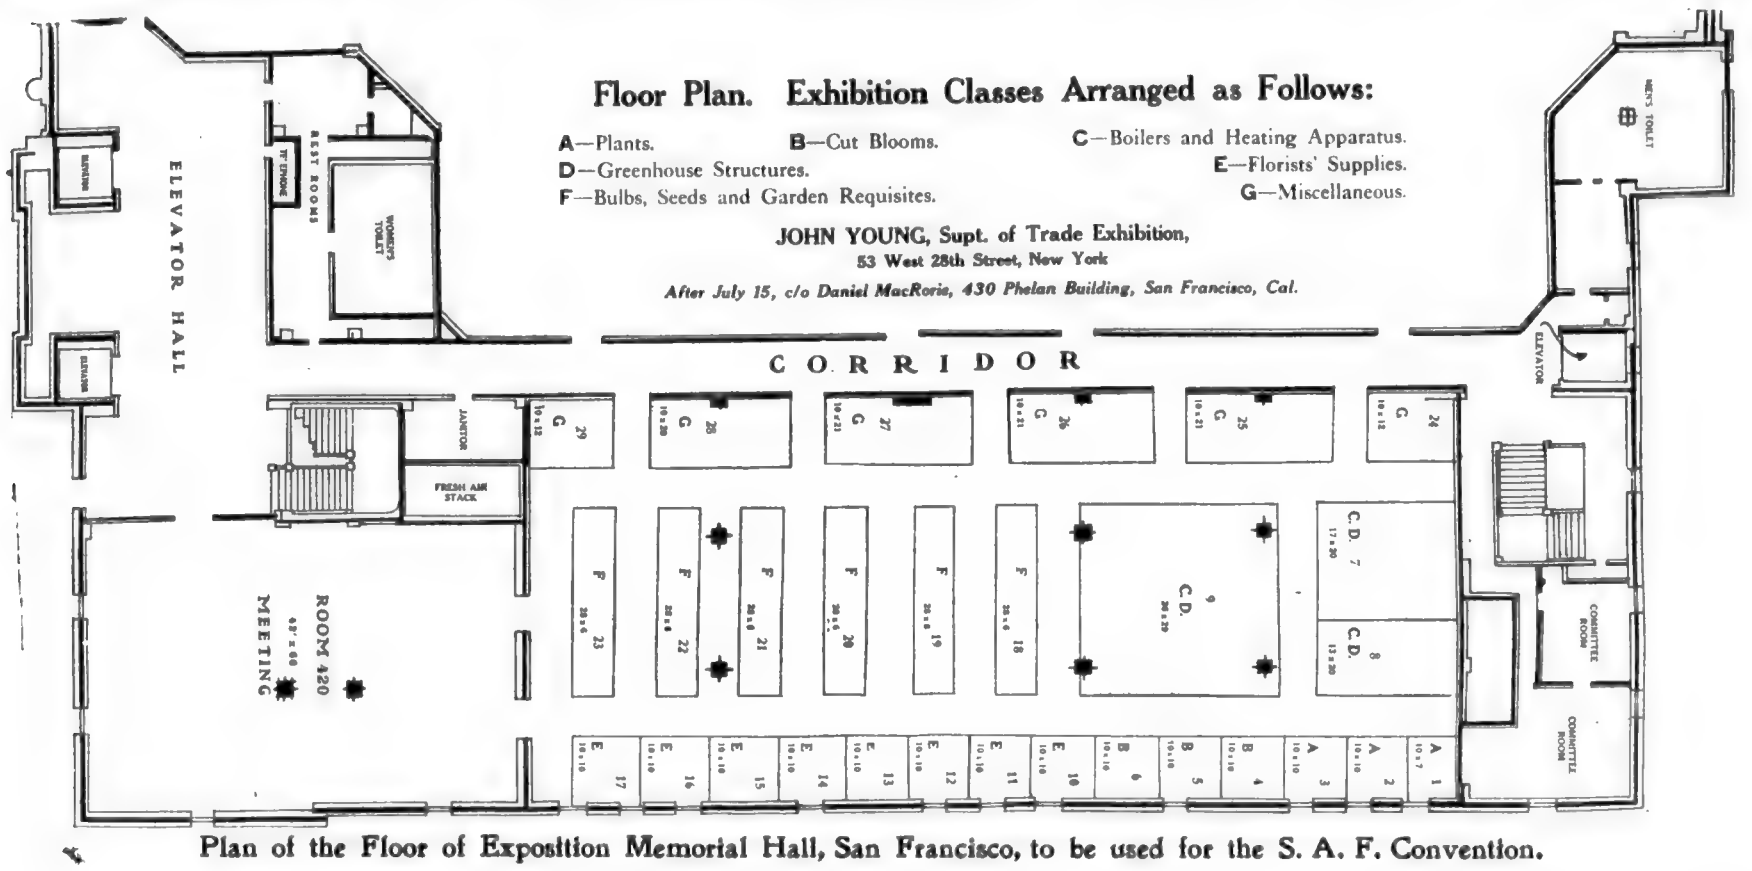
Hardy Perennials.

Any hardy perennials wintered in frames or in beds should be planted out in nursery rows now, before they make too much growth. Also, such plants as Canterbury bells, daisies, pansies, violas, myosotis, foxgloves, etc., are better planted with as little delay as possible. Of course, there will be a demand for some of these until Memorial day, but any needed for filling beds for customers or for improving the entrance to one's own establishment should go out as soon as possible, while the soil is in good planting condition.

English Ivies.

Where a batch of English ivies have been propagated and are now in small pots, plant outdoors a foot apart in good soil. Put a stake in with each plant. These may not appear necessary now, but they become so as the plants start to grow in earnest. If the plants are tied up, the shoots will not emit roots at every joint, which they certainly would do toward fall. This field-grown ivy will make nice, heavy stock by fall and there is always a good sale for it.

MIGHT GROW PINEAPPLES.



A number of florists are changing crops this season—trying something new. A suggestion not to be taken too seriously is that some might follow the example of W. M. Tiplady, who grows a small house of pineapples at Elmendorf, near Lexington, Ky.

The illustration shows a house containing three beds of Smooth Leaf Cayenne pineapples, photographed June 1, 1914. In the beds there are two rows of twenty plants each, 120 plants in all. They were planted September 1, 1913, from 5-inch pots, in a compost of turf, leaf-mold and a little sharp sand. No manure was used, but liquid manure was given twice a month during the summer. Not one plant was lost and all fruited except four. They were planted in twelve inches of the compost, with four 2-inch hot water pipes under each bed. The sides of the beds are of concrete, with 2-inch openings every four feet on a level with the walk. The fruit is fine, and averages about five and one-half pounds in weight. Mr. Tiplady now is ready to replant from 5-inch and 6-inch pots, using the same variety, for next season.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Plan of the Floor of Exposition Memorial Hall, San Francisco, to be used for the S. A. F. Convention.

NEW YORK TO FRISCO.

The New York Florists' Club's party to the San Francisco exposition will be under the guidance of Thos. Cook & Sons, at the rate of $156 round trip per person. This includes railroad transportation both ways, from New York to San Francisco over the Canadian Pacific, return via Santa Fe or other direct route; Pullman service from New York to San Francisco, and hotel accommodations at Banff, Lake Louise and Seattle. Pullman reservations and hotel accommodations will be arranged in advance, so that the party may travel with as little worry and trouble as possible.

To go via the American Rockies and through Yellowstone park will take five days and will cost $53.50, which will include all expenses during the five days, hotel accommodations, busses, etc.

The Pullman service from California to New York will amount to about $20. Dining service on the way back will depend on what one wishes to eat.

The entire trip will take about thirty-four days, including the trip to Yellowstone park, and will cost about $300 per person.

The itinerary is as follows:

August 5, Leave New York via New York Central railroad 12:50 p. m., train 41.
August 6, Arrive Chicago 3:30 p. m.
Leave Chicago 6:33 p. m. via C., M. & St. P.
August 7, Arrive St. Paul 7:10 a. m.
Leave St. Paul 11 a. m.
August 9, Arrive Banff 9:13 a. m. Room and meals at Banff Springs hotel during stay.
August 10, Leave Banff 9:13 a. m.
Arrive Lake Louise 10:30 a. m. Room and meals at Lake Louise Chalet during stay.
August 11, Leave Lake Louise 10:30 a. m.
August 12, Arrive Vancouver 11 a. m.
Leave Vancouver by steamer 12 noon.
Arrive Victoria 4:30 p. m.
Leave Victoria 5:30 p. m.
Arrive Seattle 10 p. m. Room only at Hotel Washington.
August 13, Leave Seattle 11:15 p. m.
August 14, Arrive Portland 6:45 a. m.
Leave Portland 8:15 p. m.
August 16, Arrive San Francisco 7:30 a. m.

THE TRADE EXHIBITION.

Plats of the space allotted to the trade exhibition at the San Francisco convention, such as the one reproduced herewith, are being sent out to intending exhibitors. The exhibition hall and meeting rooms are on the fourth floor of the Exposition Memorial Auditorium. If this hall should not prove large enough, another hall, of 8,000 square feet, on the opposite side of the building will be available. The charge for space is 40 cents per square foot, with a minimum charge of $20, and the usual regulations obtain.

Hotel headquarters, exhibition hall and convention are not so conveniently located as they have been at previous conventions. The exhibition hall, which is on the exposition grounds, is about two miles northwest of the Hotel St. Francis, which, it is understood, is to be convention headquarters. The convention garden, in Golden Gate park, is between two and three miles southwest of the exposition grounds and over three miles from the hotel.

A CALL FOR GUARANTORS.

In accordance with instructions of the committee, April 2, Secretary John Young, 53 West Twenty-eighth street, New York, invites subscriptions to the guarantee fund of $10,000 for the national flower show to be held at Philadelphia next March. Mr. Young says:

"While the sum mentioned could, no doubt, be raised in and around Philadelphia, it was the thought of the committee that the fund should be national in character and represent every section of the country. The forthcoming show in Philadelphia promises to eclipse everything previously attempted in flower shows in America, and it goes without saying that it will result beneficially to the trade at large. It may be stated that at previous national shows the guarantors not only were reimbursed to the extent of their actual contributions, but received a substantial share of the profits.

"The committee also would esteem donations of special prizes, the same to be offered under the names of the donors. If you should feel disposed to favor us with the offer of a special prize, kindly, if possible, select the subject for your award from the preliminary schedule, thus relieving our obligations to the prize fund to the extent of the value of your donation."

USINGER'S UTTERANCES.

Traugott Malbranc, of Johnstown, Pa., is cutting a nice lot of roses and carnations.

John Young, of Windber, is busy with funeral work and getting his summer cottage ready. He says his lake is well stocked with fish, and he expects to make some good catches.

A. A. Whitbred, of Altoona, has added a motor truck to his delivery service. He is cutting early gladioli.

L. S. Peterman, Altoona, is busy with lawn work and a good business in seeds.

Mrs. William Blacker, of Clearfield, has had a good run of funeral work. They are cutting a nice lot of carnations.

G. G. Parker, of Philipsburg, is busy with his seed trade, of which he does most on a wholesale basis.

H. W. Girton, of the Mountain Park Greenhouses, is showing the people of Ridgway what the proper use of good seeds will do to beautify the town, by extensive advertising in local papers.

The St. Marys Greenhouse Co., at St. Marys, is rushed with orders for spring planting of shrubbery and lawns and a good seed trade.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

The market is in the same general condition as at the last writing. Stock is in oversupply, while the demand is able to take up only a part of the receipts. Prices are low. Shipping business is pretty fair.

Roses and carnations are both still in heavy supply. Lilies and callas are plentiful. The sweet pea cut is large, but the average quality has deteriorated on account of the hot weather. Snapdragons hardly sell at all. Both valley and orchids are in large and adequate supply. Outdoor valley and lilacs are arriving. Outdoor Narcissus poeticus has come in, but the indications are that the season for it will be short.

Green sheet moss, wire baskets and ferns are enjoying a good call.

Various Notes.

Geo. Klotter, of Pine Hill, has been sending large quantities of Narcissus poeticus to L. H. Kyrk.

C. E. Critchell reports that this year's demand for green sheet moss and wire baskets has been the largest he has ever had.

Visitors include Frank Farney, of the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia; O. D. Bramman, representing the Johnston Tinfoil Co., St. Louis; W. W. Stableton, Manchester, O.; Emil and Chas. Uhl, Greenfield, O., and Miss Emma Constable, Blanchester, O.

MOTTLY MUSINGS.

J. Gammage & Sons, London, Ont., find that while the wholesale trade has shown a considerable falling off, the increase in the retail department has almost compensated for it. They made a specialty of baskets of plants for Easter. The baskets were of their own make and found a ready sale.

Colin Ogston, of the Kimball conservatories, Rochester, N. Y., is favorably impressed with Carnation Philadelphia and finds that if it is kept on the dry side the yield is considerably increased.

R. H. McKerr, Canandaigua, N. Y., followed chrysanthemums with radishes and these, in turn, with sweet peas for Memorial day, with pansies between the rows. One house of sweet peas, at its best at Easter, is being planted with early tomatoes, which will be through before the outdoor crop is in. Every crop has yielded excellent returns.

Edward H. Sick, Canandaigua, reports highly satisfactory business, with a good stock for the planting season.

W. & T. Cass, Geneva, N. Y., found their entire flowering stock cleaned up at Easter. They have a fine lot of ferns for the spring box trade; these are popular for use on the north side of dwellings, where geraniums will not bloom. The junior member of the firm is recuperating after an internment of several weeks in the hospital, where an operation of a serious character was successfully performed.

The Thomas Mansfield Estate, Lockport, N. Y., reports business about normal and is preparing to share in the general improvement by working up a good, salable stock.

Glen Brundage, Endicott, N. Y., is one of the latest additions to the craft and bids fair to build up a good business in this modern, busy town, which boasts of improvements in the shape of playgrounds and model gardens for the young, furnished by the mill owners and highly appreciated by the workers.

Alfred Patrick, Auburn, N. Y., says his two best sellers in baby ramblers are Ellen Poulsen, which requires less fire heat and carries its bloom the longest of any, and Orleans, a grand variety, with immense trusses of brilliant color.

NOTES FROM FOREIGN LANDS

Ghent, Belgium.—Van Houtte has notified customers that for the present it is quite impossible to deliver anything, the Germans monopolizing all means of transportation.

Paris, France.—At the recent meeting of the Societe Nationale d'Horticulture de France, Vilmorin-Andrieux & Co. showed a new hybrid cineraria with large sky-blue flowers.

Berlin, Germany.—In line with the present practice of planting vegetables in all possible places, the Berliner Tageblatt suggests that the flowers in window and veranda boxes be replaced by them. Considering the large use of these boxes in German cities, such a course, if followed, would no doubt add to the food supply.

Ghent, Belgium.—The spring work has progressed thus far much better than was to have been expected. There has been more home help than the disturbed conditions would indicate and the Germans have lent a hand on agricultural operations after such a fashion that they expect to profit by the harvest.

Genoa, Italy.—Not only have the flower growers of the Riviera lost money since the beginning of the present war, on account of the loss of the northern markets, but the sale of nursery stock, particularly of ornamentals, has shrunk sharply also. Florists in Italy have been unable to get azaleas and rhododendrons from Belgium. Those that came clear around the continent by sea were greatly delayed and in bad shape when they arrived.

Lisse, Holland.—Reports from the bulb district indicate that there is an extremely large surplus of gladiolus bulbs.

Aalsmeer, Holland.—In spite of disturbed conditions, cut flowers from this section are obtaining satisfactory prices in the Holland markets.

West Bromwich, England.—Joseph De Laet, son of Frantz De Laet, of Contich, Belgium, has been staying here for some time and has word from home that the reported destruction of his father's nursery is exaggerated. Only three or four of the eighteen greenhouses were destroyed, he says.

Paris, France.—Jean, the younger brother of Philippe de Vilmorin, head of the widely known firm, Vilmorin-Andrieux et Cie, has returned home, having been exchanged after five months' imprisonment in Germany. He was captured after having suffered four wounds at Peronne, September 24. All the male members of the Vilmorin family are fighting for France.

Utrecht, Holland.—During the recent general assembly here of the Netherlands Horticultural Council, it was decided to get in touch with the horticultural associations of the various countries of Europe and endeavor to persuade them not to carry out their plans of changing the names of plants and flowers that related to hostile countries and to avoid conferring on new varieties names that will recall the events of the war and so make difficulty for the general diffusion of such varieties.

FIRES

Hampton, Tenn.—Fire has burned nearly everything on the mountain and there will not be much in the way of evergreens shipped out of this town until autumn.

Brazil, Ind.—The greenhouse of Joseph Stevenard, three miles north of the city, was destroyed by fire at midnight April 14. The blaze was caused by defective heating apparatus and most of the stock was lost with the building.

Galena, Ill.—While fumigating, during the evening of April 24, some paper and waste in one of B. F. Vandervate's greenhouses caught fire and damage estimated at $1,500 had been done before the flames were extinguished. The loss was principally on stock.

Freeport, Ill.—Fire destroyed a storage house at the greenhouse property of John Bauscher, Jr., April 14, causing a loss of about $2,000. It is thought the insurance will cover it. The building contained machinery, pots, designs, etc., all of which were destroyed.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The patient gave no evidence of convalescence until last week was nearly over. Saturday, April 24, there was hope of recovery. It seemed all the week as if the bottom had dropped out of the market. Every variety of cut flowers shared in the depression. Valley and smilax showed the only strength. Just that you may realize the conditions, let me say one sale of 17,000 roses was made to a speculator for $20.

Shipments of everything continued beyond any possible demand. One wholesaler received over 30,000 roses, Saturday, April 24. There is a sufficiency of all the new varieties and a tremendous flood of Killarney. Few American Beauties brought over $10 per hundred. A few selects sold at $12 and even $15, but most of them sold at $8 and under. The lower grades of all roses sold at 50 cents per hundred and even less, in quantity.

Carnations, the best in the market, could be bought April 24 for $1 per hundred. There were thousands of them, and on the inferior and common grades 50 cents down even to 25 cents per hundred was the general quotation. The street merchants continue to reap a harvest.

Orchids have fallen from their high estate, of $1 each, two or three weeks ago, to 35 cents for the best of the cattleyas. There are plenty of them and also of lilies, the latter still seldom rising above $2 to $3 per hundred. Callas are plentiful, and the large flowers do not go above 75 cents per dozen. The best gardenias may be had at $10 per hundred. The poorer grades go to the street, at prices unmentionable.

The April weddings are many. These may account for the rise in valley, some fine stock even touching $3 and $4 per hundred.

Some excellent tulips are to be found among the spring offerings. Spanish iris is increasing daily, and southern lilac in great plenty has taken the place of the southern daffodils, the latter having had a disastrous season, not paying the cost of transportation. There is a good supply of stocks, pansies, mignonette, sweet peas, wallflowers and the last of the violets.

The alarm clock went off at four o'clock in the morning.

"I fooled you that toime," said Mike with a grin, "for I wasn't aslape at all."

The florist fools himself who thinks there is any way of selling goods in the trade more effective than advertising in The Review. Also, it's the most inexpensive way in proportion to results.

"We are completely sold out and have had to send money back. The Review is, without doubt, the best advertising medium in the trade."—J. C. Rennison Co., Sioux City, Ia.

Review readers are not asleep. Note this:

"Please tell us confidentially what you think of —— ——. Why doesn't he advertise in The Review if he is O. K.?"—Miller Floral Co., Farmington, Utah.

The alarm clock rings in The Review office at 4 o'clock (p.m., not a.m.) every Tuesday. It is to let everybody know advertising forms close for that week's issue in just sixty minutes.

Various Notes.

H. A. Siebrecht has returned from San Francisco.

G. E. M. Stumpp, instead of at Newport, will open a branch retail store at the fashionable Long Island society resort, Southampton.

May 1 there will be a meeting of the stockholders of the New York Cut Flower Exchange at the Coogan building.

Sunday, May 9, will be Mothers' day, but April 25 was also a Mothers' day in Paterson, N. J., where Billy Sunday is having "a terrible fight with the devil," so he says. One of the Paterson florists bought 25,000 carnations in anticipation of the day.

At the eighty-ninth anniversary of the Old Guard of the City of New York, April 22, at St. Thomas' church, among the old soldiers at the memorial service was L. Kervan, Sr., of the Kervan Co.

H. E. Froment celebrated his advent in new quarters Saturday, April 24, by disposing of nearly 40,000 roses.

The MacNiff Horticultural Co. is having a remarkable auction season. The big stores are crowded every Tuesday and Friday.

David Clarke's Sons announce that hereafter no orders for cut flowers or plants will be taken for Sunday delivery.

The Greek florists' outing will take place at Wetzel's Grove, College Point, Wednesday, July 7, two weeks before the annual outing of the New York Florists' Club.

L. Dupuy, of Whitestone, is in Europe on a business trip.

Bowling.

The return match between the New York and Tuxedo florists was bowled at Thumm's alleys, New York, Thursday evening, April 22. Each club has a match to its credit. The decisive contest will take place early in May, probably at Tuxedo.

After the evening's bowling the New York Club entertained its opponents and guests at supper.

The scores follow:

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

Business has remained practically unchanged since last report. There is still a plentiful supply of cut stock, which must be sold at low prices to be moved. The retailers are doing only an average business, a large proportion of which is funeral work. The street fakers continue to handle large lots of cut flowers, mostly roses and carnations, which are sold to the public at prices far below their actual value. The weather has been extremely warm during the week. On Sunday, April 25, the thermometer registered 99 degrees in the shade. It is possible that during the next week the supply will be somewhat lighter, as many growers are gradually going off crop, most of them having cut heavily since Easter. The wholesale stores were able to clean up on Saturday, except on lilies, which were immovable at any price, but sacrifice prices were in order.

Club Meeting.

The meeting of the club, April 26, was well attended in spite of the unusually hot weather. Edward Kress was the speaker of the evening and gave an interesting talk on "Rose Growing for Outdoor Bedding Purposes," for which he received the thanks of the club. F. C. Bauer and Richard Vincent, Jr., also discussed the subject.

The sympathy of the club was expressed for Treasurer F. G. Burger in the loss of his son, W. W. Burger, who died April 24. A committee, consisting of Robert L. Graham, J. J. Perry and W. J. Johnston, was appointed to draw up resolutions of regret and present them to his parents. James Shortt, of Waverly, also died since the last meeting, and as the benefit fund is below the prescribed amount it is necessary to call an assessment to replenish it.

F. C. Bauer had on the table white, pink and red seedling verbenas. The Mothers' day committee gave an outline of what its intentions were for advertising this occasion and the club appropriated a good sum toward the fund. Also, a large number of individual subscriptions were received. This subscription list will be open for some time and anyone wishing to contribute may add his name to the list at any of the wholesale stores. Mr. Thacher, of Boston, was a guest of the evening and made a few remarks.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin A. Seidewitz celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage April 18 and received congratulations and many valuable remembrances from their friends.

Conrad Hess is again attending the markets, with his usual good line of ferns and potted plants.

L. H. A. Klein, of Twoson, is sending some fine geranium plants to market. His other bedding plants also look well.

Lohr & Fritze are cutting heavily in their rose houses just now. Their Double White Killarneys show up especially well.

C. Fred Fauth, of Woodlawn, is again occupying his stall in Lexington market, with bedding plants.

Edward Kress has received his new auto truck and is well pleased with it. He is bringing a fine lot of rose plants to market.

Samuel Feast & Sons have been appointed local agents and distributors for the Luther Burbank Seed Co.

James Hamilton is exceedingly busy with outdoor planting and at times finds it necessary to take his entire force of men to care for the orders received. W. F. E.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

Another week of pleasant weather, with several days of summer heat, has caused rapid development of many flowers and plants. The weather has been ideal for preparing flower beds and gardens, and there has consequently been a heavy sale of potted plants suitable for transplanting in the open at this time. Florists who carry seeds have had a large sale, and the regular seed houses have been busy. A number of florists have put in a large stock of rose bushes. Flowering shrubs have had a ready sale. Pansy plants for replanting are plentiful at medium prices, and are sold in large quantities. There have been a number of weddings during the last week, which called for a considerable supply of flowers. Roses are cheap. Outdoor tulips are arriving in large quantities and the quality is good, the outdoor stock keeping better than greenhouse varieties. Violets are poorer in quality and are nearly gone. Hyacinths and azaleas are deteriorating and will soon be out of the market. Sweet peas continue to be popular.

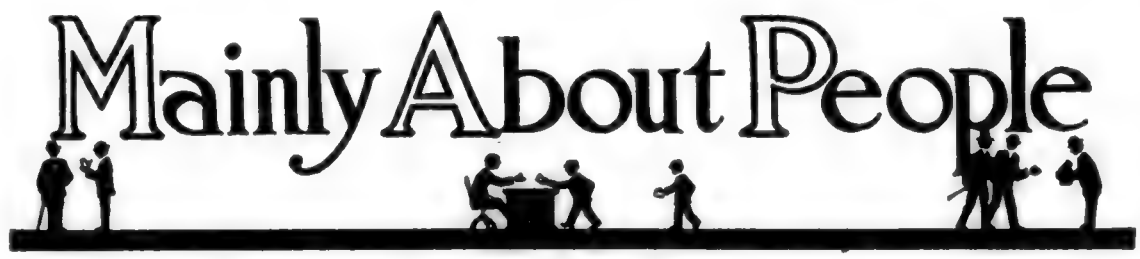
Various Notes.

J. H. Harvey, 453 North Broad street, is full of optimism as to the future. He reports that business is slowly improving, and that from his own observation and from talks with many business men engaged in different lines of work, he feels sure that by fall business conditions will be good.

J. F. Noll & Co., seedsmen, at 115 Mulberry street, are having their rush season at the present time. In addition to their seeds, bulbs, etc., they are carrying a large stock of rose bushes of all the leading varieties.

J. E. & A. G. Hutchinson, 227 Broad street, Elizabeth, report that last winter was much better from a business point of view than was expected at the beginning of the season because of the dullness of business generally.

The Violet Floral Shop, E. Fied, proprietor, 704 Elizabeth avenue, Elizabeth, has an attractive store front, and in the windows last week was a pretty floral display.



A good sale of cut flowers is reported at the Union Square Floral Shop, Elizabeth.

A fine lot of geraniums was displayed in the window of Luthy, at 363 Springfield avenue, last week.

M. Gahr, 311 Springfield avenue, reports that with the advent of spring there is some improvement in business.

Henry Leahy, of Elizabeth, has purchased a delivery automobile. It is prettily decorated. On the sides are painted bunches of roses.

Henry Brenningan has opened a store at 519 Springfield avenue for the sale of flowers, seeds and shrubs. He is carrying a large number of rose bushes of all varieties. R. B. M.

Hiawatha, Kan.—Miss Susan Margrave, proprietor of the Hiawatha Greenhouses, gives it as her opinion that the outlook for business never was better at this date.

Grand Rapids, Mich.—In the April 7 issue of the Michigan Tradesman appeared a page article by Alfred J. Brown, head of the A. J. Brown Seed Co., on "The Seed Trade." This year is Mr. Brown's thirtieth in the business.

Wheat Ridge, Colo.—Herbert D. Belcher, a member of the local trade, was married to Miss Catherine Lyon April 8 at the home of the bride's father, in this town. After the ceremony, the couple left for a honeymoon trip to Chicago.

Cadiz, O.—John T. Timmons is known locally as "the blind naturalist." He is a great friend of the birds and has written extensively on the subject. His florists' business is conducted under the name of Birdlawn Conservatory and a feature of the grounds is a bird castle of 102 apartments occupied by purple martins.

Moberly, Mo.—A. Thieman and his son, Robert Thieman, have a good crop of lettuce at the Sunnyside Greenhouses. Radishes, onions and beets are also being grown, and tomato and cucumber plants are coming along to take the place of the present crops. During the summer Mr. Thieman cultivates ten acres of outdoor crops.

Danville, Ill.—A warrant was recently issued for Harry Dubuis on the charge of stealing a neighbor's chickens. He admitted having the chickens, but not the charge of stealing them. When they ruined his flower beds and invaded his greenhouses, he rounded them up in a pen and then notified the justice of the peace of his action.

Minot, S. D.—Will O. Doolittle, formerly of Painesville, O., and recently engaged in forestry in Michigan, has taken the position of superintendent of parks here.

Tipton, Ind.—Mrs. Henry Bornhoeft, who was formerly in the florists' business here, has been visiting the exposition and the members of the trade at San Francisco. She resides in Chicago.

Charles City, Ia.—Ed. W. Schuster, who has been in the employ of M. H. Weatherbee for the last seven years and was with the Sherman Nursery Co. for several years previous, leaves May 1 for Crookston, Minn., to enter into the greenhouse business for himself.

Council Grove, Kan.—George W. Cleek, senior member of the Cleek Floral Co., was elected commissioner of finance at the election April 6. The flower business, he says, is extra good for the size of the town; much trade is had from the surrounding villages. Mothers' day is being pushed hard.

Hartford, Conn.—Mr. and Mrs. Fernando C. Welch, 188 Westland street, celebrated the fifty-third anniversary of their marriage April 15. Mr. Welch has a greenhouse, 20x100 feet, and grows mushrooms, in addition to carrying on a business in the city as dealer in antique furniture.

Omaha, Neb.—An attempt is being made to oust Paul B. Floth from the lot at the corner of Thirty-first and Burt streets. Mr. Floth claims ownership of the property for twenty years, and says it was a mudhole and swamp when he began to improve it. Mrs. Mattie M. Mackey, of Excelsior, Minn., maintains that the lot was a government grant to John I. Paynter in 1860 and came into her father's hands in 1890.

OBITUARY

Andrew Washburn.

Andrew Washburn, head of the firm of A. Washburn & Sons, Bloomington, Ill., died Wednesday morning, April 21, at his home, 1007 North McLean street. He had not been in robust health for some time, but no acute illness was apparent until a few days before his death. He was out riding as late as April 17. His death was due to a sudden attack of pneumonia.

Andrew Washburn was born in New York city March 5, 1838. He was the son of Philo and Olivia Lombard Washburn, of Lebanon, Conn. He grew to young manhood on his father's farm, and began life by teaching school in the winter and working on his father's farm in the summer.

Early in the Civil war, Mr. Washburn enlisted in Company C, Eighteenth Connecticut Infantry, his service beginning in July, 1862. He won promotions to sergeant, first sergeant and lieutenant of his company. He was made captain of Company H, Twenty-ninth Connecticut, in January, 1864. He was mustered out as captain November 24, 1865.

In the spring of 1866, he removed to Illinois and located at Danvers, where he engaged in mercantile business. Later he secured the place on West Washington street road, near Bloomington, where the large Washburn greenhouses are now located. He made his home at the farm until 1898, when he removed to Bloomington and located at 1007 North McLean street. The home place west of the city continues to be the quarters of the propagating business of the firm.

Mr. Washburn was married in 1867 to Cordelia W. Loomis, of Lebanon, Conn. She died in 1883, and in 1885 he was married to Julia A. West, of Bloomington, who survives. The children of the first marriage are Frank L., George A. and A. Edwin Washburn, of Bloomington, and Mrs. Emma W. Edmunds, of Clinton. The children of the second marriage are Edna B. and Lucy S. Washburn, at home. George Washburn is president of the Commercial Club of Bloomington. Frank L. Washburn is treasurer of the Illinois State Florists' Association.

Carl Hirsch.

Carl Hirsch, proprietor of Hillsdale Floral Park greenhouses, at Hillsdale, Mich., and known to nearly every florist between Toledo and Chicago by reason of his connection with the gardening work on the New York Central lines, died at his home at Hillsdale April 23 and was buried at Lake View cemetery there April 28.

Mr. Hirsch was taken ill at Chicago April 5 while on his way to Darlington, Wis. He was taken home April 7 and was operated on three times in a fortnight, but gangrene had set in and the best that surgical skill could do could not save his life.

Carl Hirsch was a native of Chemnitz, Saxony, born November 1, 1864. Mr. Hirsch was reared and educated in his native land, and there he learned the art of landscape gardening. He worked at his trade in Leipsic, Nuremberg and other European cities, and when he came to the United States in 1888 he soon secured employment with the Garfield Park Rose Co., of Chicago, with which he remained five months, at the end of that time moving to Lake Geneva, Wis., and being there employed by S. W. Allerton. In the spring of 1894 he removed to Hillsdale, Mich., to assist in caring for the greenhouses and grounds belonging to the Michigan Central railroad, and, in 1896, he was given entire charge. At the time of his death he had charge of all the gardening work of the New York Central lines between Toledo, O., and Chicago. In 1895 Mr. Hirsch purchased his home, where, during the same winter, he began the erection of his own greenhouses, which today cover about 30,000 square feet under glass. The establishment is one of the most complete and prosperous in southern Michigan. He was assisted in this business by his wife, who was Miss Emma Lorenz, whom he married July 4, 1889, and by his venerable father, Karl Hirsch, who followed him to America in 1900. Mrs. Hirsch will continue the business. She has one daughter, Pearl.

Mr. Hirsch was one of the most successful and best known men in his section and the funeral was largely attended. There were many flowers.

John Langrick, Sr.

John Langrick, Sr., aged 77 years, proprietor of the Oak Hill Greenhouses at Bradford, Pa., died suddenly at the Bradford hospital April 13. Two weeks before his death Mr. Langrick slipped on a step at his home, dislocating his hip and fracturing a small bone so that it was necessary to take him to the hospital for treatment. He was thought to be getting along nicely, and his death came as a great shock. A blood clot on the brain is given by the physicians as the cause of death.

Mr. Langrick was born at York, England, February 25, 1838, and at the age of 10 went to Canada. When 20 years old he removed to Titusville, where he followed the oil business. Thirty-six years ago he went with his family to Bradford and fifteen years ago purchased the Oak Hill Greenhouses. In 1859 he was united in marriage with Miss Mary A. Thwaite, who survives him with several children, as follows: Mrs. Sarah Hemphill and Mrs. Maggie Hemphill, both of Titusville; Mrs. Grace Higgins, of Bradford; Mrs. Alice Campbell, of San Francisco, Cal.; E. T. Langrick and John Langrick, Jr., of Bradford, and Mrs. Jennie Hyde, of Gillmore. He also leaves eight grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Otis L. Kent.

Otis L. Kent, for many years the senior member of the firm of Kent & Marsh, Newburyport, Mass., died at his home, 17 North Atkinson street, April 20, from heart trouble.

Mr. Kent was a native of Newbury, having been born on the historic old Kent estate at Kent's Island, which patrimony his family has held for more than 200 years.

Early in life he established a milk route, and later became associated with Horace W. Marsh in the florists' business, which has since grown into one of the largest of that kind in the city.

Mr. Kent was a director and at one time general manager of the Newburyport Fair Association. He was a member of the Belleville Improvement Society and I. O. O. F., and a trustee of the Home for Aged Men.

Mr. Kent was twice married, and by his first wife, who was Miss Marsh, he had a son, George Kent, of Winthrop, who, with a brother, Leonard Kent, of Kent's Island, and three grandchildren, survives.

Mr. Kent is the third of a family of four brothers to pass away within two years.

Walter Woodward Burger.

Walter Woodward Burger, aged 29 years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred G. Burger, of Baltimore, Md., died at Sierra Madre, Cal., April 24. Mr. Burger was well known in Baltimore, having been associated with his father in the florists' business for some years. Ill health finally compelled him, some months ago, to seek another climate. He was a member of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Baltimore and is survived by his parents, a brother and three sisters. One sister, Miss Florence M. Burger, was with him when the end came and accompanied the remains back to his home. Funeral services were held from his parents' residence, 2828 St. Paul street, Baltimore.

The Market.

There are plenty of flowers to be had for the good business that the florists are doing. Carnations are especially abundant. The weather, which continued cold so late, has turned extremely warm for this time of year and has brought everything along in a hurry. Last week the city market was loaded with plants and cut flowers. Spring planting will all come in a bunch, being limited to a week or two, and everybody will have his hands full.

Various Notes.

J. C. Espermann is rushed with spring trade. He has a nice stock of plants. He has been ill since Easter, but is able to be about again, though unable to do much work.

Karl Zeidler is extremely busy, having a lot of funeral work to do along with the filling of boxes and baskets.

Miss Nellie Goodge will have her rush season soon, when people are sure there will be no more frost. She has a fine lot of plants for her spring trade.

C. L. Niednagel has his young rose stock in excellent condition. He has some Beauties which he has cut back and started up and they are looking fine. His cut of Killarney is heavy.

Julius Niednagel & Sons are cutting an immense crop of nice carnations. Their business is good.

The Wm. Blackman Floral Co. is cutting lots of stock and finds the demand satisfactory.

Theodore Kuebler is selling lots of stock at the city market. His shipping trade is good.

Royston & Fenton are getting more orders for plants and cuttings than they can fill. They expect to build a house for propagating purposes, to be ready by fall. E. L. F.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.
Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.

Officers for 1915: President, Patrick Welch, Boston; vice-president, Daniel MacRorie, San Francisco; secretary, John Young, 53 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo.

Thirty-first annual convention, San Francisco, Cal., August 17 to 20, 1915.

RESULTS.
We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

COLLECTIONS in the trade can be called no better than fair. And getting the money is the really essential part of the sale.

C. W. JOHNSON, secretary of the Chrysanthemum Society of America, has issued the annual pamphlet recording the work of the organization.

THERE seldom are enough geraniums that are ready when the season opens; later, after the season has closed, there almost always is a surplus.

CAUTION is advisable in the matter of outdoor work. Where April has brought abnormally high temperatures May is apt to bring the other swing of the pendulum. Watch out for the late frost.

A MIGHTY fine thing to enclose with each bill that goes out of your store is a neat card explaining that you have correspondent florists in 250 cities and towns, making it possible to deliver flowers anywhere in America on a few hours' notice.

THE American basket industry would develop far faster were there a home supply of raw material. At present, if florists' baskets are not made in Europe, the materials come from there, and reed is almost unobtainable in the United States today.

SELDOM has the latter part of April brought such warm weather as this year. It is not good for the trade. It has forced the stock under glass, increased the production of cut flowers, while reducing the demand, and it is yet too early for safety for outdoor operations.

THE action of the New York and New Jersey Association of Plant Growers, which has pledged its members to buy Belgian and Holland stock only f. o. b. New York, has attracted wide attention. The European gentlemen are a bit uncertain what to do about it, but on this side of the water it looks like a practice that might spread.

DAHLIA MEETING CHANGED.

Owing to the closing of the Hotel Earlington, the meeting for the organization of the national dahlia society will be held at the Grand hotel, Broadway and Thirty-first street, New York. The time and date remain the same, May 10, 2 p. m.

ANOTHER RECORD.

Last week's issue of The Review again set a new high record for volume of Classified ads. No previous issue ever had carried so many. There were over nineteen solid pages of these "little wonder ads," as one user called them—they ran over onto the twentieth page. Each week now the record is raised.

The splendid increase in this department of The Review is largely due to florists in the extreme east, who at length are awakening to a realization that the Classified ads are exceptionally useful to them—in the east—useful in selling as well as useful in buying.

MIDSUMMER IN APRIL.

Never in the history of the U. S. Weather Bureau, to say nothing of the memory of the oldest members of the trade, has there been anything to compare with the heat of this April. Back in 1899 there was some warm weather in the spring and April 29 of that year was as hot as any of the days of the last week, but there never has been a stretch of several consecutive days that were in any way comparable with what has been experienced since April 15. The condition has been general over almost all the country east of the Rocky mountains, maximum temperatures running from 80 degrees to as high as 94 degrees at most of the points where the interests of this trade are largest.

Of course such weather is bad, extremely bad, for the business of florists. It forces crops and, besides overloading the market, causes quality to deteriorate. At the same time, it causes people to seek the open air, thereby reducing the demand for flowers.

These are of the things that must be taken as they come—and reflection will show that a number of such events interrupt the ordinary course of business in every year. If it is not too hot, then it is too cold, too dry or too wet. It takes a calm faith to sit idle without loss of temper, or to work with feverish energy without much result and see the huge cuts of good flowers quickly wilt to worthlessness. But there is this much consolation: None of these periodical bad markets due to weather conditions in any way affect the basis on which the business is built—the people are steadily buying more flowers, paying in the aggregate more money for flowers than they did in the years before. If we have bad business today we will have good business tomorrow.

NEXT WEEK'S WEATHER.

Weather forecast for the week beginning Wednesday, April 28, issued by the U. S. Weather Bureau, Washington, D. C.:

For the Upper Mississippi Valley and Plains States—Generally fair weather, with temperature somewhat above the seasonal average probable during the next several days, but local showers and lower temperature indicated toward the end of the week.

For the Region of the Great Lakes—Mild temperatures for the season probable in this region until after May 1, when lower temperatures will set in. The week will give local showers at its beginning and again after April 30, but on the whole it will be one of generally fair weather.

HONORABLE MENTION.

Not a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper. Among those who have this week enrolled themselves for more than one year in advance are:

TWO YEARS.

Heinly, Irwin W., Royersford, Pa.
Welsh, John P., Geneva, N. Y.
K. S. F. Co., Boone, Ia.
Harrold, C. W., Decatur, Ill.
Margrave, Susan, Hiawatha, Kan.
Thill, Wm. L., Du Quoin, Ill.
Nyflot, John, St. Louis, Mo.

The Review stops coming when the subscription runs out. The green notice with the last copy tells the story; no bills are run up; no duns sent.

FROM NEAR AND FAR.

The Review is printed almost at the exact center of population in the United States; there are as many people west of Chicago as east of Chicago, and fifty millions live within a night's ride of the office of The Review. But it is not where a paper is printed that makes for value to advertisers; it is where the paper is read that counts. Review readers are buyers. Like this:

Cut it out; it has done its work: The Review sure gives results.—Simon Humfeld, Muncie, Ind., April 21, 1915.

The Review is sure some reply getter; had forty replies to a 1-inch ad.—Geo. E. Valker, Minot, N. D., April 20, 1915.

The first insertion of my advertisement cleaned me up entirely; got many checks I had to return. —C. L. Niednagel, Evansville, Ind., April 20, 1915.

We are glad to say the results of our advertisements in The Review were very satisfactory. —P. Hopman & Zonen, Hillegom, Holland, April 6, 1915.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

The continued hot weather is perpetuating the unsatisfactory market conditions of the last two weeks. Stock of all kinds is plentiful and still pours in as an unabated flood. But there is a difference. Last week the stock, though abundant, was of high quality. This week, however, the stock is showing the effects of the prolonged heat and, with little exception, the quality is palpably inferior. So true is this that wholesalers are obliged to exercise a most unusual degree of care in selecting stock for shipping. As a matter of course, the general demand has not been sufficient to move stock in as large quantities as it did two

CARNATIONS
For MOTHERS' DAY

BECAUSE of many inquiries, we wish to announce that we expect to be able to supply Carnations for Mothers' Day on all orders that call for an assortment of colors—no white Carnations alone. We have a big supply, but we anticipate a record demand, so we advise ordering early—a full line of stock. Our supply is so large that we do not expect to advance prices for Mothers' Day over current quotations, except on Carnations. Order enough.

AMERICAN BEAUTIES

We call special attention to our Beauty crop. Really good Beauties have been scarce so long a lot of people will be glad to see such stock as we now offer. All lengths in quantity.

SPANISH IRIS

Try our Spanish Iris on your trade—unless your customers are different from others you will find this stock makes a hit.

FANCY ROSES

Your trade will appreciate the Roses that are NOT on every table—give them a chance to buy the newer varieties that we now have in fine and large supply—

Mrs. Russell Killarney Brilliant
Bulgarie Ophelia
Mrs. Ward Milady
White Killarney Killarney
Richmond Sunburst

Write for special quotations on quantities.

SNAPDRAGONS

If you used our Snapdragons last season, we need say nothing more than that the stock is fully as good as it was then, and that the supply is large. All colors, but specially strong on pink in two shades, light and dark.

FANCY SWEET PEAS

Now that the violet season is over, use our fancy Spencer Sweet Peas for your corsage work—you'll find the flowers will make a hit for you. Scarcely any limit to our supply.

You will find no finer Pansies, Daisies, Stocks, Mignonette, etc. We offer a large supply.

FANCY VALLEY ALWAYS ON HAND

We handle the Chicago Market Brand Valley exclusively. There is none better. A never-failing supply.

weeks ago, as the retailers hesitate to assume the handling of a commodity rendered ultra-perishable and not too tempting in appearance.

Carnations without number are in the market, but only a small per cent can make any pretense to being classed as high grade. By far the greater part of the receipts are soft, smaller in flower and weak in stem. Roses, with not the slightest tendency to be scarce, are in much the same form as carnations. The hot weather has forced buds to open prematurely, with small, soft blooms as the result. There are some good Beauties in all lengths. The condition of the bulbous stock would be pathetic if it were not for the fact that its season is practically at an end anyhow. Tulips come into the market wide open and remain there for the most part. Paper Whites and jonquils fail to tempt the buyers, and Easter lilies and callas have lost their attraction. Sweet peas have, perhaps, suffered more in quality and price than have either carnations or roses. There are many thousands of them and, while they nearly all sell at some price, the bulk of them are cleared at what the buyers will pay. Lilacs are coming into the market haltingly, but even here the weather has left its mark, for the stock looks undersized and dull. Beauties, orchids and smilax alone stand as, at least, partial exceptions to the general rule. Beauties of a standard grade sell well, and smilax has no difficulty in finding a ready market. Violets are gone, but Spanish iris is here in quantity to take its place. Snapdragon still is a glut.

There is a bright side, however, to even the present market conditions. There must inevitably be a reaction—a change for the better. All stock has been prematurely forced into crop, which just as surely is forcing it out of crop; and to this there can be but one result—a large decrease in supply within a comparatively short time. And add to this the fact that not a few of the commission houses have already booked a large number of orders for Memorial day. So after all, it is only a matter of perspective.

Flowers for Officials.

The private office of Chicago's new mayor, William Hale Thompson, was filled with flowers the morning of April 27. Aside from innumerable bouquets, there were several huge designs, some of them having figured in the parade of the previous day. They were: An American flag, made of red and white carnations and violets; a horseshoe, standing seven feet high, surmounted by a train of white carnations and asparagus; a yacht, six feet long, of white carnations and red roses; a steer made of red and white carnations; the emblem of the Illinois Athletic Club, made of red carnations, daffodils, Spanish iris, and lilac; an immense star with a glass eye in the center, from the Chicago Association of Detective Sergeants, made of red, pink and white carnations.

A list of the flowers in the private office of the new general superintendent of police, Charles C. Healey, would resemble a list of the exhibits in a flower show. There were fully twenty-five vases of long-stemmed Beauties. On the chief's desk was a large bunch of White Killarney roses, a token of the good wishes of the retiring chief, James Gleason. The large pieces were: A beautiful horseshoe with a horse's head in the center, done in pink roses, white carnations and Mexican ivy; an immense star of red roses and white carnations; a wheel, fully twelve feet in diameter, with a large horse's head in the center, emblematic of the traffic department, made of white and red roses; a Grecian urn, of pink roses and white carnations; a 7-foot horseshoe of red roses and calla lilies; a saddle of red roses and white sweet peas. The floral display was in charge of A. A. Craig, of J. C. Craig's flower store.

John Zech Seriously Ill.

John Zech, senior partner of Zech & Mann, lies seriously ill at Columbus hospital. Mr. Zech, who is known as making light of physical ills, was at the store as usual April 23, but called a physician that evening. Next day he was taken to the hospital and operated on by Dr. Thompson. The surgeons describe the case as one of ruptured appendix, a condition which always is dangerous, as it leads to peritonitis. Mr. Zech rallied well after the operation, which took about an hour, but April 26 his condition was such as to cause great alarm. April 27 the report from his bedside was that he was resting somewhat easier but that his condition still was one to cause anxiety.

At the last hearing of the H. A. Fisher case in Referee Banyon's Bankruptcy court, Kalamazoo, Mich., a first and final dividend of approximately six per cent was declared. The court was on the point of winding up the estate and discharging the trustee when Franklin Wood, attorney for F. S. Webb, of the Wholesale Florists' Credit Association, made a motion for a continuance on the grounds that he was getting together new and material testimony and has additional witnesses to examine. The motion was granted and the next hearing set for May 29. The

The Chicago Business Men's Prosperity Club is composed of a representative man from each trade. He must be the owner or head of a concern that has achieved material success. At the weekly luncheons and monthly dinners talks are given on the problems confronting each individual line of work and on the questions that demand an answer from business as a whole. Many of the names on the membership roll are those with which to conjure in the commercial world. The responsibility of presenting the florists' side of the question to such an aggregation of business acumen and commercial talent has fallen to the lot of H. Van Gelder, president of Percy Jones, Inc.

Notice is hereby served on all members of the trade that the next meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club, May 6, at the Bismarck hotel, will be of paramount interest to them and well worth their attendance. Mike Fink, chairman of the good of the club committee, has secured as the speaker of the evening, H. G. Fogleman, of the Sheldon School of Salesmanship, whose subject will be "Business Building and Salesmanship." All members of the trade and their friends are invited.

According to H. M. Oeser, of Poehlmann Bros. Co., there has been a phenomenal sale of palms during the last two weeks. This has rendered it necessary to add two houses to the palm department.

Philip C. Schupp, of J. A. Budlong's, spent April 25 hunting for paleolithic specimens. Only a few miles from the city, in a direction best known to himself, his search was rewarded with the discovery of a prehistoric grave. A few minutes' diligent work brought to light a flint cleaver sixteen inches long, three flint spear heads, two copper axe heads and a perfectly preserved amulet.

Prosperity day brought not a few orders for special wire designs to Joseph Ziska & Sons, among them one for a life-sized steer, two 6-foot yachts, six large flags, as many cornucopias, and one 7-foot bottle. In addition to this, they have the contract for the wire work on the stage in Orchestra hall.

In speaking of the commercial value to the trade of such a day as Prosperity day, A. L. Vaughan said that the institution of a festival week similar in character to the Mardi Gras of the south or the innumerable flower festivals of California, would redound to the benefit of the florists. Such a week, if assigned to a fixed place on the summer calendar, would serve to inject life into an otherwise dull season.

The ceremony was performed in Grace Lutheran church and the decorations went some little way toward clearing up the surplus of Easter lilies. The groom was Arthur L. Thoms.

According to Prof. H. C. Cowles, work on the new botanical gardens of the University of Chicago will begin soon. The site selected, northeast corner of Cottage Grove avenue and the Midway plaisance, could not have been more admirably chosen. The gardens will occupy the entire block and will be surrounded by a wall in harmony with the English Gothic architecture of the university buildings.

After an operation for appendicitis and a period of convalescence, William Graff, of Graff & Dressel, left Columbus hospital April 24. Mr. Graff was leaving just as John Zech arrived for a similar operation.

Twenty benches devoted to young stock are to be found in the greenhouses of Wietor Bros., even though several Beauty and rose houses already are replanted. The field planting of carnations has not yet begun, but will be the next big job tackled.

C. C. Wakeling is the grower in charge of the W. E. Lynch greenhouses on Harlem avenue. With a partner, he leased the place last fall. They have cut good stock, but prices have been too low this season for a carnation grower to make much money in a rented range.

Winterson's Seed Store decorated the Chinese float, the float representing the Cubs' baseball team and half a dozen automobiles for the Prosperity parade, E. F. Winterson and his staff working all day and all night April 25.

After three months of effort to get his plants back into shape after an attack of illuminating gas, P. M. Brodbeck this week has begun cutting a few roses. Quite a number of his plants were killed by the gas, but most of them are now in a fair state of health.

Mrs. George Wells, whose store is on Colorado avenue, had several big pieces for the Prosperity parade and the inauguration, April 26. For one of the pieces for a railroad organization the A. L. Randall Co. made a wire frame that embodied a train of cars and all the special activities of the new mayor.

The trade took an important part in the dedicatory exercises that attended the opening of the concrete road at Niles, April 22. Peter Reinberg, as president of the county board, wielded a gilded shovel in clearing the last bit of dirt from the pavement, on which Virginia Poehlmann, daughter of the president of the village of Morton Grove, broke a bottle of champagne as she cried, "I christen thee Milwaukee avenue." George Harrer, as president of the Niles Improvement Association, delivered the address of welcome.

There were a score of florists in the crowd.

The rise in real estate values at Wilmette, which is attracting considerable attention, promises to make the Pyfer & Olsem investment a fine one. They have ten acres of land surrounding the greenhouses.

The replanting operations at Peter Reinberg's have marked the passing of the Mrs. Ward rose. Sunburst now is the sole reliance for yellow. All the carnation plants were in the field April 23, an unusually early date.

Erection has begun on the two new Foley houses that will constitute Frank Schramm's fresh start in business at Crystal Lake, fifty miles northwest of the city.

It is reported that the police are not now the ones who are most concerned over the recent disappearance of F. C. Bargholtz.

Peter Reinberg appeared last week as the seller in an interesting transaction in vacant property northwest of town. He sold a tract at the northwest corner of Devon and Sacramento avenues, extended, 505.8x1,328.42 feet, for an indicated consideration of $22,500.

One of the week's visitors to this summer resort is E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind.

Charles Balluff ,of Indianoplis, has been visiting his sister on the south side. Mr. Balluff formerly was employed by the Hill Floral Co.

The Market.

The season's glut of flowers of all varieties seems to be about over, although there was an oversupply of American Beauty roses last week. The weather has been exceptionally warm and the roses now coming along are much smaller. Killarney seems to be getting poor and is being superseded by Brilliant and Queen. Mock is good and in fair supply. Aaron Ward and Sunburst are also quite good. Marylands are plentiful, but do not meet with a ready sale. Shawyer is fair in quality and demand. Carnations have been overplentiful, but the supply is letting up and prices are advancing. Spanish iris has sold well. Violets are rapidly going off the market, although a few good lots of Rhinebecks were to be had during the week. Sweet peas are not as plentiful as they have been and move better. Outside lilac is in full bloom, and meets with a fair sale. Gardenias are not as large as they have been, but are holding up well. While there has been a slight improvement in snapdragon sales, this flower is gradually losing its popularity. The Easter lily season is about over and only a small stock is being carried to meet the calls for funeral work. Calla lilies have been quite plentiful, but have failed to bring a price.

Funeral work has been plentiful and many large pieces were called for on the death of a prominent naval official and an equally prominent railroad official. The spring meeting of the Daughters of the American Revolution brought considerable business, both in the way of tea and dinner decorations and corsage bouquets and cut flowers. This boosted the demand for orchids and gardenias and created a demand for yellow and white daisies and English primroses.

Various Notes.

Charles Scarborough, with Gude Bros. Co., has returned to this city from his home in Pennsylvania, where he has been recuperating from the recent street car accident in which he was hurt. Earl Wilson, with the same firm, is still on the sick list with a badly poisoned arm.

Wallace W. Kimmell, the recently elected chairman of the club of retail florists, is extremely gratified with the support that organization is being given. The object of the club is primarily that of waging war upon the vendors of flowers who infest the streets. Plans were brought near to completion at the meeting held last week at the Hotel Hudson for the making of an endeavor to secure either adequate and new legislation or the enforcement of such laws as may now be on the statute books, which deal with this evil. The selling of potted plants, bulbs and cut flowers by the department stores was also given consideration. During the course of the evening the members enjoyed an excellent lunch. Other officers selected were H. T. Leapley, secretary, and William Marche, treasurer.

Among the visitors in town during the week were Sidney H. Bayersdorfer, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., and J. W. Grandy, Jr., of Norfolk, Va.

The next meeting of the Florists' Club is scheduled for May 4. The officers are considering holding the meeting at one of the downtown hotels and having the meeting a get-together affair. A special entertainment will be

The Market.

The weather last week was mild, with some sunshine, bringing great quantities of cut stock into the market and lowering prices to a marked degree. There has been considerable funeral work, which created an outlet for some of the cut stock, but so overwhelmingly abundant is the supply that little impression was made on it. Tulips, daffodils, jonquils, narcissi, daisies, mignonette, sweet peas, forget-me-nots, swainsonas and snapdragons are here in great quantities. Killarney, Ward, Shawyer, Maryland and Sunburst roses flood the market and are cheap. All grades of Beauties are cheap; the quality, however, is excellent. Harrisii lilies and callas are somewhat scarce. Valley is poor and scarce. There are some excellent cattleyas, although they are somewhat pale in color. Orchid peas continue to arrive in large quantities. There are plants for sale in big lots, although the assortment consists mostly of hydrangeas, ramblers, spiræas, tulips, scillas and hyacinths. There also are some good geraniums. Transient trade is quiet.

Various Notes.

S. A. Anderson's "4 o'clock" box of flowers is growing in favor. He is giving it wider publicity by displaying a large sign on his auto, which reads, "Get the habit; take home a 4 o'clock box."

W. J. Palmer & Son had a fine floral horseshoe in the parade at the opening of the baseball season last week.

John G. Pickelman has moved into his new store, at 205 Genesee street, east. The store has a modern, up-to-date front of large plate glass with prism, leaded glass above, containing ventilators, an important adjunct to a florist's front windows. There are two large show windows, lined with mirrors. The front of the store and all the woodwork is done in white. The interior is fitted out with large beveled mirrors, which fill in nearly all the wall space and make the store look twice its natural size. Tnere is a fine ribbon case, with sanitary glass shelves. The case is divided into two sections, with a mirror in the center. Several large brown Crex rugs cover part of the floor space. He has a good refrigerator, which is done in white. The workroom in the rear of the store is well equipped. It has a skylight with a ventilator, making it light and airy. Mr. Pickelman reports that trade has increased considerably since he has been in the new store; this speaks well for the drawing power of an attractive store and a good display of stock. The trade wishes him continued success in his new stand.

William Ehmann, of Corfu, has some good peas, carnations, marguerites, etc. His houses are in excellent shape. Such was the report of the Buffalo party that visited Corfu last week. The Scott and Vischards greenhouses were also in apple-pie order. The Corfu reception committee met the Buffalo party at the depot. After a tour of inspection, the visiting florists were taken by auto to Batavia for the bowling match between Buffalo and Rochester. The contest was a strenuous one. Buffalo won by one point. The Buffalo boys brought back the Lord & Burnham trophy and will hold it until next year. A splendid dinner was served at the Richmond House and everybody had a good time. S. A. Anderson did so much rooting for the Buffalo boys that he was hoarse for several days. He did not want to see the boys lose, so kept spurring them on by his cheers and suffered the penalty afterward of not being able to speak above a whisper.

David Scott is now cutting his giant snapdragons, yellow, pink and white. In quality they are superb, surpassing almost any others grown in western New York. E. C. A.

Roses

The cut of Roses has been very large, and in filling your orders for Roses, you will find we will give you a better grade than at quoted prices. We are offering you unusually good value in Roses, and at $3.00 and $5.00 we will give you a grade of stock you can use for most any purpose.

They are still coming in in large quantities, and it is up to you to take advantage of the large supply and the reasonable prices.

Beauties always make a better showing than any other flower, especially when they are well grown.

Let us quote you when in the market —you cannot do better elsewhere.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

A Philadelphia shoe factory sold last week 8,000 pairs of patent leather shoes to a New York shoe jobbing house at 71 cents per pair. Perhaps this fact will clearly bring out the point that in other branches of business besides our own the quantity buyer obtains a better price than the buyer who takes a moderate number carefully selected. But it hardly seems likely that any of us get our patent leather shoes, if we wear them, at or anywhere near 71 cents a pair. The quantity buyer in the flower market today has an advantage. Just take a few thousand of this, that or the other kind of flowers, not selected, and you will find out.

The market shows a slight change for the week ending April 28, over the previous week. The change consists principally in better prices on the lower grades of stock and on quantity lots, while the prices on high grades are hardly so good with some houses, though unchanged with others. We have had the temperature over 90 degrees, an almost unprecedented occurrence for April, which has kept the supply up to the high-water mark of the previous week. There is considerable business for moderate numbers of selected flowers, and an enormous business in unselected flowers at shockingly low prices. The receipts are so heavy that it takes special effort on the part of growers, transportation companies and wholesalers to get the flowers into and out of the market in a businesslike way. Everyone is taxed to the utmost and everyone longs for a return to normal conditions. This return is predicted soon after seasonable weather arrives.

Beyond these broad facts there are only a few particulars worthy of note. Greens are becoming more plentiful; while in demand, there are quite enough to fill the orders. Outdoor daffodils and indoor tulips are good and plentiful. Sweet peas have felt the heat, but the new crops promise to maintain quality as the old ones retrograde. Violets are about over. Delphiniums, indoor grown, are quite a factor. Spanish iris is plentiful, the yellow much more so than the purple, white and bronze; this makes the difference in price, the former usually bringing less than the other three. Fine outdoor lilac has come.

New Method of Propagating.

Gormley Montgomery, of Toronto, describes a new method of rose propagation that has been in vogue at the establishment of his uncle, J. H. Dunlop, for the last two years. It consists in combining the advantages of grafts and own root in one plant. The method is to start the little Manetti plants in soil until they have made fine, white rootlets. Then the Manetti are cut off rather low and the scion is securely grafted over the cut. Then the young grafted plant is placed in the propagating bed, instead of in a case, the graft being placed below the level of the sand. The object is to secure two sets of roots, one from the stock, the other from the scion. This process usually takes thirty days, after which the plants are potted up and should grow rapidly. The aim is to secure big plants that will grow freely and strongly during the short Canadian summer.

A Cut Flower House.

Every Philadelphian knows that there is one grower who has a large cut flower house all to himself. It is fully equipped with every modern convenience and does business in a thoroughly modern way. To find it you walk south on Mole street to the end and then straight into 1526 Ranstead street. There the Joseph Heacock Co. has its city headquarters. There the manager, Carl A. Corts, distributes the output of Roelofs and of Wyncote. Mr. Corts is thoroughly businesslike and always cheerful. When business is good he tells you so; when it is bad he discusses the weather or any other topic that presents a cheerful outlook. The place is always interesting, for there you see good stock, you see it well handled, and you get quickly in touch with the great wholesale and retail houses that surround it.

Various Notes.

H. Bayersdorfer and Mrs. Bayersdorfer will sail on the steamer Manchuria from San Francisco for Japan May 15. What do you think of that?

Recent visitors include Frank Houghton, of the Houghton-Gorney Co., and William J. Stuart, of Boston; Frank Graves and W. E. Gibson, of the Zieger Co., Pittsburgh; Theodore Edwards, Bridgeton, N. J., and William Swayne, of Kennett, Pa.

George Burton, president of the Florists' Club, was taken to the Chestnut Hill hospital late on the evening of April 21, where an operation for appendicitis was performed. At last accounts Mr. Burton was doing well. His friends, who are legion, earnestly hope for a speedy and complete recovery.

L. P. Rankin, of Lansdowne, Pa., has leased the greenhouses of W. W. Foster, at Riverside, near Westerly, R. I. Mr. Rankin is foreman for William A. Leonard. He will assume charge of his new place May 1 or May 15.

Raymond Brunswick, secretary and treasurer of the M. Rice Co., has unfortunately fractured his arm, which is now in a plaster cast. Mr. Brunswick was not aware when the accident happened, but believes it must have been caused by strenuous horseback scout wrestling; the game is to throw the other fellow off his horse. Mr. Brunswick is plucky and simply mentioned the matter incidentally.

Myers & Samtman are installing a thoroughly modern cold storage plant with automatic stop at their place at Wyndmoor, Pa. Even in an off year they progress.

The accounts of George S. Hampton and Jack Neidinger point to a heavy increase in the Memorial day demand for grasses, magnolia wreaths and prepared flowers at Joseph G. Neidinger's.

A. Dreer, Inc., stated that his house has steadily pushed ahead of last year during January, February and March, while April is showing a more pronounced gain than any of its predecessors.

William J. Baker and William Swayne jitneyed to the ball game April 24.

The Robert Craig Co. has its houses completely filled with well grown spring stock of its own production that has replaced the Easter plants with wondrous celerity. The dracænas are superb.

The Henry F. Michell Co. place, at Andalusia, is bright with a gorgeous display of tulips in many colors. The perennials are coming along well.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co. report that a shipment of Italian wheat intended for making wheat sheaves is held at Naples, Italy, on the ground that it may be required for food.

Mark Patent Mills suggests a meeting between the growers and retailers wherein the growers will announce their intention of growing fewer flowers and more vegetables and the retailers will ask protection for their customers who have been enjoying the low prices of flowers and naturally will not want to pay more.

A. L. Fortunes finds a satisfactory demand for greens.

A local paper caused a stir by announcing that Sunday, May 2, would be Mothers' day in an article of nearly a column. All the wholesalers called this paper up on the telephone and were told they were wrong in saying it should be May 9, until one of them produced the act of Congress passed last year making the second Sunday in May Mothers' day for the nation. Then the paper retracted. Edward Reid says, "Maybe we can have two Mothers' days."

Alvah R. Jones has returned from a week's business trip up the state. The sentiment of the meeting of the chairmen of the national flower show committees, April 14, was strongly opposed to New York holding a flower show of importance at or about the same time as the national flower show.

KANSAS CITY.

The Market.

The market has slightly improved, but still there is an overproduction of cut flowers, except in the better grade of stock, which brings a fair price and always finds a buyer. As to the cheaper grades, only dry goods stores and any florists who want a sale day are buying them and are not paying enough for them to clear the expenses of cutting. Funeral work was heavy last week, as well as social work. The bedding plant season has started and the demand is unusually heavy for so early in the season. Even porch boxes were filled and delivered last week, Club Banquet.

The Florists' Club held its banquet at the Coates House Monday evening, April 19. An excellent musicale also was furnished for the evening. Over forty plates were served and all the participants were members of the club. Some nice talks were made. The next meeting will be held May 3.

The Florists' Club is after the newspapers here, to induce them to give Mothers' day a boost. The club could do much more good if it had the help of the rest of the florists of this vicinity, not only in this one instance, but on other occasions. Every florist in the city is asked to be present at the next meeting.

Various Notes.

Stevens & Hepting have decided to plant their whole range of glass with carnations, thus increasing the number of plants about one-quarter.

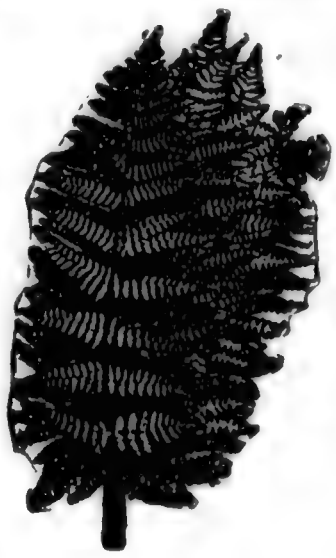
Adolph Mohr is contemplating the building of greenhouses on the place he purchased last fall, at Seventy-eighth street and Broadway. He reports business as excellent.

Business across the state line has been good all the week, with plenty of funeral work and more decorations than usual. Jas. B. Masson has his bedding stock in good shape and is well satisfied with the way spring business has started.

T. J. Noll & Co. report that business is all that could be expected in the cut flower line. He is receiving some exceptionally fine roses and carnations.

Mount St. Mary's Greenhouses are well filled with bedding stock, though this firm had only a short time to prepare the plants.

August Luther, Jr., reports business first-class. He has his house filled at present with a good line of 3-inch to 5-inch potted stock.



R. S. Brown & Son have shipped more bedding stock to the south this spring than in any previous year.

there have been no great spurts, things have moved along steadily. The bulbous potted stock is diminishing. Azaleas, rhododendrons and rambler roses are also nearly over, but some good spiræas are seen. Hardy azaleas are coming nicely and sell freely. The rains and warm weather have hurried along the outdoor bulbs and many growers are making frequent cuttings. The supply of roses is meeting all demands and the stock is of the finest. Some especially fine Ophelia, Russell and Sunburst have been on the market and they are not difficult to dispose of. There is an abundance of My Maryland. Beauties of various grades are in good shape and sell well. The carnation supply is good. A lot of dark shades are on the market, but do not sell well. Beautiful colors are seen in snapdragons, which are readily disposed of. There is a good supply of jonquils and daffodils. Sweet peas are arriving in fair quantities and the orchid varieties are much in demand. The violet season is almost at an end and the violets that arrive are inferior. Orchids and gardenias move pretty well. Easter lilies are slowing up a little, but the supply of callas is large. Valley does not move fast.

Various Notes.

Mrs. Levis, on Shepard street, is cutting some extra fine orchid-flowering sweet peas and finds a ready sale for them.

Stanley T. Cogger, formerly of this city, but now of Melrose, Mass., is now with C. Keur & Sons, of Hillegom, Holland. He visited the trade here last week and secured several orders.

I am sorry to announce that Mrs. Dunbar, wife of John Dunbar, assistant superintendent of parks, met with a painful accident April 21. It appears that she was alighting from a street car, when she fell, receiving a bad shock and some minor injuries. A nearby physician rendered first aid and she was conveyed to her home. It is reported that she is making satisfactory progress.

The Maurer-Haap Co. is doing a good business in nursery stock. The firm has some fine specimens on view at the store front.

Morris Cohen, who for several years has been with Wertheimer Bros., New York, visited Rochester last week and informed us that he has started in business for himself and is making his first trip in this territory.

H. E. Wilson had two extra heavy days with funeral work. Most of the work was for the funeral of Frank Ritter, president of the Ritter Dental Co.

Miss Gertrude Gebhardt spent the week end in Albion, N. Y.

About twenty-five members of the Rochester Florists' Association and about the same number of men from Buffalo met at Batavia to play the last and deciding bowling game, April 21. Fate surely was against the Rochester team and Buffalo won by one pin. A happy time was spent and our party reached Rochester about 1 o'clock. We heartily congratulate Buffalo on its success, though we regret losing the contest ourselves. The Lord & Burnham trophy is now safely with the Buffalo boys and is their property. H. J. H.

Wheaton, Ill.—R. Scheffler, who bought out his employer, E. T. Wanzer, in February, 1914, has had a highly successful first year in business, in spite of the fact that carnations are his principal crop, for Mr. Scheffler has had excellent quality right along, with good cuts. He also did well with his stevia this season.

TWELVE PAGES OF RETAILERS' CARDS

This department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists — those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists — has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share — well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today — now — before you forget it?

TOLEDO, O.

The Market.

Extremely hot weather has put a crimp in the florists' business. The temperature having reached 98 degrees in the shade during the last week, the market is glutted with flowers of all kinds. Florists have been having a hard time to keep flowers fresh and bright, and extreme troubles are realized in funeral work.

Roses are in fine trim, as are carnations, only the latter do not hold up well in this weather. There is still some bulbous stock on the market, but the demand for this is gradually dying off. There has been some fine snapdragon on the market this week and it always finds ready sale. Sweet peas are fine and plentiful and the cut is well taken care of, due to the many dances and other social functions after the Lenten season.

Various Notes.

Clayton Beaubion, junior member of the Toledo Florists' Club, who mysteriously disappeared from his home Palm Sunday, was found by the police in Dayton, O. He gave no reasons for leaving home.

A terrific hail storm that lasted for more than ten minutes, April 24, did considerable damage to many florists in this vicinity. It was noted as the worst hail storm this locality has had in fifteen years.

Thomas Magee, of the Scottwood Greenhouses, has been confined to his home for two weeks. While carrying an armful of shrubs, he accidentally stepped off a platform a foot above the ground and tore the ligaments in his right leg. It will be some time before he can resume his duties at the store and greenhouse.

John Oswald, of the Paul Timm greenhouses, is passing cigars around. The stork left a baby girl.

Emil Kuhnke, who is renowned for never refusing a down-and-out a job in his greenhouses, has lost another man, one who had been with him only three days, killed on the railroad track that passes through his premises. About a month ago an employee who was deaf was crossing the track and was struck by a train and instantly killed. This makes three accidentally killed at the Kuhnke greenhouses in the last year. He thinks that possibly he will not be bothered so much in the future by men eager to find employment, when they hear of this accident.

At a meeting of the Toledo Florists' Club, at the store of S. N. Peck, much important business was transacted. The Sunday closing plan was brought up, but nothing definite was reached. Some favor the idea of closing at noon on Sunday, but some are bitterly opposed to it. As the result of the lack of harmony on this question, it was decided to carry the discussion over to the next meeting. A. C. Kneisel, the advertising and publicity man of the club, spoke for about an hour on the subject, "Why It Pays to Advertise." Mr. Kneisel told of the benefits of the coöperative ad of the Toledo florists for Mothers' day last year and urged all the members to get together and boost the day this year. The bowling teams ended their sessions last week and reported at the meeting. There always is much strife between the east side and west side florists in athletics and again the west side team came out victorious. The high men on the west side team were Kneisel, Spanner, Metz, Peck, Nusbaum and Timm. The annual picnic was discussed but nothing done. It was decided to hold off making arrangements until George Bayer, chairman of athletics for the club, makes his report. G. B. S.

BOSTON.

The Market.

Although on occasional days there have been fairly good clean-ups, business on the whole continues poor in the wholesale markets, and prices show further recessions from a week ago. This has been because the demand was feeble and the output heavy in spite of cool weather for the season. The present week opened with higher temperatures, and far more cut flowers are arriving than can be sold. Roses have been in heavy oversupply, and prices have tended steadily downwards, reaching as low as $5 per thousand in some cases. Best Beauties make $3 per dozen with difficulty; this for flowers on 6-foot stems. Ophelia is being affected by the warmer weather, and the color is not so good, yet it sells quite well, as do Hadley, Russell, and Killarney Queen. Double White Killarney and Dark Pink Killarney are both good and preferred to other Killarney forms. They promise to make good summer varieties. Taft is popular, also Christie-Miller and Ward. Carnations are in much heavier supply; only the best flowers reach $2 per hundred. With warmer weather the demand is more for spring flowers, to the disadvantage of both roses and carnations.

Some double violets still come in, but they are nearing the end. English primroses are abundant, but are not selling well. Spanish iris is a veritable glut, and narcissi and tulips are only cleared at low prices. Double cornflowers sell better than any other flowers on the market. Yellow marguerites are in heavy supply, but clean up tolerably well. Some good Mrs. Sander are coming in. There is no improvement in the sale of snapdragons; bright pink seems to be the only color wanted. Pansies have dropped in price, but meet with large sales. Lilies are selling low, $2 to $3 per hundred being all that good flowers made April 26. Valley meets with a slow sale. Cattleya Mossiæ is abundant and lower in price. Sweet peas vary in price tremendously. Good Spencers sell well, but there are quantities of short-stemmed flowers cleared at 10 cents to 25 cents per hundred. Gladiolus Peach Blossom and Blushing Bride are not yet plentiful and sell well. In green goods, trade is quiet. Plant trade is slightly better.

Various Notes.

W. B. Goodenow, of Stoughton, is shipping in some good anemones. His double violets have done well this season. He expects to pick until about May 10.

There was an attendance of thirty-five at the first field day held by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society at the Arnold Arboretum April 22. Larger attendances are probable at future gatherings.

At Galvin's Park street store some beautifully flowered plants of Dendrobium thyrsiflorum were noted April 26. Business here has been good of late, funeral orders being numerous.

J. M. Cohen, of the Coöperative Market, sold 40,000 carnations April 23 and 24 for tag days in Somerville, Hyde Park and Maine, in addition to his regular trade, which called for many thousands more.

J. K. Chandler & Son, of Tewksbury, have had wonderful success with yellow marguerites this season. The flowers are large and carried on long stems. The firm will build another large house this summer to devote to their culture.

Albert Roper reports all his new seedlings, including Alice Coombs and Grace, looking fine. He has 60,000 young stock, which he hopes to start planting in the field about May 6. Like all other growers, he reports that the ground is distressingly dry.

Vernon T. Sherwood, formerly of Boston and now in business at Charlestown, N. H., says business is active, the only trouble being in producing goods fast enough for the demand.

Paul E. Richwagen is still cutting Purity freesia. His pink snapdragon, Virginia, proves extremely popular.

A. J. Montgomery, salesman for his father, Robert Montgomery, is convalescing nicely from an operation performed at the Natick hospital, and hopes soon to be at work again. Meantime, his father proves an efficient salesman, all his roses being gone unless the market is visited early.

Norris F. Comley lost a large quantity of cord wood in a disastrous forest fire which raged near his Burlington greenhouses last week. He is shipping Spencer sweet peas in large quantities now, in addition to carnations.

ites. He says Mrs. Sander nets him the most money.

The Houghton-Gorney Co. had one window devoted to herbaceous calceolarias April 26. They also had a fine orchid display.

The Boston Cut Flower Co. had some large funeral orders last week. They are having a large sale on bargain boxes of roses at 50 cents each.

Several large shipments of evergreens and deciduous stock are on the S. S. Pomeranian, which sailed from Glasgow March 27 and had to put into the Halifax drydock with a broken propeller. The Allan line can not say when she will arrive in Boston, and owners of perishable stock are naturally worried.

At Penn's there have been a good many wedding orders of late, these commencing April 19. Funeral orders continue in large volume.

Paine Bros., of Randolph, are cutting fine Gladiolus Peach Blossom and Blushing Bride, also sweet peas and callas, in addition to their big line of narcissi and tulips now nearing a close.

At the Blue Hill Nurseries, evergreens have wintered better than in other local nurseries, thanks to its altitude and exposure. The chief losses were in Retinospora filifera and Thuya occidentalis.

April so far has proved largely false to its tradition, which makes it a month of showers. We had one snowfall and one shower of rain, but the ground is distressingly dry, streams are almost dry and wells are running low.

Visitors last week included Walter Gott, representing Sander & Sons, St. Albans, England, and J. S. Hay, from H. A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia.

ST. LOUIS
J. J. BENEKE, 1216 Olive Street

Winthrop Square, May 3. This store is favorably located next door to the Coöperative Market and across the street from the Exchange. Mr. Welch states that he has been requested by certain growers to handle their product, which he has consented to do. He will at the same time retain his interest in Welch Bros. Co., at 226 Devonshire street, of which he is president. The business under his personal management will be conducted absolutely as wholesale. He will be assisted by experienced salesmen whose knowledge of the wholesale cut flower business is well established. Paul Regan will be Mr. Welch's manager.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

The wholesale cut flower market was in a demoralized condition in the week ending April 24. The greatest glut of the season was on, with the prices so low that on big lots the buyer made his own price. One wholesaler says the receipts were by far the heaviest in years. This was due to the beautiful, warm weather. Outdoor stock, too, is coming in heavily. Lilac, valley, narcissi and daffodils crowded the market to its full capacity all the week long and they are looking for this week's receipts to be equally heavy.

Carnations are of extra good quality. The bulk of the stock sold as low as $4 and $5 per thousand and extra fancy stock at from $7.50 to $10 per thousand. Fancy roses sold well, but at only fair prices. Killarneys were in the majority and extra good stock rarely went over $3 per hundred. Valley, lilies and snapdragons held up well, but tulips, sweet peas, daisies, narcissi and daffodils hardly had a price until the end of the week, when some increase in the demand developed.

Business is not dull; there was plenty of it last week, but there was too much stock and extremely low prices made small profits, funerals alone holding up their end.

Various Notes.

The Retail Florists' Association held its monthly meeting, April 19, in Washington hotel. President Charles Young was in the chair. Secretary Weber reported a good attendance. The Easter business and the credit system were fully discussed. Three new members were elected, Joseph Medic, J. J. Windler and John Bohrm. Treasurer Geranios tendered his resignation, which was accepted. The next meeting will take place May 17. After this the association will not meet again until fall unless a special occasion arises.

Charles Young, manager of the retail store of C. Young & Sons Co., says mail orders for plants and seeds are coming in heavily, while local trade is ahead of any previous year.

The great tulip display at the Missouri Botanical Garden attracted thousands of visitors. Superintendent Ohlweiler says the display this year greatly surpasses last year.

The Mullanphy Flower Co., at Seventh and Locust streets, is making unusually fine window displays. The head decorator here, Otto Sander, is an artist at that kind of work. These windows are a great attraction at this busy corner.

Fred Foster distributed handbills last week in the downtown district, stating that he was selling carnations at 12½ cents per dozen and only eight dozen to one customer, this to prevent the other flower stores from buying them up. He says several thousand were sold daily.

David Geddis has returned from his Chicago trip.

The plantsmen in the south end surely have their hands full these warm days, when everyone wants flower beds planted at the same time. Among them are Schray's, Beyer's, Fillmore's, Held's, Walther's and Meyer's. Extra help was put to work at all these places.

The trustees of the Florists' Club, Messrs. Rowe, Windler and Ossick, say they have something good in store for the members at the next meeting, May 13. The secretary is preparing strong notices to all members.

Herman Herbig, 62 years old, gardener for Henry Buppel, fell unconscious while at work April 24 and died in an ambulance on the way to the City hospital.

The Metropolitan Floral Co., which has been doing business for the last five years at 502 North Grand avenue, has closed its doors and the proprietor, Alexander P. Geranios, with Mrs. Geranios, is reported to have left for the north.

F. H. Weber reports that since Easter his business in social work has been large.

The Lady Florists' Home Circle will again be entertained on the south side at its next meeting, May 12. Mrs. Windler will be the hostess, at her home on South Virginia avenue, and a large attendance is promised her.

Grimm & Gorly have again placed a baseball team in the Business Men's League. Frank X. Gorly will manage the team, as usual.

Carnations sold so cheaply last week that it hardly paid the grower for cutting them and it looks as if it will be continued this week. We wonder what the public will think of the situation when Mothers' day comes, as then the wholesale price generally goes up to 4 and 6 cents, while now the price is from $3 to $5 per thousand. Here's hoping the goose that laid the

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, Lester L. Morse, San Francisco, Cal.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

Thirty-third annual convention, San Francisco, Cal., June 22 to 24, 1915.

CURIOUSLY, perhaps, Belgium is reported to have bought unusual quantities of vegetable and field seeds in Holland this season.

IN all Europe the acreage for seed crops is reported to be much reduced this season because of the promise of unusually high prices of farm and garden crops.

MIDSUMMER weather over a large section of the country in the last week has brought a tremendous rush of counter trade, but the condition has been unwelcome. A short season seldom is a good season. The trade makes the most out of a long period of steady demand.

THE freight on Chinese narcissus bulbs this season, Hongkong to the United States, will be 55 cents per hundred pounds, as against 50 cents last season, according to an announcement of an advance in transpacific freight rates issued by the U. S. Department of Commerce.

ONION sets are practically out of the wholesale market. Of course, the commission merchants have quantities of them to sell, but they are of an inferior grade and bring little better than half the usual price. Most of the large seed houses cleared well before the break in the quotations.

THE situation in the seed trade is normal in all departments except that of supply. There is a good call from the pickle growers for onion seed, cabbage for sauerkraut, and for cucumber. All seem to be impressed with the fact that there will be a large demand for this class of goods. Their calculations are based on the war conditions.

WITH the mail-order seed season drawing rapidly to a close, it appears that the volume of business on the whole hardly has come up to expectations. It has been a not bad season, but scarcely a record-breaker for the older houses. It appears that the natural increase in seed requirements that comes with increasing population is about all swallowed up by the new concerns coming into the business.

THE problem of having a trained sales force that can be expanded to cope with a rush or contracted to fit normal conditions has been solved by Arnold Ringier, of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago. He has taken the trouble to train all of the young ladies in the office force in the essentials of salesmanship and educate them in the stock they are handling. Mr. Ringier says it is much easier to break

SYSTEM

Most florists have no system. Many of them remind you of a fellow who had mussed around growing stuff outdoors until it snowed on him and spoiled his crop, and compelled him to erect some glass over his dirt pile to save his hide. A florist should know just what his plant can produce. He should study every foot of it, and make it yield the largest return possible. He should particularize in the subject of greenhouse waste until he absolutely minimizes it. He should plan his work ahead and make his employees do just exactly as he instructs them. He should operate on futures, not on post-mortems, and seldom on present conditions. And remember the words of B. Franklin: "Light gains, heavy purse." Sell your flowers at reasonable prices and sell as many people as you can. Never mind the man who practices the big-profit-on-small-volume policy—he is on the toboggan en route to the bankruptcy court. The future florist business will be done successfully on volume, just as all other big business has always been done. Horseshoe Brand lily bulbs in quantity have always paid big growers—men who do things in a big way and do them well. Paid them a little better than any other brand ever did—that's the reason they always buy them.

in a new stenographer in times of emergency than it is to get satisfactory results from a novice on the sales floor.

THE Holland government has withdrawn its prohibition of the export of clover seed and is expected shortly to permit the exportation of Holland-grown grass seeds.

THE Leonard Seed Co., Chicago, reports the heaviest run of trade in its retail stores in several years. The wholesale department is continually rushed getting out fill-in orders.

IMPLIED WARRANTY OF SEEDS.

As Decided in Kentucky Courts.

When a seller of grain shipped to him from another point tells the buyer that his knowledge concerning its fitness for seeding purposes is limited to information derived from others, through whom he purchased the grain, the law will not imply any warranty on his part as to the fitness of the grain for seeding purposes. In deciding this point in the case of Yandell vs. Anderson & Spilman, 174 Southwestern Reporter 480, the Kentucky Court of Appeals recognizes the general rule of law that a sale of grain for seeding purposes may imply a warranty on the part of the seller of its fitness for those purposes, where the circumstances clearly point to intent to make such a warranty.

Plaintiff bought a quantity of wheat from defendants, millers, and brought suit for damages on the theory that there was an implied warranty of the wheat's fitness as seed, and a breach of that warranty.

The Dealers Acquitted.

The jury which tried the case returned verdict in favor of defendants under an instruction which read as follows:

"Although you may believe from the evidence that the defendants sold the wheat to plaintiff for the purpose of sowing same, yet, if you further believe from the evidence that the defendants, at the time or before plaintiff purchased the 231 bushels of wheat for seeding purposes, they or either of them told plaintiff that they knew nothing about the wheat, either as to its name or its kind, except what they were informed by Green & Co. in respect to same, through the letters, telegrams and inspector's receipts received from Green & Co., and sold it alone upon the statements set out in this instruction, or their substance, there was, in law, no warranty as to said wheat."

Governed by Facts of Sale.

In upholding this instruction as a correct statement of the law, the Court of Appeals said:

"While a warranty that seeds are reasonably suitable for the purpose for which they are sold may be implied from the circumstances attending the sale, yet the facts under which the sale is made may be such as to repel this

Speaking of Birds

We have often wondered how the bee catcher handles the hot end of his prey. We have many times watched this sharp-eyed bird gracefully glide from tree top and, snapping the busy bee in mid-air, return to the same perch and make a merry feast. We came to the conclusion that it was his business.

Some folk have wondered how we could produce a Snapdragon that would give so many more blooms than the old types of this plant. But that's our business, and so long as it is our business—our principal business—you don't have to worry. We have the goods and our prices are right. We are still selling implication. This frequently happens where the purchaser and seller have equal means of knowledge as to the kind or fitness of the thing for the purpose for which it is sold, and where the seller informs the purchaser that he has no knowledge of the article purchased. NOTICE

To all American Nurserymen and Seedsmen desiring to keep in touch with commercial horticulture in England and the continent of Europe: Your best means of doing this is to take in the

Horticultural Advertiser

Our circulation covers the whole trade in Great Britain and the cream of the European firms. Impartial reports of all novelties, etc. Paper free on receipt of 75 cents, covering cost of postage yearly. As the H. A. is a purely trade medium, applicants should, with the subscription, send a copy of their catalogue or other evidence that they belong to the nursery or seed trade.

Chrysanthemum

By Arthur Herrington

Formerly president Chrysanthemum Society of America.

The most complete and comprehensive work on the cultivation of the chrysanthemum that has yet been published in America. Its scope and character may be gleaned from the list of contents, which comprises chapters on composts; planting; benches, boxes or pots; general cultural details; crown and terminal buds; feeding, its object and application; care of the buds; exhibition and judging; specimen plants, plants in pots; raising from seed and hybridizing; sports; hardy chrysanthemums; chrysanthemums for south and west; insect pests and diseases; classification and selection of varieties for special purposes; history of the chrysanthemum, etc. The book will be welcomed for the lucid, comprehensive, as well as the practical character of its contents. Handsomely illustrated. 168 pages, 5x7 inches. Price 50c postpaid.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Grass Valley, Cal.—A. O. Grassl, formerly at Oakland, Cal., and later at Barrington, Ill., has, it is reported, a new carnation, which he calls Peach Blossom.

Coeur d'Alene, Idaho.—Adolph Donart has purchased the interest of M. C. Louis in the firm of Donart & Louis. Five years ago Mr. Donart came from Seattle, Wash., and established the present greenhouse business at Coeur d'Alene. Two years ago he decided to double the capacity of the range and took Mr. Louis into the firm.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

The opening days of the week have been poor, with practically nothing selling, according to the retailers. Funeral work dropped off and there was nothing to take its place, so the flowers piled up. It is to the credit of the retailers, however, that they still keep after trade by fine window displays. It is certain that the stores in this city never before looked so well, taking the season through, as they have this year, and this in the face of business conditions that have been by no means encouraging. The outdoor roses are now at their best and brightest, while many other flowers are coming in, serving to liven up the stores, even if they do not sell. Plants are conspicuously absent; the only ones of any consequence are ferns and foliage subjects.

The Pasadena Show.

The Pasadena show, in spite of the smash-up when the tent was blown over, turned out quite satisfactorily after all and it was a most creditable display that President Shields offered the Pasadena public. A good number of trade exhibits were staged, as well as those of private gardeners, and the quality of all was better than I remember seeing heretofore at a local show.

Ed Rust put up a pretty group of flowering shrubs and plants, including some elegant rambler roses, lilacs, laburnums and others. Opposite was a large and artistic group by the Germain Seed & Plant Co., of Los Angeles, in which fine kentias made up the background, while the front was cleverly worked out in flowering and foliage plants by the firm's nursery foreman, John Robertson. Lily of the valley, weigela and philadelphus were the principal flowering stock. The golden yellow privet, Aristolochia Sipho and golden honeysuckle were used for foliage in conjunction with ferns. The Clemence Nurseries always have a showy group, and although the plants had been through the ordeal of the tent incident before being taken to the new place, the result was excellent.

The first prize in the private gardeners' section was taken by Mr. Shields with a group that was most artistically displayed. W. Hutchinson took second place with a flatter arrangement but excellent plants.

H. W. Turner, of Montebello, showed September Morn, Ahrenberg, Killarney and other roses in good shape. J. Teekamp had some excellent tulips. Other trade groups came from Campbell's Seed Store, Morris & Snow Seed Co., Laurie's, Patton Seed Co. and others. The attendance was good, considering the change of venue at the last minute.

Various Notes.

Fred Howard, of Howard & Smith, says that Montebello is going to be the "Shrewsbury of America," and he has started in by making an elegant exhibit at the Montebello flower show, held this week. The exhibit was in the form of a Maltese cross and contained a large quantity of the elegant stock for which this nursery is famous. H. W. Turner showed good roses. Polder & Groen had a fine exhibit of cut flowers; so, also, had the H. N. Gage Co. The show was kept open three days and the attendance was good.

J. J. Karins, the well known representative of Henry A. Dreer, Philadelphia, Pa., is in town this week on his annual visit to the local trade.

Friends of the proprietor of the Pioneer Nursery, at Monrovia, were greatly worried at a report in one of the evening papers that he had been killed in an automobile accident. Mr. Foster, I am glad to say, is alive and well, but an employee of his was killed. The machine in which he was driving had apparently got out of control and had dashed into an interurban car on the Pacific Electric. The deceased man's name was Daniel McKay and the papers in question referred to him as the proprietor.

F. J. Keller, of J. B. Keller Sons, Rochester, N. Y., has been in the city a few days, with his wife and daughter. They have been making a tour of the coast and visiting the expositions.

Paul Staiger, of Staiger & Mundwiler, reports retail business much better at the new location, on Washington street, than it was at the old place on Twenty-second street.

Tom Wright reports a heavy demand for carnation plants this year, having cleared out his stock entirely. The store looks fine these days and Mr. Wright says business is as good as can be expected, considering all things.

The new geum, Mrs. Bradshaw, is making a fine show at the trial grounds of the Germain Seed & Plant Co., proving its great superiority to the old G. coccineum. A showy strain of hybrid perennial delphiniums is also good, flowering in a little over six months from the time of seed sowing.

J. Dieterich had the misfortune to run over a boy in the city, but he was not seriously injured. Eyewitnesses said that the accident was quite unavoidable, as the boy jumped right in front of the machine, which was, fortunately, being driven at a slow speed.

As showing the trend of business southward, it is reported that both Morris Goldenson, of Third street, and the Redondo Floral Co., of Third and Spring streets, are looking for locations about Seventh street. Both are old established stands and the proprietors well known.

H. R. Richards.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

Retail trade was fairly active last week, with a good many substantial funeral orders, while decorative work for banquets and the like keeps up well. In fact, general reports indicate that the long-expected revival is at last beginning, and florists are looking forward with more confidence. No great interest is shown in Mothers' day, though it will doubtless bring a larger call for carnations, but considerable preparation will be made for Memorial day.

Stock continues plentiful, with prices easy but not abnormally low. Orchids are in greater variety and of better quality. Perhaps the most notable offering is peonies, of which a few fine, long-stemmed flowers are appearing. They are moving well, and a large cut of improving quality is expected up to the middle of May. Gladioli and Spanish and German iris steadily increase in quantity. Roses are plentiful, and the stock in most lines is good, Beauties notably so. The demand for Killarney and Richmond is rather slack; Russell, Taft, Hadley and Sunburst are moving well, and Cecile Brunner is a large seller. A few buds of the newer single Irish roses are appearing. Sweet peas are in ample supply and carnations are abundant. Offerings of Lilium giganteum have been taken up better. Valley has been a little scarce, but there will soon be plenty. A decided novelty on the market is Xerophyllum tenax, or squaw grass, which seldom blooms, but a good deal of which is coming this year from the mountains north of the bay and is a matter of great curiosity among natives as well as eastern visitors. A good deal of spiræa and schizanthus is being cut, and finds a good demand. Some nice rhododendrons are still appearing, but do not receive much attention. Many that were brought in for this season failed to bloom, and will be held for another year. Boston ferns find increasing demand. A good deal of white oak and hawthorn sprays are being used.

Various Notes.

At the meeting of the ways and means committee of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society, April 15, the chairmen of the various committees were named to take care of the details of preparation for the S. A. F. convention. They are as follows: Executive, Daniel MacRorie; finance, H. Plath; garden, John McLaren; ladies' entertainment, W. A. Hofinghoff; reception, John R. Fotheringham; outing, Angelo J. Rossi; hotel, Frederic Bertrand; sports, V. Podesta; program, A. J. Rossi; publicity, J. W. Gregg.

J. J. Forward, Jr., president of the board of park commissioners of San Diego, and John Morley, superintendent of parks in that city, visited San Francisco last week.

Mark Ebel, of Sacramento, is here on one of his frequent visits. He says business in Sacramento has been helped by the city beautiful campaign.

Pelicano, Rossi & Co. are making a special showing of J. A. Carbone's orchids, having in their window one Cattleya Mossiæ, filling a 2½-foot tub and measuring about four feet across at the widest part, all in full flower. In the same window are handsome specimens of Miltonia vexillaria and Lælio-cattleya Hyeana.

E. Schwerin, of Schwerin Bros., growers of the Visitacion valley district, is preparing to make a large exhibit next fall of the adiantum which has been called California (erroneously, he believes). He has several large houses filled with this fern, and is preparing to propagate more of it. The stock now on hand, he says, has been cut heavily all winter, finding a big demand locally and at outside points,

Superior-Grown ROSES for Immediate Delivery

September Morn Our sensational light pink rose. Throws extra strong canes in rapid succession, 2 to 4 feet, producing high-grade stock without pinching. Wonderful keeper, full, double, with petals of grand substance waved on edges, giving it a most distinct appearance. Light shade of flesh-pink on outside, shading to pure rose-pink in center. We planted 10,000 of it for cutting and have had more repeat orders on it than on any other rose and at better prices. Flowers every day in the year and never soft in the hottest weather. Strong stems, no mildew or spot. (See our full-page ads. in issues of January 21 and 28.)

Own root plants only, from 2½-inch pots, $30.00 per 100, $250.00 per 1000, 5000 for $1000.00.

Francis Scott Key Flowers unusually large and double, rosy red and quite distinct from any other indoor rose. Its keeping qualities are remarkable. While being so double, it is especially good for hot weather conditions. Worthy of its name and its raiser, Mr. John Cook. Note our prices.

$10.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000

Mrs. F. F. Thompson The beautiful shell-pink sport of the well known Mrs. Geo. Shawyer. It combines all the fine qualities of its parent, and this surely is recommendation enough when added to its magnificent coloring. Always in bloom and already proved a money-maker.

$30.00 per 100; $250.00 per 1000

Hadley Brilliant, deep, velvety crimson, a color which it retains all the year round. Flowers borne on stiff, upright stems, and a first-class variety in every particular.

$10.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000

Mrs. Chas. Russell In greater demand than any other rose of the year. American Beauty has often had its position threatened by new comers, but Mrs. Russell is the first to prove a serious menace.

Splendid stock from 2½-inch pots, $10.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000.

Prince E. C. d'Arenberg Has fulfilled every prediction made for it last season and is a big winner everywhere. There is no red rose grown that will make as satisfactory returns for the space occupied. Of exceedingly strong, sturdy growth, throwing splendid stems at all times; splendid foliage. The one best bet in red roses.

$6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000

Ophelia has proven of exceptional merit as a forcing rose; a great grower, clean and strong, very free, and a most beautiful color—brilliant salmon-pink, shading to orange. A fancy rose that you will be more than pleased with.

$10.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000

Killarney Brilliant This is the very last word in the Killarneys—an exceptionally strong grower, increased petalage and of heavier texture. A most brilliant and pleasing color; is doing well everywhere, and will be planted heavily this season.

$10.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000

Mrs. Geo. Shawyer The most popular rose of its color ever introduced; has won its way to the very top on merit alone. A grand grower, very free, a splendid keeper and the most pleasing shade of pink; sells on sight, at top prices. Will be planted heavier than any other pink rose this season.

$6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000

All the new and standard varieties in quantity. Let us figure on your requirements for the coming season. We can make the price right for first-class, well grown stock.

and is never off crop. So far, little of the potted stock has been sold, as it has all been wanted for propagation, but a little may be placed on the market next year. Schwerin Bros. have just cleaned up a big crop of bulbous stock, and are now putting in a good many French hydrangeas and a large house of cyclamen for the fall trade.

F. Schlotzhauer, of the Francis Floral Co., reports business quite satisfactory at present, and says he had an excellent Easter, one of his best selling items being Pink Pearl rhododendron. Mr. Schlotzhauer has been quite successful with his original creations in baskets, etc., a great many of which are being sold this season to be sent east.

Mrs. R. E. Darbee reports an excellent crop of Asparagus plumosus, which is coming this year in unusually fine, large bunches. A great deal, she says, is being taken by the eastern trade, and the shipping demand is steadily increasing as the California asparagus becomes better known. She is also shipping a good many dagger ferns, known in some places as Oregon ferns, but which grow equally well all over the Pacific coast.

A flower show in the Palace of Horticulture is planned for May 7 to 9 by the California State Floral Society and the Alameda County Floral Society. While these are organizations of amateurs, the exhibition is open to the trade and a number of prizes will be awarded.

At a meeting of the California State Floral Society last week, officers were elected as follows: President, Mrs. H. P. Tricon; first vice-president, Mrs. H. Plath; second vice-president, Mrs. Austin Sperry; recording secretary, Mrs. J. G. Wintjen; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Elbert Channele; treasurer, Mrs. Lucy Wheeler; accountant, Mme. Ellen Roecjek-Davis.

A tree-planting ceremony was held at the Civic Center of San Francisco, April 18, under the auspices of the Native Sons of the Golden West, with John McLaren as director of the affair, and Angelo J. Rossi as chairman of the committee of arrangements and first speaker. A. P. B.

OAKLAND, CAL.

The Market.

With the advance of the season, outdoor flowers are becoming more plentiful and the demand is therefore decreasing. Counter trade has been somewhat slow. Funeral work and wedding decorations form the bulk of the business done. Roses are plentiful, with an excellent variety to select from. Kaiserin roses are of good quality. Carnations are a drug on the market, with no standard of prices. Irises, peonies and marguerites are plentiful. Cecile Brunner roses have a steady demand and there is a heavy supply. Sweet peas are coming in slowly, but the demand is poor.

Various Notes.

J. R. Fotheringham, representing S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia, called on the trade last week.

J. W. Huserik, of Portland, Ore., is combining business with pleasure by soliciting orders for his wire factory. He will also call on the trade in Los Angeles and San Diego.

P. J. Thorsted, Jr., has had a six weeks' siege of blood poisoning in his hand, but is all right again.

The Market.

The demand for cut flowers has continued to decline, on account of the increasing abundance and variety of serviceable outdoor blooms. The warm weather has brought out quantities of greenhouse flowers, considerably in excess of the demand. Carnations, roses and sweet peas are in oversupply. The larger retail concerns follow the policy that it is not good for business to offer cut stock at a price which will not yield a profit over the cost of growing and selling, and have kept prices up accordingly.

Corsage flowers are in the greatest demand and the heavy cuts of Cecile Brunner roses are used up daily. The call for funeral flowers has not been so heavy this week, as many offerings are made up of flowers gathered from private yards.

The nurserymen are busy planting out stock and are hoping for rain to brighten it up. Growers of bedding stock are having a splendid business, as everything except the hardiest sorts were killed by frost last winter. The season for setting out perennials is nearly over and the growers report a record-breaking business. The nursery-

Club Meeting.

The April meeting of the Portland Floral Society, held at the society's headquarters in Masonic Temple on the evening of April 20, was attended by nearly all of its active members.

E. H. White, one of the officers of the Northwestern National Dahlia Society, reported that plans for the society's show, to be held at Portland sometime next September, were being completed and that several valuable cups had been donated for prizes. It is the understanding that the Portland Floral Society will help the local dahlia society to entertain the visitors.

Henry Clemmens, the sweet pea specialist, extended an invitation from himself and the Newberg Commercial Club for the society to visit Newberg on one of its summer outings. No formal action was taken, but it is likely that the society will accept the invitation.

The subject which produced the longest discussion was the arrangement of the section in the rose festival center which will have an exhibit under the name of the society. It was pointed out by President Vankirk and Manager Dorsche that this was the central space in the festival center and should be a chief point of interest. A number of suggestions were made, and the meeting passed a resolution that the chief features of the exhibit should be cut flowers and that the standing committee on exhibitions should have charge of its arrangement. A fund of about $160 was raised in a few minutes among those present to pay the expense of staging the exhibit. More money will be available if it is needed, without any draft upon the funds of the society.

E. F. Mische, who is a member of the city beautiful committee of the rose festival managers, stated that his committee was planning an amateur contest in flower beds, porch decorations and lawns, on the same lines as the contests held for the last two years by the Portland Floral Society. It was suggested that the retail florists, especially those handling bedding stock, would willingly distribute announcements of the terms of the contest and the prizes offered, if the committee would place them in their hands.

Informally a suggestion was discussed to invite the florists of the northwest who will attend the S. A. F. convention to assemble at Portland and join the local and visiting delegates to the S. A. F. and convention of park superintendents, and go south in one body.

The matter of unfair competition by outside growers invading this market was introduced, but the discussion was interrupted by a call to the banquet and the question was left to adjust itself.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President, H. B. Chase, Chase, Ala.; Vice-president, E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia.; Secretary, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treasurer, Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.

Fortieth annual meeting, Detroit, Mich., June 23 to 25, 1915.

KELLY BROS., the wholesale nurserymen, of Dansville, N. Y., have opened a retail store in Syracuse, at the corner of West Genesee and North Clinton streets.

THE planting season has been cut short by the premature arrival of summer. It seems that 1915 will be known to the nursery trade as the year without a spring.

THEODORE BECHTEL, proprietor of the Bechtel Pecan Nurseries, at Ocean Springs, Miss., was on the program of the Gulf Coast Horticultural Society's meeting at Mobile, Ala., April 27 and 28, for an address on pecan growing.

UNDER the head of Business Embarrassments will be found the report of the bankruptcy petition of Reilly Bros., of Dansville, N. Y. The action was taken merely to effect an adjustment with creditors, as the assets total over twice the liabilities.

NINETY per cent of the apple seedlings of the United States are grown in the Kaw valley, from Wamego to Lawrence, Kan., the site of the greatest apple seedling business in the world. The industry brings approximately $100,000 annually to the nurserymen of the district.

E. C. BAKER, proprietor of the Minnesota State Nursery, at Albert Lea, Minn., has returned to that city after having been away during the greater part of the winter. He reports good business, and will remain in Albert Lea for the next three or four months, looking after the shipping and putting in new stock.

HILL'S SPECIMEN EVERGREENS

FOR LANDSCAPE PLANTING

These trees are all perfect specimens, having good roots, owing to frequent transplanting. Always freshly and carefully dug. To satisfy the increasing demand for trees to give quicker results, a large portion of our Nursery is devoted to growing of Specimen Evergreens to be handled with Ball and Burlap. This stock is all grown in wide rows, with plenty of room to develop both root and top. Each tree is staked to insure symmetrical growth and at regular intervals throughout the growing season trimming and pruning is done by men of long experience in this line. We keep this stock on the move also, transplanting every two years, as a root system can be developed in no other way, and in Evergreens roots are the basis of success. No extra charge for Ball and Burlap. Quality is our watchword.

BOXWOODS IN SUMMER.

Will you kindly tell us how to handle boxwoods to keep them over the summer? Should they be tubbed up and placed outside under shade, or should they be planted in the ground?

D. H. N. C.—Ill.

The boxwoods will do decidedly better if planted outside. Of course the balls must be damp at planting time, and, if a severe drought should come along, it would of course be an advantage to have them within reach of a hose, but boxwoods will stand more drought than many other evergreens. If you can alternate them between large maples or other deciduous shade trees, it will be of benefit to them, if you have no convenient water supply.

NEW JERSEY NURSERY NEWS.

About 100 Italians employed by the Elizabeth Nursery Co., Elizabeth, N. J., went on a strike for higher wages last week. Soon after reporting for work Thursday morning, April 22, the men, who were employed in digging and in loading plants upon box cars, presented a demand on Elmer Runyon, manager of the nursery, for an increase in wages from $1.25 to $1.50 and $1.75 a day. Mr. Runyon explained that the company could not afford to pay more for that class of work. The men then resumed work, but shortly afterward quit. For a time it looked as if they would cause trouble among the other employees, but they finally dispersed. Later in the day some of them asked to be reinstated in their old jobs.

Settlement has been made in the suit brought by the Elizabeth Nursery Co. against the Western Union Telegraph Co. The case was tried before Judge David in the Elizabeth District court. It was alleged by the nursery company that Coe, Converse & Edwards, of Fort Atkinson, Wis., sent a telegram by the Western Union Co., April 10, 1913, ordering 125 hydrangeas from the Elizabeth Nursery Co., but when the message was delivered it requested the

STRONG TWO-YEAR-OLD PLANTS FOR

The Dreer Roses for bedding are strong field-grown plants which were potted during the Winter months, stored in cold houses and frames, and are now in the best possible condition to turn over to your retail customers for outdoor planting. They must not be compared to dormant cellared stock and all are in 5 or 6-inch pots, according to the growth of the variety.

nursery company to ship 1,253 instead of 125 plants. The plaintiff sent the larger number, which were returned. Suit was then brought against the telegraph company for $71.31, which was the amount of the express charges which were incurred because of the error. R. B. M.

A. A. N. AIMS AT RECORD.

The steamer Lusitania sailed from Liverpool, on her last trip, with a small list of passengers; one of them, a prominent California financier, remarked that he agreed with Mr. Roosevelt that "Americans should keep away from Europe in these times unless they can be of help." Americans generally are staying at home this year, and so in what traveling they do will see more of their own country.

For this reason the officers of the American Association of Nurserymen are making special efforts to bring together at Detroit, June 23 to 25, the largest aggregation of nurserymen that ever attended one of their trade conventions.

An exceptional program of papers, etc., is being arranged by Chairman C. R. Burr, and there will be no lack of quality in either speakers or subjects. Chairman T. I. Ilgenfritz is putting the finishing touches on entertainment arrangements.

Detroit and its environments afford the greatest variety of attractive places imaginable, either on land or water. A visit to the "City Beautiful" can be made one of the most satisfactory of vacations.

A thorough canvass for new members is being made by the membership committee under direction of Will B. Munson. The personnel of the committee is: Luther A. Breck, Boston, Mass., New England states; A. F. Meehan, Desher, Pa., middle Atlantic coast states; Paul C. Lindley, Pomona, N. C., southern Atlantic and gulf states; H. D. Simpson, Vincennes, Ind., central states; G. A. Marshall, Arlington, Neb., northern central his bedding stock at the public market. The prices realized there are somewhat lower than at the private markets.

PORTLAND NOTES.

O. E. Panzer says the season is opening well with him. So far he has sold his stock as fast as it came on, at prices which leave him a profit.

E. H. White, of the Willamette Dahlia Co., reports a splendid business in his line. Of the 800 varieties his company handles, about one-third are entirely sold out and several shipments have been brought from the east to fill orders. Some special advertising features and the loss of roots through severe weather have combined to increase the volume of business.

Samuel Roak has his crew of woodsmen gathering greens and moss near Castle Rock, Wash.

James Forbes is chairman of the Portland Floral Society's committee on exhibitions and will have chief charge of the society's exhibit in the floral center of the rose festival. Associated with him are A. J. Clarke, J. B. Pilkington, A. Rahn, Julius Dorsche, J. Feser, L. W. Scott, E. H. White, Max Smith and B. Tonseth.

J. J. Butzer, the seedsman, is busy at his desk every day, but is not feeling well. He says he has had but four days of vacation since he returned from service in the Philippine war and badly needs a rest.

The Portland Seed Co. reports returns from the issue of catalogues this spring as highly satisfactory, both as to number of replies received and the amount of sales resulting. Business in general has so far this year been fully up to normal with this company.

The beautiful violas now shown come from the establishment of John Gower, of Newberg.

Clarke Bros. and Max Smith are displaying some of the first tree peonies on the market, which come from the nursery of Henry Birchler.

The Martin & Forbes Co. has a beautiful window of cattleyas and cibotiums.

The Tonseth Floral Co. reports a good business in bedding stock, porch tubs and hanging baskets.

J. B. Pilkington, the nurseryman, says he has had a record-breaking spring business.

No action has yet been taken by the retailers toward establishing special closing hours for the summer season. An agreement was made last year, which was respected by all the signers and proved entirely satisfactory. There is no loss of business due to early closing, and both the employers and employees are benefited by it. Let someone start the movement.

NEW ORLEANS.

Club Outing.

The German Gardeners' Club held its first fishing trip for the season, April 21. The party left Harvey's canal at 6:30 a. m., on a launch, for one of the popular fishing camps on Bayou Barataria, arriving there after a two hours' pleasant sail. Everyone went for the denizens of the deep and some of the lucky ones had a big enough catch to have a few pans of fine perch for their dinner. The others found solace in their lunch baskets, and an ample quantity of the amber fluid was on hand to keep the happy fishermen from getting dry. The fishing was continued until about 3 o'clock, and by that time enough perch and catfish were caught to keep our chef, the always jovial Henry Kraak, busy frying and serving, fresh and hot from the pan. It must be said that he is a master in this particular art and loud were the praises paid him.

After the meal the return trip began. A visit was paid, en route, to the newly built Hero pumping station, the largest of its kind in the world. In a short time thousands of acres of land for agricultural and horticultural purposes will be available. The happy crowd reached home at 7 p. m., having thoroughly enjoyed their outing. Several of the club members could not participate in the outing, on account of the rush in filling orders, but they promised to be present the next time, in June.

The intending exhibitors at the flower show to be held here May 6 to 9 had a special meeting at the residence of Peter Chopin. Nearly everyone was present and great interest in the drawing of the numbers for the space lots was manifested. The entire exhibition will be under cover and every foot of space was taken, in areas ranging from 10 to 250 square feet for each exhibitor. About fifteen members of the New Orleans Horticultural Society will participate and everyone promised to do his utmost to make the show an interesting and artistic one. About 2,000 tickets were distributed among those present, with instructions to sell all if possible.

The arrangement committee is working hard and is getting everything into shape. During the afternoon and evening a skilled symphony orchestra will furnish music. The interest shown by the general public in the show is keen, and if the weather is favorable a financial success is likewise assured.

We Offer for Immediate Delivery

Good, strong, well established plants in 2¼-inch pots of the exceedingly VALUABLE NEW ROSES

Ophelia, Francis Scott Key and Prince E. C. d'Arenberg

Growers will find all of these valuable additions to the list of standard varieties. They have been tested thoroughly and have been found to have exceptional value.

OPHELIA

No fancy rose ever introduced possesses so many excellent qualities. It is a splendid grower, a very free bloomer and has fine stems. It sells on sight. The demand undoubtedly will exceed the supply. Anticipating the large demand, we have propagated it extensively.

Strong plants on own roots. 2¼-inch pots, now ready, $15.00 per 100, $120.00 per 1000.

FRANCIS SCOTT KEY

This variety, raised by Mr. John Cook, is very distinct, being entirely different from any of the indoor roses grown today. Flowers are rosy red and are unusually large and double, resembling very much a very full, double, hardy garden rose. Coupled with its large size and double form, it is an exceedingly free bloomer. It promises to be exceedingly valuable, especially for spring, summer and fall flowering, when other less double roses are difficult to handle. Its keeping qualities are remarkable.

Strong plants on own roots, 2¼-inch pots, now ready, $15.00 per 100, $120.00 per 1000.

PRINCE E. C. D'ARENBERG

This variety might well have been termed a Red Killarney, as it possesses so many of the good qualities of the Killarneys. In color the flowers are similar to Richmond, but they are much more double, and it should prove a very much more profitable rose. Flowers have fine, straight stems on all the grades—from the shortest to the longest. It has fine foliage, comes away quickly and is even a freer bloomer than the Killarneys. We believe it is the best all-round red rose that we have today.

Strong plants on own roots, 2¼-inch pots, now ready, $12.00 per 100, $90.00 per 1000.

WE WILL BE GLAD TO QUOTE ON APPLICATION PRICES ON ALL THE NEWER AND STANDARD VARIETIES—STRONG, GRAFTED PLANTS READY NOW

WORCESTER, MASS.

The Market.

Retail trade has been good lately. The public is beginning to buy outdoor roses, hollyhocks, geraniums, pansies, shrubs and all kinds of outdoor flowers. Roses are good. Arbutus is now on the market. Bulbous stock is beginning to drop off. There have been a great many funerals lately and the florists have received many orders in that line.

Various Notes.

H. F. A. Lange reports business good, with a lot of funeral work. He has some fine roses and his rose bushes for outdoor use are of good quality and numerous varieties. Mr. Lange had the well known Slater wedding, held in Webster, Mass. Mrs. Mabel Slater, the mother of the bride, is the owner of the Slater wool mills. The decoration was carried out in pink and white. Auto trucks more than proved their value to Mr. Lange. Webster is eighteen miles from Worcester and the trucks containing the flowers covered the distance in less than an hour, with everything in fine condition.

Harry I. Randall reports business good, with a large share of funeral orders. He had a florists' telegraph delivery window last week, displaying orders and tags from florists in different cities. There also was a miniature telegraph wire, with the sounder and receiver.

A new flower stand has been started on Southbridge street, under the name of the Franklin South Florist, and is selling flowers at extremely low prices. Worcester now has ten florists, three nurseries and two landscape gardeners.

F. B. Madaus reports business excellent. He had an especially fine window last week.

H. L.

DETROIT, MICH.

The Market.

Business kept up despite the hot weather we have had for the last few days. There has been an abundance of funeral work, keeping the market well cleaned up. Special sales have become quite common and thousands of carnations, roses and peas have been disposed of at extremely low prices. Iris made its appearance last week. The popularity of this flower is evidenced by the demand for it. Peas are becoming soft and soon will be out of the market. Some excellent snapdragon is available in various colors and sells readily. Roses are plentiful and the stock is good.

Various Notes.

The Detroit retailers, growers and wholesalers are now planning on cooperative advertising for Mothers' day. This method of advertising is becoming popular here and has been quite successful.

Yellow King Humbert Canna

The grandest canna on earth. A sport of Red King Humbert, originated by us five years ago.

Large 3½-in. pot plants.

$1.00 each; $9.00 per dozen; $60.00 per 100

Grow this canna and you will never grow any other yellow canna with green foliage. Flower larger than King Humbert, lightly spotted red, not affected by sun or heavy rain; 5 and 6 clusters, larger than a peck measure, on one stalk. A very healthy grower. Plant design beds with red and yellow King Humbert cannas, same as red and yellow coleus, and you will have something wonderful. Florists who have seen this canna growing on our place say without exception that it leads anything for show, in rank growing and free blooming they have ever seen. Only a few thousand plants for sale at any price. Order some today. This ad may not appear again.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

We are having some peculiar weather conditions. Vegetation is a week or more in advance of its usual growth at this season. Magnolias have come and gone. Cherries, peaches and peas are in full bloom. A few light showers help them along, but the much needed heavy rain does not materialize. There is an occasional thunder storm, which makes a good deal of fuss but does not bring much rain. Various kinds of bulbous stock are in bloom, but much of it has suffered from the drought and is small.

There has been no change in trade conditions since last week. Flowers seem to increase in quantity and the prices drop correspondingly. The wholesale houses are crowded with stock. Beauties and snapdragons never were finer or more plentiful. Violets are still coming, but even the street boys cannot sell them at any price. Spanish iris, miniature gladioli and lupines are fine and find ready sale. The retail stores seem to be doing a fairly good counter and funeral trade, but there is not much doing in a social way.

Various Notes.

George Learzaf, of Mount Washington, while getting bulbs out from under a bench before Easter, struck his head against the bench, and though he managed to keep going through the Easter rush, he gradually became worse and was confined to bed. The physician pronounced the trouble concussion of the brain. He is now convalescing.

Gilbert Ludwig, of the Ludwig Floral Co., says trade has held up unusually well on the north side since Easter.

The E. C. Ludwig Floral Co. has added a Ford truck to the delivery system.

Randolph & McClements had a nice wedding last Thursday at Niles, O., and on Thursday of this week they have one at Youngstown, O. This firm has had an unusually large run of weddings this season, through the Ohio valley.

The McCallum Co. is adding a 300-foot house for roses.

Most of the growers in this neighborhood have their carnation planting done and would appreciate a good, soaking rain.

The American Express Co. has made settlement for the violet claims resulting from failure to make Christmas deliveries. These claims ran into hundreds of dollars and the company paid every cent the Interstate Commerce Commission stipulated. Where no valuation was placed on a shipment, a value was declared and was paid in full. It would be well for shippers to take notice and always mark the value on all shipments worth over $50.

Keep Your Crops Growing
In Time of Drought

Be independent of the rain clouds. The Hurst Overhead Irrigation System gives you water in the right quantity when and where you need it. It applies the water in a fine mist like a gentle rain that settles down on the plants without packing the soil, promoting a strong and healthy growth. Fifteen days' drought will often kill a crop and rob you of your season's profit unless you are prepared. Irrigation means big crops at high prices, when your neighbors who trust to Nature have failures.

The Hurst System Of Overhead Irrigation

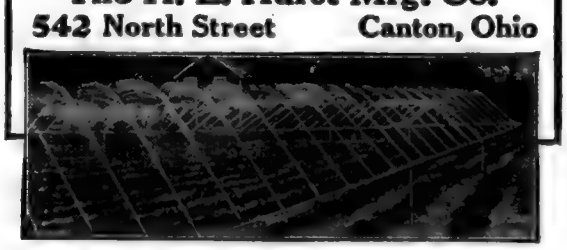
is the result of years of experience and is backed by a reliable concern. Material and workmanship guaranteed. We give you free of charge the services of our Engineering Department to help you in choosing the right kind and size of system for your needs.



You can start in a small way with the Hurst System. It can be used on any sized plot from half acre up and more pipes added as greater acreage is desired.

You can also use the Hurst System for applying liquid manure, the best and quickest growth producer known.

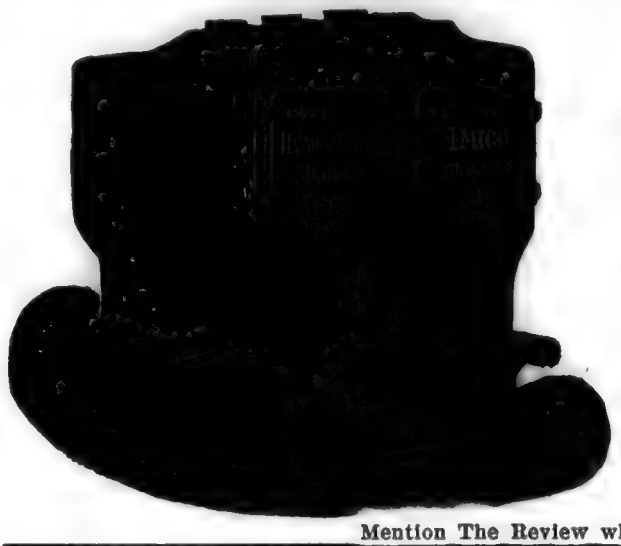
Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.



THE COAL MARKET.

The tone of the market, which was said last week to be improving, is still nourishing itself chiefly on promises, on anticipation rather than realization. Perhaps so ghostly a something as a market tone can feed itself for an indefinite period on so thin and ethereal a diet as hopes. At any rate, it is stated that the betterment which is visible in some other lines of business "is not yet reflected in the coal trade, except psychologically. Buyers move cautiously and the market is extremely quiet." "But the position of the market," it is added, "is every day growing stronger by reason of delayed buying." In other words, the less business now, the more in the future. People cannot forever escape from buying so prime a necessity as coal, but can only defer the purchase for a limited time. They must buy eventually, if not now.

With reference especially to the Chicago district, it is said that "the smokeless market is uncertain temporarily. Spot demand is extremely light, because retailers do not want to carry over any coal. Local contracting is being delayed and some buyers show a disposition to resist prices asked by operators. In the upper lake district contracting is slow, although the operators are inclined to praise the attitude of the dealers in maintaining prices, which remain unchanged."

House No. 2 is 28¾x110; it is connected to No. 1 and will require the same temperature. No. 3 is 20x90, thirteen feet to the ridge and seven feet to the gutter; there is glass in one gable; the other gable is attached to a shed; the desired temperature is 60 degrees. No. 4 is 10x90 and has glass in one gable; it will need a temperature of 60 degrees. The houses run east and west, with No. 4 on the north side. There will be two or three feet of a fall from the top of the boiler to the returns. The expansion tank will be about fifteen feet above the top of the boiler.

I have on hand enough 2-inch, 1½-inch and 1¼-inch pipe, which I wish to install, using the 2-inch for flows, the 1½-inch for returns in Nos. 1 and 2 and the 1¼-inch for returns in Nos. 3 and 4. Should I use a generator with this small pipe, or can the same purpose be accomplished by placing the expansion tank higher?

A. B.—Wis.

It is not quite clear just how many exposed walls there are in the houses. The following suggestions are based upon there being one exposed wall in houses 1 and 4, and none in houses 2 and 3. If there is more exposure than this, an additional return should be used for each exposed wall. Especially because the returns are below the top of the boiler, as well as because small pipes are used, I would use a generator. In houses No. 1 and 2 I would use four 2-inch flow pipes and eleven 1½-inch returns. In house No. 3 I would put in four flows and thirteen 1¼-inch returns; in house No. 4, two flows and six returns.

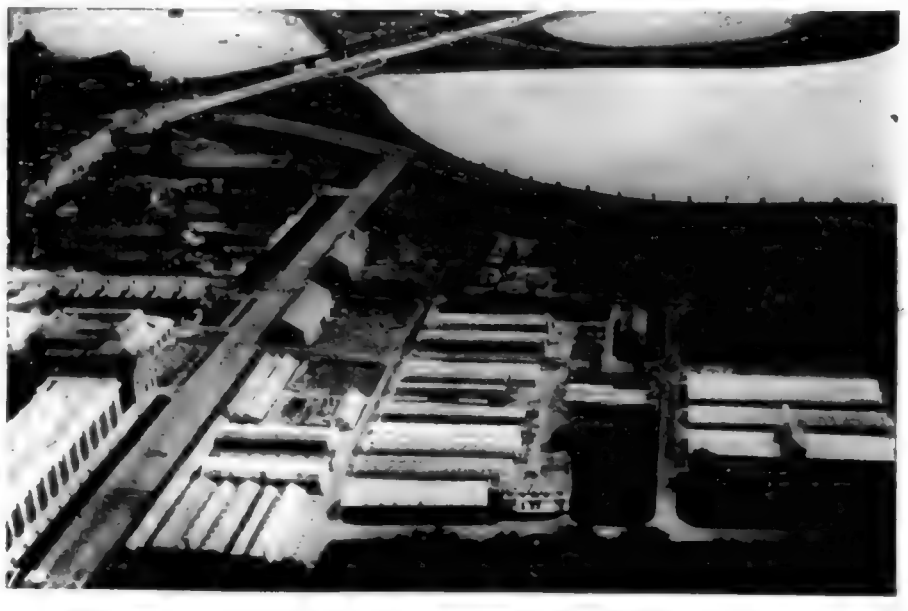
The conservatories of the President of the United States are located opposite the Washington monument, at Washington, D. C. Over 40 greenhouses are devoted to the growing of cut flowers, orchids, stove plants, tropical and decorative stock.

A No. 11 KROESCHELL BOILER was installed in 1906 for the high temperature houses. This boiler made a wonderful record for economy.



The new iron frame range erected in 1910 is heated by KROESCHELL BOILERS.

The Plant Introduction Garden of the United States Department of Agriculture at Chico, California, is heated by No. 2 Kroeschell boiler and generator system.

In 1912 two No. 5 KROESCHELL BOILERS were installed for the new range of the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, at Garret Park, Md.

In 1913 the U. S. Government's new establishment, the Northern Great Plains Field Station, at Mandan, N. Dakota, ordered a No. 7 KROESCHELL BOILER for the new greenhouse range erected in 1913.

August, 1914, two more No. 11 KROESCHELL BOILERS were ordered for White House Conservatories, Washington, D. C.

The Market.

Outdoor work now has the call and everyone is busy along these lines, especially in the early preparations for planting out. Several of the growers have large stocks of small potted plants for Memorial day coming along with good promise.

Last week funeral work maintained its strength, so that all of the stores have kept well cleaned up. There is a seasonable supply of everything, carnations and roses holding up, while bulbous stock is going off, although some of the growers are just beginning to cut some of their blooms of the spring.

Various Notes.

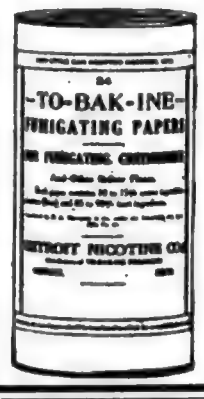
Over 1,000 roses were used in decorations for the joint dinner of the Bank Clerks' Association and the local chapter of the American Institute of Banking at Elks hall April 22. The arrangement was by H. Howard Pepper, of the Melrose Rose Gardens.

A. A. Kupfer is arranging for the erection of a small greenhouse on Gordon avenue.

Several small propagating houses are being erected by the Hope Greenhouses, back of its range on Massachusetts avenue.

M. J. Leach & Sons, of Pawtucket, have been awarded the contract for planting the public parks in the adjoining city of Central Falls.

The small greenhouse that stood on Franklin street for more than a quarter of a century has been razed. It was for many years conducted by Mr. Wright, later by Mr. Collamore and last by M. Pollack.



The trustees under the will of Benjamin B. Knight have discharged a mortgage of $4,000 against Edgar L. Nock and wife.

Henry Cushing, of the Quidnick Greenhouses, Quidnick, is confined to his home by serious illness.

Mrs. C. Byron, formerly associated with J. Engle in the flower department of the Shepard Co., has opened a flower stand in Jones', in the Arcade.

PAPER POTS AND DIRT BANDS

Our Square Paper Dirt Bands are the original of all that are on the market today. All others being sold are imitations of these we advertise, and some of the imitations being sold are made of cheap paper, costing only about half as much as our heavy stock. We sell no experiments. Ours have been tried out by long use in the greenhouse. They will stand up in any wet and heat as long as wanted. Samples of all sizes FREE.

"I had some of your paper pots last year. I want more this year."—W. R. Wissinger, Homer City, Pa.

"We used 10,000 of your paper Dirt Bands last Spring and we like them. They are just the thing. Please give us prices on 40,000 or 50,000."—S. K. Green Co., Paris, Ill.

"Ten thousand paper pots came duly to hand. We are enclosing check for 15,000 more. Kindly rush them out as before."—L. A. Budlong Company (700-acre gardens), Chicago, Ill.

"Please ship immediately 150,000 2-in. Dirt Bands and 20,000 3-in. Dirt Bands."—B. B. Dilks, Philadelphia, Pa.

"Could you ship me by freight at once 15,000 more 2-in. Dirt Bands and 5000 3-in. Dirt Bands? I like them very much."—H. B. Weaver, Bird-in-Hand, Pa. (Mr. Weaver grows Carnations, Mignonettes, Sweet Peas and Cut Flowers. He got 5000 2-in. Dirt Bands in December, 40,000 in January, 20,000 in March last year, and we have just shipped him 70,000 more.)

"I have now about 14,000 Carnation plants started in 2-in. bands which are making a RAPID GROWTH, scarcely losing a plant in transplanting from the sand.

I also have about 20,000 Aster plants transplanted in 2-in. bands, which can stay there till time to plant out-of-doors WITHOUT FEAR OF BECOMING ROOT BOUND, as would be the case if I used 2-in. pots.

Plants SELDOM BECOME ROOT BOUND enough to injure them IN THE DIRT BANDS, and DO NOT REQUIRE NEAR THE AMOUNT OF ATTENTION that a pot plant does, in watering, shifting, transplanting, etc.

I believe anyone using these bands ONCE WILL BECOME A REGULAR CUSTOMER."—H. B. Weaver, Bird-in-Hand, Pa.

"We note friend H. B. Weaver's testimonial. Coming from a man like H. B. Weaver, it is WORTH ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD."—James Brown, Jr., Florist, Coatesville, Pa.

"Tomato plants which without your Pots sell here at $1.00 per 100, raised in your Pots sell at $4.00 per 100."—The Dalles Floral Company, The Dalles, Oregon.

"From about 2700 Tomato plants I picked 1140 MARKETABLE CRATES of Tomatoes, which brought me $600."—D. B. Moses, Purchase, N. Y.

"Tomato plants raised in the 4-inch size sell readily at FIVE CENTS EACH."—W. J. Symonds & Son, Decorah, Ia.

"Your Paper Pots gave better plants than clay pots and sold at Double Price."—Mt. Gilead Floral Co., Mt. Gilead, Ohio.

"BANDS WILL GIVE BETTER PLANTS THAN POTS." (Clay Pots.)—F. B. Murdock & Co., Kingston, Pa.

"We got BETTER PLANTS, BIGGER PLANTS AND PLANTS WHICH WERE HEALTHIER AND MORE VIGOROUS THAN IN CLAY POTS."—Wm. Schruers, Gardener, Oil City, Pa.

"We find that WATERING ALONE SAVES TIME ENOUGH TO PAY OVER CLAY POTS, and with proper handling there is NO QUESTION BUT A BETTER PLANT CAN BE GROWN."—H. Russell & Son, Market Gardeners, Boonville, New York.

"I find them SUPERIOR TO EARTHEN POTS IN EVERY CASE, requiring about half the water—at least that is the case after the sun gets well back and very drying."—W. L. Leeka, Fairmount, Ill.

"We grew Tomato plants and Chrysanthemum plants in your Dirt Bands last year and they proved VERY SATISFACTORY AND CHEAP, A GREAT SAVING OVER CLAY POTS."—L. M. Smith & Co., Laurel Greenhouses, Laurel, Del.

"They do not dry out as fast as clay pots and MAKE BETTER PLANTS in the same length of time. They hold the plants longer in fine condition without getting yellow than clay pots. They are also better for shipping plants, as they are light and pack better than clay pots."—Evan R. Miller, Florist, Bridgeton, N. J.

"All worked very satisfactory and they DO NOT REQUIRE THE ATTENTION THAT SMALL POTS DO. We certainly like Dirt Bands."—Reimers Bros., Rapid City, S. D.

"Please ship us 200,000 2½-inch Dirt Bands."—Hudson River Orchards Co., Saugerties, New York.

"We were well pleased with the Dirt Bands we got. Our Asters are GROWING FINE in them."—Koopmann Bros., Davenport, Iowa.

"We used the Paper Pots last year for Coleus and found the plants GROW SO MUCH FASTER than those in clay pots."—E. P. Houston, Lowellville, Ohio. (The roots of plants are pumps. They had twice as much soil to pump substance from and could not help grow faster.)

"We have tried these pots and THINK THEY ARE THE FINEST THING OUT."—E. E. Keener, Florist and Rooted Cutting Specialist, Little River, Kansas.

The Market.

There has been almost no change in market conditions during the week just past. Stock continues to be overabundant, and sales are still below normal. The weather has continued extraordinarily warm and there has been no rain. This fills the market with a large supply of all varieties of stock, which is disposed of at prices that are not nearly so good as they should be.

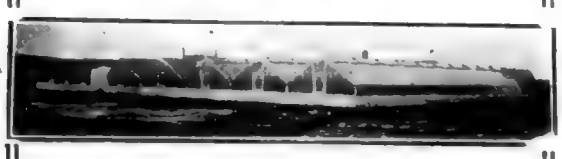
Present conditions surely cannot last, as April has been so different from the usual weather that we can expect May to be out of the ordinary as well. Should a cool, rainy week ensue, stock may be really scarce for Mothers' day. The demand for that day will be unusually heavy, judging from the advance orders already on the books of the wholesalers. It is already noticeable that the increased demand is not for carnations alone. The public is now using almost every variety of stock, while heretofore carnations, especially white, were all that had a heavy demand.

Memorial day will be a problem this year, as stock is not to be depended on as much as usual. Peonies are already far advanced, and will probably come in before the holiday.

Prices at present are low, and some excellent stock is being moved for almost a song to keep the market cleaned up. Carnations and sweet peas are being sold extremely cheap and roses are not bringing much more. Violets are just about gone for the season, and spring stock has not much longer to go.

H. J. S.

NEWPORT, R. I.



Miss Emma Ritchie, who has been ill at the Newport hospital, having had an operation for appendicitis, is reported as being more comfortable.

S. W. Coggeshall reports an unusually heavy demand for garden supplies during the last week or ten days.

Gibson Bros. report a heavy demand for rambler roses of all kinds.

Jesse Sousa, who recently took a position with Oscar Schultz, has the sympathy of the guild in the loss, April 19, of his baby, aged 10 months. Mr. Sousa recently removed to Newport from Fall River and had just got a cottage ready to receive his little family. Mrs. Sousa was on her way to join her husband when the baby died on the train.

The Market.

The market keeps up fairly well, a large funeral occasionally giving a little stimulus to trade. Stock of all kinds is plentiful. Some outdoor tulips are beginning to come into the market. While it is a little early in the season for outdoor planting, except hardy stock, numerous calls are coming in for bedding plants and there is every indication of a successful spring planting season. The call for ferns, palms and rubber plants is good and the supply is equal to the demand. Blooming plants are rather scarce. Gloxinias and tuberous-rooted begonias are beginning to come in.

Various Notes.

Herbert D. Belcher was married recently to Miss Lyons. Mr. Belcher is proprietor of the Globe Greenhouses. Miss Lyons, with her mother, conducted the Economy Flower Store, on Fifteenth street. They have just returned from a honeymoon in Chicago and are now at home to their friends at 208 Monroe street.

Frank F. Hacker, formerly with the Baker Seed & Floral Co., of Baker City, Ore., is now with the Park Floral Co.

L. A. Kintzele is cutting a fine crop of snapdragons, for which he finds a ready market.

Henry Weiland, of Edgewater, is bringing in some extra fine Gov. Herrick violets. He also has some fine sweet peas. He finds it easy to dispose of all his stock.

The Park Floral Co. had the misfortune to lose a shed by fire of unknown origin April 18. The loss was light, owing to the fact that only empty packing cases were stored in the shed.

Quite a number of our bowlers are bowling every Saturday night at the Denver Bowling Alleys, on Champa street. All bowlers are invited to get into the game. R. S.

NOTES FROM UTAH.

The Market.

Owing to the good weather that has prevailed over this part of the country, the growers have had exceptionally large crops of cut flowers for this time of the year. Business has been good. There is much funeral work, which keeps the large stock used up pretty well. Some carnations are being lost and snapdragons are moving slowly.

There has been a fairly good demand for porch boxes made up of an assortment of Boston and Whitmani ferns, table ferns, Asparagus Sprengeri and plumosus and begonias. Other porch boxes are made up of geraniums and other seasonable plants. The demand for potted Boston and Whitmani ferns is good. Spiræa did not take well this year, and some plants are left over. The hardy Oregon fern is used extensively and has a large demand. Early gladioli are on the market and find a ready sale. Pansy plants sell well.

The fruit blossoms, lilacs and German iris which are in bloom find their way into the homes and are used a little for the table, but do not injure the business to any great extent.

Prepare for Hail Order at Once
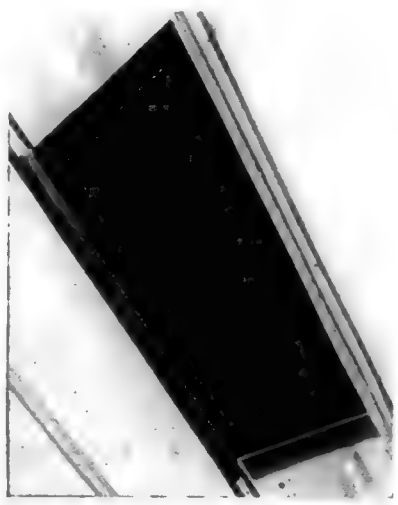
Jiffy Glass Board

QUICK as a wink you can, from the inside, replace a broken light with a Jiffy Glass Board.

No more chasing around, sawing up pieces of board or tacking in pasteboard that hardly lasts while it is being done.

Here is a practical proposition that we have thoroughly tried out at both our big plants.

When an ice slide has taken a light out, these boards have proven invaluable. For weeks we have left them in; the weather has not affected their waterproofed surface.



The time of hail storms is now with us. Prepare for them.

PRICE

For 16 x 24 glass.....$5 per 100, or $45 per 1000
For 16 x 18 glass.....$4.50 per 100, or $40 per 1000

Shipped flat, 100 in a bundle. In ordering be sure to state if to be sent by freight or express.

A hammer and four tacks are all you need to repair a broken light with a Jiffy Glass Board.

Note the notches. The lower light fits in them and an inch or more of the board extends over it on the outside. Shipped flat, and creased so side flaps turn up easily.

U. S. BOILERS TO LONDON.

It is quite interesting to note that in spite of conditions in England as they are at the present time, the demand for flowers remains about as usual. The present outlook seems to be encouraging and Lowe & Shawyer, of London, show their faith in the future by continuing to follow their original plan. Recently they ordered two more large Kroeschell boilers, each having a capacity of 48,000 square feet of glass, rated to heat to 50 degrees at zero. These two boilers have already been shipped and make a total of eight Kroeschell boilers built for this firm. The first order for two No. 14 came in 1913. The next year four more were shipped and this year two additional boilers have been ordered and shipped.

Ocean freight rates have advanced fully 600 per cent since the war, which is due to three reasons: First, the large number of vessels taken over by the government; second, the number of ships lost, and, third, the retirement of so many German ships. This last shipment is scheduled to leave Philadelphia aboard the Transatlantic line steamer Northwestern Miller, which is the largest freight steamer making English ports at the present time. Needless to say, reservation had to be made in advance and the shipment is fully covered by both marine and war insurance.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

MODERN METHODS OF RETAIL MANAGEMENT

Learning the trade with her letters, Miss May McAdams, daughter of the dean of Chicago retailers, Andrew McAdams, grew up in and with the business. Long experience and thorough training as her father's right-hand "man," combined with natural ability, make the writer of this article exceptionally well fitted to handle her subject.

ONE of the results of the various transitions through which the retail florists' trade has passed is that the science of selling flowers has become more important than the science of growing flowers. The time has passed when the florist could sit back and say, "Let business come." The increasing demand for flowers and the competition engendered by the demand make it necessary for the florist to go after business. He must interest his customer; he must woo her and win her. Having won her, he must do all in his power to keep her.

First Principles.

In succeeding articles I hope to suggest various methods of carrying on this campaign of acquiring and holding customers, but before going into details, let us consider two principles which should be working before the shopkeeper invites trade. First, the business should be well organized; cooperation among employees should be well established, and the spirit of coöperation with other retail florists should be at work. Secondly, the business should be well systematized. There is no business where the lack of system is more fatal. Salespeople should be trained to follow a system in taking and filling orders. Stock should be bought, sold and delivered according to system, and the bookkeeper should be capable of practicing a system which is infallible. Mistakes in statements have angered and turned away many good customers.

Then comes the problem of interesting the public. To advertise extensively is surely to arouse interest. Advertising material presented in an attractive form is an inducement which the reader cannot resist. Department stores spend enormous sums of money that they may get their wares before the women, through whose hands four-fifths of the money is poured into these stores. The florist, too, should make his strongest appeal to the women. An alluring pamphlet with an appropriate sketch, announcing some seasonable attraction, will often secure a customer. An artistic sketch of a sweet girl graduate is a timely suggestion to her friends. At Christmas a list of floral possibilities to the fagged shopper is a boon. Booklets containing hints on table and wedding decorations furnish the hostess and bride with many valuable suggestions.

Boxes, too, can be made a great advertising medium. Boxes neat and original in design and decoration are a delight to the recipient. It might be well said here that a properly packed box is much more acceptable than one carelessly got together. In order to have each row of blooms carry without injuring the next, it is necessary to prepare wadding pillows, which should be covered with strips of oiled paper and laid on the calyxes of the flowers. Sheets of oiled paper should line the box. The card which is to be enclosed in gift orders should be placed so as to attract attention as soon as the box is opened.

Up-to-Date Appearance.

Up-to-date-ness, simplicity and neatness, blended together to create elegance, should be the aim in the appointments of a flower shop. These three elements offer great possibilities of beauty.

To keep the appearance up-to-date, frequent changes of decoration are necessary. Tear down the old frieze of twenty years ago; line your store with mirrors and hanging cases; install a modern refrigerator. Fresh tinting, fresh paint, new architectural details, such as columns and arches, which will furnish new background for floral effects, will give a store a tone of prosperity and will cause its customers to gaze about in admiration.

In his desire to display all the stock within his establishment, the average florist misses the great opportunity for perfect decorative effects. Cluttered masses of many varieties only confuse the would-be purchaser. Simplicity is the keynote of charm in floral detail.

Harmonious Decorations.

A few flowers, harmonious in color with their surroundings, arranged in handsome vases of pottery; a palm or two in copper or Teco jardinieres, and perhaps a few ferns in receptacles which are a part of the architectural detail are enough to complete the atmosphere of elegance and refinement which at present dignify too few flower shops in this country.

The window decoration of a shop is significant of the character of the shop. It should display the taste of an artist. Color and arrangement are the important factors. The decoration should suggest the flower and idea of the season. Fruit combined with flowers and leaves furnishes an effective fall window. Water and ships in the spring suggest farewell messages of flowers to those sailing. A map of the world suggests the fact that orders can be cabled to any port. Passersby appreciate unusual decorations. All windows observe Fourth of July and Memorial day, but a Burns or Shakespeare or Scott birthday observance is unique and therefore doubly appreciated. There are innumerable local events that afford the basis for a special window display.

A restful, daintily furnished room equipped with writing tables and chairs, and designed especially for the comfort of patrons, is indispensable. In this room customers can meet appointments and write messages to be enclosed in orders. Here also can the salespersons discuss decorations and exchange suggestions.

The Staff.

Since the object of all business effort is to build up a permanent trade, all who serve the public should be possessed of the desire to satisfy each customer perfectly. Salespeople should have attractive personalities. The high-class man or woman, neatly and tastefully dressed, who can meet customers with dignity and courtesy, commands the admiration of the prospective buyer. More than this, the salesperson should be courageous enough to make suggestions and clever enough to influence the customer in his or her selection. The skillful and rapid handling of business appeals to florists' customers, most of whom are people of temperament and easily impressed. Let me say, too, that I believe a woman's finer sensibilities and intuition make her a person of rarer genius for selling flowers than a man.

The buyers should be men of special characteristics. To the head buyer should be entrusted the order list for the day. Upon his judgment depends the filling of those orders. He must not only know good stock; he must not only dare to buy or desist from buying; he must be in good standing with every firm. He must be possessed of characteristics that make friends; he must be a good fellow, so that when stock is scarce he will stand as good a chance as any other buyer of securing the coveted article.

The Proprietor.

There are daily problems in the business world which no one but the proprietor can handle; many little details for which he is responsible. He must be a man of sound judgment, of large-hearted generosity, quick to see error, willing to cater to the whim of a customer whose complaint the clerk may not have considered justifiable.

The personal attention of the proprietor is flattering to a customer who lingers only too gladly to hear the latest horticultural news of new varieties, or perhaps to receive information as to planting and pruning shrubs or concerning symptoms of disease on house plants.

The many demands of churches and institutions are annoying, but they must be met by the proprietor with patience and willingness to concede their requests. After all, giving to institutions and organizations is the cheapest way of advertising. In times of overproduction, the surplus should be sent to schools and hospitals. It is a better business practice than reducing the price. The school children of today are your customers of tomorrow. You have practiced no great magnanimity; the returns are manifold.

May E. McAdams.

RETAIL STORE MANAGEMENT

WHAT THE LEADERS IN THE TRADE ARE DOING

ANOTHER SOURCE OF BUSINESS.

It was Saturday afternoon in a Chicago retail flower store.

"Joe," said the boss, "here's luck! Telegram from So & So, Boston, corsage for Mrs. Gotrocks, on the California Limited, Polk street station, Sunday night."

"Good," said Joe, "I can kill two birds with one stone."

For Chicago retailers are taking especially good care to see that every telegraph order for flowers to the exposition trains is filled—filled even if it makes someone come down to the store Sunday afternoon to make up a bouquet and then deliver it at the station during the short twenty minutes the sleepers stand for loading. If there is one order, that's good business; if there are two orders, that's good luck.

Leaving Chicago just before the dinner hour each evening are five big overland expresses—through trains de luxe to the coast. For years Chicago retailers have delivered more or less flowers to these trains, but in the few weeks since the expositions opened this business has taken a big jump. With wealthy people from the east passing through in increasing numbers the orders for flowers to the trains have multiplied until the Fleischman Floral Co. has gone so far as to advertise this service in the daily newspapers.

Most of the orders the Chicago retailers are handling are wired by florists in the east. Nearly all the orders call for corsage bouquets and $5 is the popular price, the florist who sends the order receiving a bill for that amount less twenty per cent.

Of course the business will grow; it's too neat a little turn not to take well with the public. Also, the florists east of Chicago will now be "wise" to the idea and will call it to the attention of those who have friends passing through Chicago on their way west.

It has been found better to deliver the flowers to the outgoing train than to try to deliver them elsewhere. Most of the incoming trains arrive in the morning and the travelers spend the day as pleases their fancy; catching them at a hotel is uncertain. But they will not miss a train on which space has been reserved, probably weeks in advance; practically every delivery will connect if the train is correctly specified in the order.

The California Fair

has attracted visitors from all over the States. Thousands of them pass through Chicago. It has become the custom for one to send a gift of flowers to friends leaving for the coast.

Our automobiles make trips to every outgoing train.

Working Up New Business.

THE HOUSE OF 1,000 MIRRORS.

The new store of Joseph Trepel, at 1070 Flatbush avenue, Brooklyn, has the name of "The House of a Thousand Mirrors," and a view of the interior of the store would lead one to believe that there are fully that number. Perhaps a count would verify that impression, for the walls are made up of small mirror panels throughout.

Joseph Trepel's New Brooklyn Store.

Car Representing C. A. Samuelson in Prosperity Parade, Chicago, April 26.

The rest of the store has furnishings to fit. Brass and purple upholstery are uniform. The shelving and counters are of glass. The floor is inlaid. A fountain plays in the center of the store. Outside, as the illustration shows, there is a large electric light sign, and an abundance of flowers of all kinds at all times. The store is 25x75, and underneath is a basement of equal size. This is the crowning enterprise of Mr. Trepel's six Brooklyn stores. The proprietor, with a satisfied smile, occupies a corner of the foreground.

CRAWFORD'S CLASSY STORE.

Those who have read the news notes from Des Moines, Ia., in The Review of late know of the opening of the store in the Shops building, at Eighth and Walnut street, by U. L. Crawford. They know, too, something of the way in which the place is furnished, but will gain a better idea from the illustration on page 13 of this issue. The entire store is finished in white enamel, and is lined with mirror panels. A green carpet covers the floor. The arrangements and decorations are simply and neatly made. The refrigerator and other fixtures were furnished by Buchbinder Bros., Chicago, and installed under the supervision of Sidney Buchbinder. One of the novel features of the new Shops building, in which the Crawford store is located, is that one automobile furnishes delivery service for all the occupants.

WHAT A WINDOW WILL DO.

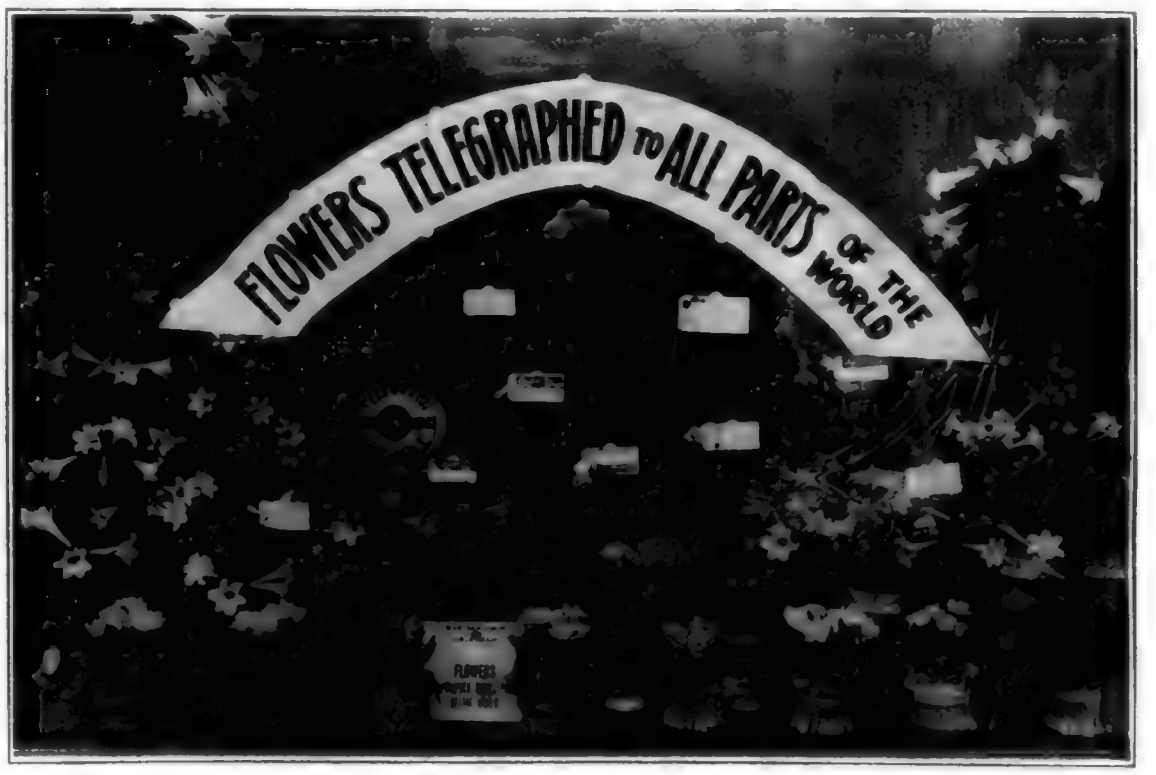
The passers-by stopped, listened, and looked, with the same intentness that they might have obeyed the injunction to that effect on the semicircular red sign at a railroad crossing.

The sound they heard was that of a telegraph instrument; the sight they saw was that shown in the illustration on this page, the window of Hollywood Gardens, Inc., Second avenue at Pine, Seattle, Wash. In a conspicuous position, though somewhat hidden in the shadow in the illustration, was a smiling young lady industriously working a telegraph instrument of the Western Union Telegraph Co., which was connected with tickers both inside and outside. The delivery tags of florists in different parts of the country and extremely conspicuous signs called the attention of the spectators to the opportunities presented by that ticking instrument. A large array of plants indicated what might be sent over the wires to distant parts.

And, what is more to the point, after stopping, listening and looking, the passers-by walked into the store and sent telegraph orders to the number of a score or more each day. This window decoration occupied the window of the Hollywood Gardens store only the first four days of Easter week, and in the course of the week, says Manager Chas. E. Sullivan, the firm sent over 100 telegraph orders and one cable order to London.



MR. MOCK SUGGESTS METHOD.

"Nine-tenths of the advertising florists have done has been with the idea of taking business away from 'the other fellow;' I have a plan that is to create absolutely new business."

The speaker was Hugo Mock, of New York, who visited the office of The Review one day this week on his way home from a trip to California.

While Mr. Mock's profession is the law, his hobby is commerce and advertising. He conceived the idea that flowers, perhaps the only largely sold commodity that must in the nature of things be obtained close to where they are to be used, afford a splendid opportunity to apply modern methods of nationally advertising trade-marked articles. But how can flowers be trademarked? They can not, but the florist can be. At least Mr. Mock thinks some one florist everywhere can be branded with a name that can be made known nationally, so he proceeded to organize the National Floral Corporation, with $10,000 capital and a large fund of enthusiasm. He plans to sell one florist in each community over 5,000 in population the right to be known as the National Florist, charging him an annual fee for the privilege. A portion of the funds so raised he purposes to expend in advertising and in other ways to acquaint the public with the name, National Florist, so that when Mr. Money Bags in Metropolis wants to send a rich corsage bouquet to his lady friend who is appearing at Omaha on a certain night, or when he wants to make any other use of flowers out of town, he will simply mail his order and money direct to the National Florist at that point. Also, he expects to cause travelers to seek out the National Florist when in a strange town. Mr. Mock has devised a number of ingenious assurances for the public and believes his plan should take well with the trade as promising to create a large volume of new business. He feels that his plan does not conflict with any of the existing arrangements for filling out-of-town orders, as his is a direct-from-consumer plan, while all others are arrangements entirely within the trade. Also, he feels that if any business is lost by florists whose customers learn to send out-of-town orders direct, it will be made up for many times over by the increased sales of flowers that will result from the advertising in publications of millions circulation.

It is Mr. Mock's plan to perfect his organization, appoint his agents and be ready to start his publicity about Thanksgiving, so the trade for several months will have to restrain its impatience to see how the scheme works.

Geraniums

SHAW'S GARDEN SELECTIONS.

In the June, 1914, number of the Missouri Botanical Garden bulletin, announcement was made of an extensive test of geranium varieties with a view to adding, if possible, new desirable varieties to the small list of those at present known to be suited to growing in St. Louis and vicinity. In this experiment 367 varieties were included, careful observations on which were kept during the last season, especially as regards heat and drought resistance, profusion of flowers, color, shape and size of flower clusters, character of foliage, etc. Although last season was exceptionally dry and hot—conditions which are not at all favorable to the growing of many varieties of geraniums—favorable growth and satisfactory flower production have been recorded for seventy-six (a list of which is here appended) out of the 367 varieties tested. For convenience, the classification and sequence of the varieties as here given are the same as in the June, 1914, number of the bulletin.

In the following list, whether the variety is double or single is indicated by the initial following its name.

STEM-ROT OF GERANIUMS.

I am sending by parcel post a few geranium plants which are affected with a stem disease. The first symptoms seem to be a reddening or yellowing of the outer leaves; later the stem appears black or dark colored and eventually shrinks up. The disease can often be seen within the stem of plants which have leaves turning, before it appears on the outside. The number of plants affected is probably about 600 out of a total of 2,000. It seems to be spreading rapidly. Would soil from affected plants be fit to use again, or should it be carted away? I shall appreciate it if you will tell me the name of this disease and mention anything which will serve as a remedy.

L. S.—Mich.

The plants forwarded were badly affected with stem-rot. This trouble may have had its inception in the cutting bench, if the cuttings were allowed to remain too long before being potted, or it can be developed by burying the stems of the plants too deeply when potting them. If rooted cuttings are received with rather long stems, there is always a temptation to bury them more or less and thus give the plants a stockier appearance. This often causes stem-rot to appear. You may have used soil from a carnation or chrysanthemum bench where there had been stem-rot, as the germs stay in the soil ready to prey on the next suitable plants. This may have helped to produce your trouble. Do not use any soil in which other plants affected with stem-rot have been growing, without first sterilizing the soil. I would certainly not propagate from any plants in the least affected, but rather destroy them. There is little you can do now to help the plants, except to give them all possible sunshine and fresh air, keep them well spaced apart and avoid spraying overhead. C. W.

RIVERSIDE AT ROCHESTER.

It is only two or three years since William Albright started in business at Rochester, Wis., where he is known as the Riverside Florist. A view of his present place is shown in the illustration on this page. He is doing a good general business and bids fair to show further growth.

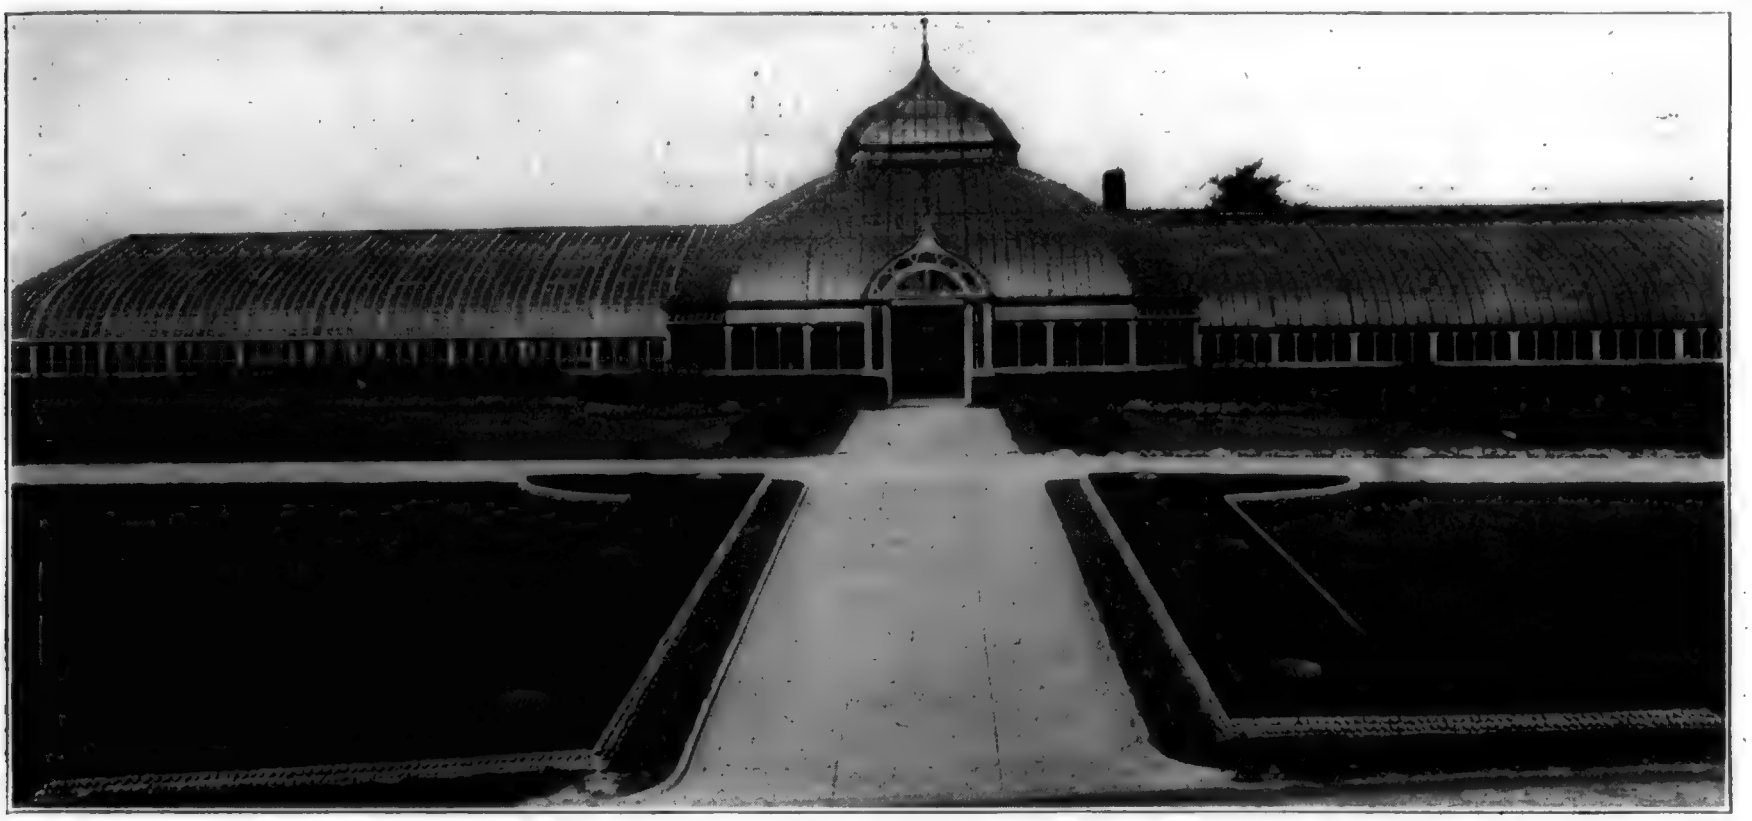
PEONIES FAIL TO FLOWER.

At what age or size do peonies flower, and in what kind of soil? I have had some seven years, but they have never bloomed.

E. C. C.—Okla.

There are various reasons for peonies not flowering. Your clumps may have been allowed to grow too long without being divided and replanted. They may have been in too poor soil, or they may not have had a sufficient supply of water at the roots. They require ground which has been deeply spaded or trenched and liberally manured. Fall is the best planting time, September being an excellent month for this work. If your climate is naturally hot and dry, there is the more likelihood of your plants failing to flower unless they can be watered or irrigated in some way. If the clumps are large, divide them; if not, simply replant as suggested. C. W.

AT PHIPPS CONSERVATORY.



The Aquatic House.

In the issue for October 15 The Review invited its readers, or such of them as felt so disposed, to make an imaginary visit to Schenley park, Pittsburgh, and view some of the grounds in front of Phipps Conservatory, as shown in two photographs reproduced in The Review's columns. Now the readers are asked, if they please, to continue their visit, with some more assistance from the photographer. They are asked to glance at the exterior of one of the buildings of the great conservatory and then to step inside, as it were, and examine one of the rooms.

Let us look, then, at the exterior of the building, as here pictured. As we approach the entrance, in this swift mental journey, we pass between the two carpet beds in the foreground of the illustration. These carpet beds, says J. W. Jones, the foreman of the conservatory, are each thirty-three feet long and six feet wide at the narrowest points. They are planted with 15,000 alternantheras of the varieties paronychioides, brilliantissima, aurea, amabilis and amœna, besides about 300 Kleinia speciosa and yellow cotyledons and a border of 3,000 Echeveria glauca. The oblong beds at the back are planted with Geranium S. A. Nutt, and the cannas are King Humbert.

The building itself forms a part of Phipps Conservatory and is known as the Aquatic House. The central part of the Aquatic House, surmounted by the dome, is devoted to the growing of Victoria regia and is usually referred to, therefore, as the Victoria House. To the right of the Victoria House is the department known as the Nymphæa House.

The Victoria Room.

So we enter the building and find ourselves at once in the Victoria House, the room shown in the illustration. This room is 52x53 and thirty-four feet high in the center. The concrete tank containing the Victoria regia is 36x45 feet and is irregular in shape. On the margin of the tank are various tropical plants, averaging in height from twelve inches to ten feet and so arranged as to present a natural tropical appearance. Prominent among the larger plants are Latania Borbonica, Areca lutescens, Chinese bananas and Colocasia odorata. These are planted from fifteen to twenty feet apart, and between them are placed miscellaneous low-growing plants, such as crotons, curculigos, etc., the object in mind being not to obstruct the view of the victorias, which form the main feature of the house. On the side benches are tropical plants in pots, including pandanus and crotons in variety. Among the pandanus, Pacificus is the most prominent.

There are two plants of Victoria regia in the tank. They are growing in boxes eight feet square and one foot deep, with eight inches of water above the crowns of the plants. The compost consists of one part of well decomposed cow manure to four parts of soil, with fifty pounds of bone flour and one bag of pulverized sheep manure added to the whole, and with two inches of cow manure placed in the bottom of the boxes. The seed was started January 15, 1914; the plants were set out May 23. The temperature of the water after planting was 75 to 80 degrees. This temperature was maintained by running hot water into the tank, but the hot water was discontinued in the latter part of July. The temperature of the house is 70 degrees at night.

The leaves of the victorias, August 23, when fully developed, averaged six feet eight inches to seven feet in diameter and they continued that size until September 15. The rims also, since that date, have averaged five and one-half to six inches high. The plants blossomed continually all summer and made such rapid growth that from two to three leaves had to be cut every week to make room for the young ones. Had the tank been twice as large, the plants would have filled it.

The Nymphæas.

From the Victoria House we pass into the room at the right, already designated as the Nymphæa House. It is 36x84 feet and twenty feet high. It contains a tank which is 16x63 feet, irregular in shape and about eighteen inches deep. In the tank are planted sixteen nymphæas, in boxes two and one-half feet square and one foot deep. The varieties, says Foreman Jones, include two day-blooming sorts, Mrs. C. W. Ward and Pennsylvania, and three night-blooming kinds, dentata, Deaniana and rubra rosea.

The margin of the nymphæa tank is planted in about the same way as the margin of the victoria tank. Among the most prominent plants used on the margin are the banana, or Musa zebrina; the shell plant, or Alpinia nutans, and large acalyphas and crotons in variety. On the side benches may be seen the sycamore of the Bible, or Ficus Sycomorus, as well as a number of economic plants, such as the nutmeg tree, or Myristica fragrans; the allspice tree, or Pimenta acris, and the vanilla bean plant.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS FOR SOUTHERN FLORISTS

NEPHROLEPIS IN THE SOUTH.

Planting Runners and Divisions.

At any time now the small pot plants or runners of nephrolepis can be planted outside, either under a lath house or in frames covered with lath sashes. Old specimen plants may be cut down, divided and planted out also. The ground should have a good coating of manure, spaded in, well broken up and smoothed. A half-inch layer of leaf-mold on top makes an excellent running ground for young suckers.

In some of the extreme southern sections it is better to plant out in the open than under a shade of any kind. The larvæ from a night-prowling moth do an immense amount of damage to the young shoots of plants grown under a shade, while those grown in the open evidently have no attraction for the night rover. August seems to be the month of greatest damage and the pests are hard to reach with any kind of spray. Weekly sprayings of Fir Tree Oil seem to be the best remedy.

The Favorite Varieties.

The old Boston and W. K. Harris seem to be the best sellers for vases and porch boxes in the spring, while the dwarfer varieties, like N. compacta, Scholzeli and Smithii, are the winter favorites. N. Smithii last winter easily led in popular favor and is the prettiest and most graceful of the whole genus when well grown. This variety can be grown in shallow pans and these can be placed on inverted pots, allowing plenty of room between the plants. Some care is needed in watering, to keep the foliage dry. If allowed to get wet, the bottom foliage decays and the plant loses much of its beauty. This variety takes up more room than the others, but it sells for more money also.

N. davallioides furcans is a grand old fern, which still can hold up its head with the best of them, but the pity is that it is seldom seen now. This variety does not produce runners so readily as most of the others, but if planted out and allowed to remain undisturbed for two years, it will produce runners literally by the million. Surely some of the growers who are practically below the frost line could devote a frame to this fine variety, with profit.

L.

Their Summer Treatment.

The best place for cyclamens during summer, in the south, is in a shallow frame under a lath shed. During the hottest part of the day they should have another covering of lath sashes; otherwise they wilt badly. These latter can be removed generally about 4 o'clock in the afternoon. In the Carolinas I have never found it necessary to protect the plants with glass sashes during rain storms, simply because the rains have never been severe or frequent enough to do any harm to the plants under the laths.

Before taking the plants to their summer quarters, it is well to dip each one in a nicotine solution to kill any thrips or other insects. A layer of tobacco stems between the rows is a great thrips preventive and should be renewed every two weeks, at the same time respacing the plants and cultivating the surface soil around each one. They will require watering twice each day, unless it is cloudy. Each plant must be watered according to its individual needs, using a slender stream from the hose. After they are watered, the plants should be sprayed gently, or rather dewed, all over. A final spraying just at quitting time will take the place of the night dew, which the lath house excludes.

In repotting, see that the pots are clean and use plenty of drainage; for this a piece of broken pot, with some small cinders on top, will be satisfactory. The soil should still contain a generous quantity of leaf-mold and nearly one-third of old, well rotted cow manure.

BULBS A SECOND SEASON.

Considerable uncertainty prevails here regarding the second blooming of bulbs. The question is, will certain kinds of bulbs bloom next year, if the flowers have been cut this year? Does the picking of flowers have any effect upon the blooming of the bulbs the next year? Will narcissi under these conditions bloom the next year? Will tulips, daffodils, jonquils or hyacinths?

R. D. G. C.—Ark.

If hyacinths, tulips and narcissi are forced under glass, they are of no value for forcing a second season. These bulbs can be planted outdoors, however, and will give fairly good results a second and succeeding seasons.

Hyacinths planted outdoors and left undisturbed will continue to flower for several years, even if the flowers are removed. They gradually deteriorate, however. None of the narcissus family are harmed by having their flowers picked and many of them will continue to flower almost indefinitely if occasionally lifted when the foliage has matured, and planted out more thinly. The small trumpet section, which includes forms of poeticus, incomparabilis, Leedsii, etc., generally speaking are hardier and increase more satisfactorily than the big trumpets, but Emperor, Empress, princeps and Double Von Sion are exceptions to this rule. All the true jonquils, such as simplex, Campernelle and rugulosus, will last from year to year outdoors.

Tulips are more injured by having the flowers cut than are the other bulbs, for, if they are cut down to the ground, all the foliage is removed. If the flowers only are removed, no harm is done. Bulbs from which the entire foliage is cut with the flower will bloom sparsely, if at all, the following season. Darwin and cottage tulips make long stems and it is possible with them to get a sufficient stem with the flower without sacrificing too much foliage. These late tulips will not only bloom from year to year, but often increase. They should be replanted every third or fourth year, however. The early tulips will flower for several seasons, but do not wear so long as the Darwins.

WHERE IS THE OUTLET?

Would it not be a good idea to get an expression of opinion from florists in different sections of the country, regarding the business conditions which prevailed during the month of April? We think it is generally conceded that April was a sort of "Black Friday" to the flower trade in general.

Commencing the first of the month, a severe storm developed in the southwest and gradually swept across the country, ending in a violent snow storm along the Atlantic coast, as far north as Boston. This storm, coming just when the Easter trade of the wholesalers should have been at its height, resulted in a tremendous loss to the growers. In the Chicago district, the shipping trade to the south, southeast and east was nearly cut off by this storm, and a severe slump in the market the day before Easter developed, while along the Atlantic seaboard the losses to our eastern florists were enormous.

A few days after Easter there developed an unusually hot wave, which lasted all through the month of April. This hot wave seemed to become more aggravated as the month wore on. The U. S. Weather Bureau states that the temperature during April had an excess of 10.4 degrees above the normal April, and that the heat wave, both in intensity and area, broke all previous records for the month of April. This hot wave brought on such quantities of flowers that it was impossible to dispose of our product at satisfactory prices. Quantities of stock had to be thrown away, and a severe demoralization existed in the market the greater part of the month.

The question which has come to my mind is whether this serious slump in the flower business was caused entirely by the weather or if there has not been too great a development of the growing end of our business, without equal attention being given to the selling end of the line. It is an easy matter to build additional glass and produce additional stock, but we must bear in mind that additional outlets must be provided to absorb this increased stock at paying prices. We will, no doubt, experience other heavy gluts of stock in the market when the weather again turns warm and these large surpluses of stock will have to be moved.

The selling of roses and carnations to the department stores at from $5 to $7 per thousand cannot be considered profitable to either the grower or the store man. This method of doing business at such low prices is, in my estimation, harmful to the trade. To sell these flowers at $5 per thousand does not pay the cost of handling them, let alone anything for the growing end of the line.

One method of coping with these severe gluts of flowers during hot weather is for the growers to carefully sort their roses and carnations when being cut, discarding all stock that is weak or short-stemmed, only sending to market the better grades of what is being cut. This will cut off at least twenty-five per cent and will help some to reduce the surplus. Our own firm tried this plan last month and was surprised to find our sales averaged a little better on the whole when the cut of stock averaged a higher grade, though less in quantity. It also was easier handling the stock.

The writer thinks that an expression of opinion from others in the trade might result in general benefit to us all.

CHICAGOANS AT CHRISTENING.

How Peter Reinberg, with his gilded shovel, removed the last dirt from the concrete road at Niles, and how Miss Virginia Poehlmann splashed the bottle of champagne on the road, on her Russian boots and on the surrounding spectators, is graphically shown in the accompanying illustrations. The occasion was the dedication of the new concrete road at Niles, which Miss Poehlmann christened Milwaukee avenue, April 22. Mr. Reinberg performed his task as part of the pleasures of the president of the county board; Miss Poehlmann acted as daughter of the president of the village board of Morton Grove. George Harrer, who is president of the Niles Improvement Association, made the address of welcome, and a number of other florists participated as interested spectators.

The faces of both August and Adolph Poehlmann may be seen over the shoulders of those in front, much interested in the labors of their fellow-tradesman. In the other illustration, the father, mother and sister of the christener, as well as the president of the county board, are in the front row.

FLY ON ROSES AND LEMONS.

There are some small insects on our rose bushes and Ponderosa lemons. The roses have been covered with this insect, but a hard rain washed them off. The lemons, however, still are full of them. They seem to be small white flies, and the under side of the leaves is covered with scales or eggs. We shall appreciate it if you will tell us what to do with the pest.

M. A. & T. E.—Miss.

Your plants are undoubtedly infested with white fly, which is not by any means easy to control. Under glass it can easily be kept in check by the use of hydrocyanic acid gas. This same remedy is often used in orange growing sections of Florida and California to kill San Jose scale and white fly. Close canvas covers are placed over the trees and the gas is generated inside. You cannot, of course, apply this to your rose bushes. The best course of treatment is to spray frequently with a soapy solution, such as whale oil soap, Ivory soap or Aphine; or you can use kerosene emulsion or nicotine. Use a fine, misty spray nozzle and a force pump. Direct it well below the leaves. Keep this up and you will soon clean out most of the white fly. C. W.

MALCHOW MAKES A FIND.

At his establishment at 3743-45 North Clark street, Chicago, Adolph Malchow has a greenhouse on top of a brick shed. This shed contains a potting room, and underneath is a boiler in the basement. The water running down the glass side-walls of the greenhouse onto the brick walls of the shed caused a great deal of trouble by freezing there and consequently loosening the mortar. This crumbled away or cracked off, giving Mr. Malchow some anxiety. In looking about for something to prevent this damage, he hit upon Federal Elastic Cement, originally a roofing material, but now put to a number of other uses, a product of the Federal Process Co., Cleveland. He put the cement on the top of the brick walls without the help of a contractor, and found it served the purpose admirably. What little crumbling occurred after the application he attributes to the fact that he did not put on enough of the cement. A little more put on this summer will, he thinks, prevent any damage whatever.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Lilies for Summer and Fall.

Every florist who has a retail trade grows, or should grow, several varieties of lilies. Of these longiflorum giganteum can be had the entire year if cold storage bulbs are used, and, by the way, some of these should be potted now and stood below a greenhouse bench or on a cellar floor. Then, L. candidum, the purest and most beautiful of all white lilies, can be had in flower under glass from the end of March until the middle of June. L. auratum, where potted in November and kept below a greenhouse bench, should commence flowering in June, while L. speciosum album and Melpomene will flower from early July until October, by holding back a percentage of the plants in a cold house or pit. These speciosums can also be potted in July for flowering in late fall and winter, but this cold storage stock will not give spikes of anything like the quality of those produced on fresh bulbs potted as soon as they arrive in November or December. L. speciosum also does well outdoors, but it is not possible to get as clean flowers from open-air stock as when it is pot-grown, as rains and dews badly spot the flowers.

Euonymus Radicans.

A frequent query is as to what is the best hardy evergreen climber. English ivy is all right in some sections, but it is not hardy in the colder states, but Euonymus radicans is sufficiently hardy to withstand 25 degrees below zero without injury. It is sometimes considered a slow grower, but if given good soil will grow fast; in fact, I have plants in mind which covered a wall sixteen feet high in four years. These were not only in good soil, but were occasionally watered in dry weather and had a mulch of cow manure each spring. This evergreen climber will cling to stone, concrete or wood. It is also valuable for covering rocks, boulders and dry stone walls. It is of easy propagation, summer being the best time to put in cuttings.

Marguerites for Next Winter.

Well flowered, bushy marguerites in midwinter are rarely seen in the markets. That they would sell well goes without saying. For winter blooming, the old white Paris daisy, Chrysanthemum frutescens, has all others beaten to a frazzle, to use a somewhat slangy phrase. Mrs. Sander is good in spring and summer, but will not make the same shapely plant as the older variety. The yellow varieties are harder to grow and are rarely seen in shapely plants, excellent though they may be for cutting. Root cuttings now from some cut-back plants. Never mind if they are full of flower buds. These can be kept picked off. Cuttings rooted now will make rapid growth and must be kept potted along. Keep them in the greenhouse until the middle of June. They should then be quite bushy stock in 6-inch pots. At this time plunge outdoors in a bed of coal ashes in the full sun. Keep flowers, which will constantly appear, picked off, and give the plants lots of water. In August move into 8-inch pots. In this size they will flower any time after December 1 if placed in a cool, airy greenhouse. Pinching should be discontinued in September for Christmas plants, but can be continued some time later if the blooming season is to be retarded. Splendid plants can be grown in 8-inch pots if the plants get plenty of water and feeding, and there are few flowering plants which have a longer season of bloom.

Hardy Trees and Shrubs.

The spring planting season is brief and strenuous, having to be crowded into practically one month. It is often impossible to get deciduous trees and shrubs planted until almost in leaf. Provided planting is carefully done, after moistening the roots well, and such plants are well headed back, they will rarely fail to grow satisfactorily. If they are not pruned back a good many deaths are a certainty. Protect the roots of all evergreens well, to prevent drying out. Soak well after the hole is partly filled in and, after the hole has been filled and well firmed, give a mulch of partly decayed leaves or old manure; rakings from lawns also are useful.

Where hot, dry weather succeeds planting, it will be found of great benefit to all evergreens to give them a hosing over in the evening. In planting rhododendrons a peaty soil is not necessary, but a soil free from lime is required. They like, if possible, to have a location where trees or buildings protect them from the morning sun, but I have in mind many good beds which have none of these advantages. A generous summer mulch of leaves to keep the roots cool and moist is necessary. Neither rhododendrons nor any other evergreens can long withstand dry conditions at the roots, although deciduous plants do not mind it.

After deciduous trees and shrubs are planted, see that the surface soil is kept stirred. If allowed to bake hard they will speedily suffer when hot, dry weather arrives. Cultivation means more to the majority of crops than watering, although artificial watering is sometimes necessary to save newly planted stock, especially where the ground had not been well prepared in advance.

Prairie Pick-ups

Blue Mound, Kan.—After a light winter for business, spring, accompanied by a large number of orders for bedding plants and shrubs already booked, is more than welcome. Mrs. Arthur Foster reports the demand for roses in the lead this year, with the same old cry, "Something new in the climbers."

Anamosa, Ia.—Mrs. M. D. Bagley started a business as Bagley's Floral Place and has been so successful that she was unable to cope with the situation alone. Therefore Mr. Bagley has come to her assistance and they plan to enlarge their facilities and push the trade. Prospects are excellent, the district being prosperous.

Topeka, Kan.—With the customary perspicacity of public officials, the executive council has appointed James Hayes, the local florist, gardener of the state house grounds, but made no provision for watering or removing weeds. Mr. Hayes' duty is to plant some flowers; that is all. Through legislative economy the state house grounds annually assume the aspect of a cow pasture by midsummer.

Galena, Ill.—The greenhouse of B. F. Vandervate was almost destroyed by fire on the evening of April 26. In lighting tobacco stems for fumigation, some paper under a bench was ignited. The fire gained a large headway before it was discovered, and on account of the lack of water on the grounds it could not easily be checked. The loss is estimated at about $800. Mr. Vandervate will rebuild the greenhouse at once.

Winona, Minn.—Chas. Siebrecht was detained for several days on his recent trip to Chicago by an attack of acute indigestion, necessitating the care of a physician.

Forest City, Ia.—The Hill City Greenhouses have joined the Boosters' Club in its effort to encourage the keeping of better lawns and home gardens, by offering several prizes for the best beds of various colors of cannas.

Dixon, Ill.—Charles O. Engel has sold the Rosery Floral Co. to J. A. Swartley & Sons, who are conducting it as an outlet for their greenhouses at Sterling. The plans of Mr. Engel for the future are not known.

Tulsa, Okla.—It required some persuasion to get the city commissioners to allow the erection of a rustic arch along the curb in front of the store of Mrs. Perry De Haven, at Third and Boulder streets, but it was finally done.

Evansville, Ind.—The hypochlorate of lime used at the city filter plant in the filtration and sterilization of the river water when the river is low is said by the florists of the city to be detrimental to plant life, on lawns and in the greenhouses. The Wm. Blackman Floral Co. and J. S. Snyder have private pumping plants and avoid using city water. Julius Niednagel says that the death of ill cared for plants is blamed on the city water, but it undoubtedly has a bad effect on plant life. The waterworks authorities do not admit any dangerous qualities resulting from the use of the chemical.

HERE'S HELP FOR FLORISTS

BOILER MEN OFFER ASSISTANCE

A flood of legislation affecting our heating boilers brings the offer of co-operation from manufacturers' effective organization

EVERYBODY knows, through the article printed in The Review for March 4, of the trouble Ohio florists are in because of the action of the boiler inspection department of the Industrial Commission of that state. There is an old law on the statute books there that requires, in certain cases, the employment of a licensed fireman. Until recently it was not enforced as against florists, although it had been on the books for fourteen years. But now every florist who runs a boiler of thirty horsepower is required to employ licensed firemen—enough of them to keep his boiler going the twenty-four hours; he can not even stoke it himself part of the time unless he can pass the technical examination and get a fireman's license, which few florists can do.

A horsepower means, according to Ohio law, twelve square feet of heating surface. It is immaterial whether the operator develops this horsepower by the 100 pounds of pressure required or whether he runs his boiler at only one pound of pressure. It is held, apparently, that a 30-horsepower boiler run at low pressure is a dangerous thing and must be in the charge of a licensed operator, while a 29-horsepower boiler operated at the highest pressure possible can be run by Tom, Dick or Harry.

Many Laws Threaten.

Now comes the information that similar or otherwise inimical laws threaten—have threatened to the number of seventy-five in the last year—and few florists knew anything about it. Even today the Pennsylvania legislature is at work on a bill that will require every florist to pay a fee for the inspection of his boiler, no matter how small it may be, and in many cases to employ only licensed firemen to operate it.

The manufacturers of boilers have long appreciated the dangers that lie in such legislation and they have an effective organization for meeting them. Their secretary is Frederick W. Herendeen, of Geneva, N. Y., who was for some years a member of the Society of American Florists and who has attended many of this trade's national conventions. Mr. Herendeen believes that the florists' organizations and the Boiler Manufacturers' Association should work together. He is in a splendid position to give warning of threatened legislation prejudicial to our interests and the S. A. F. is in position, through its widespread membership and its staff of state vice-presidents, to present its case strongly in every state in the Union.

Mr. Herendeen's Idea.

Mr. Herendeen wrote The Review under date of May 1 in part, as follows:

"One of our members has called my attention to the issue of March 4 of The Review, on page 23 of which, under the heading 'Florists Fight for Firemen; Ohio Greenhouse Men in Arms,' is a most interesting article bearing on the enforcement of a law which requires in Ohio licensing firemen on all boilers of thirty horsepower or more.

"One of the objects of our association—which is composed of some twenty-five prominent boiler and radiator manufacturers—is to resist along proper lines the passage of bills in the various legislatures which unduly and unnecessarily work hardships on the owners and users of low pressure heating boilers by requiring them to be inspected and by requiring them to have a licensed engineer or fireman to take care of the boiler.

"We believe, as an association, that all low pressure heating boilers carrying fifteen pounds or less steam pressure should be exempt from inspection and should not require a licensed engineer.

"The American Society of Mechanical Engineers, after working a long time, has formulated standard specifications for the construction of steam boilers, and has formulated rules and allowable working pressures for steam boilers. Their book is commonly known as 'The Boiler Code.' The American Society of Mechanical Engineers, the highest technical society in this country, in Section 2 of the code, beginning on page 81, states that the maximum allowable working pressure for a low pressure steam heating boiler shall not exceed fifteen pounds to the square inch.

"It may be news to you to know that some seventy-five bills have been introduced in the various state legislatures this year which more or less have a direct bearing on low pressure heating boilers.

The Pennsylvania Bill.

"There is at the present moment introduced into the legislature of Pennsylvania a dangerous bill from our point of view; namely, Senate Bill 841, a bill creating a division of boiler inspection, and under its various sections requiring that all heating boilers be inspected in Pennsylvania; that the owners must pay a tax on inspection; and that heating boilers must require in some cases a licensed engineer to run them. I am going to Harrisburg May 3 on this particular bill.

"Had many of these seventy-five bills introduced in state legislatures in the last year been passed it would have meant that low pressure heating boilers would have had to be inspected and would have required a licensed

The Call to Arms

Ohio florists are engaged in a battle against an ancient law now dug up for enforcement in greenhouses.

A bill now before the Pennsylvania legislature would provide for the inspection of all heating boilers and in many cases compel florists to employ licensed firemen.

Seventy-five bills affecting the interests of every florist who operates a boiler have been introduced in state legislatures during the last year.

Boiler manufacturers, interested almost as much as florists are, have an association that will coöperate with the S. A. F., with state or local organizations, or with individual florists seeking to eliminate the bad features of proposed laws. Secretary Frederick W. Herendeen, Geneva, N. Y., makes the offer.

engineer to run them. The loss this would put upon florists operating small places is too well understood to require comment.

"I think it would be extremely wise for the Society of American Florists and their allied interests to work in harmony with this association for the purpose of defeating these bills, and to that end, I am writing President Patrick Welch today along the lines of this letter.

"I believe it would be a wise plan if a committee of the Society of American Florists, together with the Editor of The Review, could meet with the executive committee of our association for a further debate of this interesting problem. I shall be glad to arrange for our association a meeting of our executive committee to meet with the gentlemen suggested above if you think it is wise to do so."

Chance for State Vice-Presidents.

Here is the offer of effective help. In most cases the trade has no knowledge of the threatened danger until it is far too late to take steps to turn legislation into safe channels. But, warned by the association of boiler manufacturers of which Mr. Herendeen is secretary, the trade has the organization for effective work. In two or three states there are well officered associations capable of leading such a fight as impends in Pennsylvania, but in most states the work can best be done under the leadership of the S. A. F. state vice-president, backed by the members and by the trade at large in the state. No doubt President Welch will take prompt advantage of Mr. Herendeen's offer of coöperation. To get the state vice-presidents effectively at work for the interests of the trade would be a credit to any administration.

Portland, Me.—The new greenhouses on Main street are about completed and will be occupied by James Hawker.

Lynn, Mass.—Samuel T. Goodwin has the sympathy of the trade in the death of his sister, Mrs. A. T. Feltch, of Newburyport, April 22.

Fairfield, Me.—C. P. Loder's greenhouse was broken into on a recent night, but the burglars got nothing but some stamped envelopes and a few blank checks from the office.

Wellesley Hills, Mass.—During the big storm Monday afternoon, April 26, a large greenhouse on Oakland avenue, owned by Thomas Capers, was demolished by the wind, entailing a loss estimated at about $5,000.

Orono, Me.—Members of the trade may be interested in Bulletin 233, recently issued by the Maine Agricultural Experiment Station. It is by Edith M. Patch, entomologist, and bears the title "Maine Aphids of the Rose Family."

Fall River, Mass.—Bids submitted to the park board for the addition of a greenhouse and corridor at the Oak Grove cemetery range were: Weathered Co., Jersey City, N. J., $2,650; Lord & Burnham Co., Boston, $3,775; Hitchings & Co., Boston, $3,926.

Branford, Conn.—After an existence of about a month, the store of Latham & Barrows, on Main street, was closed April 24, again proving the inability of this town to support a flower store. Branford A. Latham has greenhouses at Guilford. Mr. Barrows was in the employ of a New Haven florist before starting the business here.

Pottersville, Mass.—An attempt was made to burn the residence and greenhouses of John Cross, on Center street, Saturday night, April 24. The porch and steps had been covered by kerosene by the firebug and ignited. Fortunately, the blaze was discovered before it had spread far. Mr. Cross has only been a resident here a short time, and cannot imagine any reason for the act.

Springfield, Mass.—Three thousand rose bushes are being set out this spring in Forest park, in the rose garden started last year under the charge of Marshall Headle.

Portland, Me.—At a meeting, April 19, at the grange hall at Stroudwater, the florists of Portland and vicinity elected the following as officers of the organization they are forming: President, L. C. Goddard; vice-president, Mrs. Blanche Newcomb; secretary, W. C. Sawyer; treasurer, Miss Marion E. McGunigle.

Wakefield, Mass.—Charles C. Ball has at length reached an agreement with the board of selectmen and the municipal light board in regard to the amount to be paid by the city as damages for the injury done Mr. Ball's plants in his greenhouses, at the corner of Yale and North avenues, by escaping gas. The sum agreed upon is $1,800. The light department some weeks ago found the city was liable, and since that time the selectmen and Mr. Ball have been trying to agree on a fair figure for damages without taking the case into court.

Hartford, Conn.—As the purchase of the property of John Coombs at the corner of Maple avenue and Benton street as a site for one of the new high schools was approved at the recent election, it became necessary for Mr. Coombs to secure new land for his greenhouses. He has purchased twelve acres on South street adjoining Goodwin park, now unimproved, for between $15,000 and $20,000. On this land Mr. Coombs will erect the new house he planned to build on the property the city is purchasing, and rebuild the houses moved from the old site. If Mr. Coombs does not need the whole twelve acres for greenhouses, he may open part of the tract for residential purposes. He will keep the old ranges on both sides of Benton street, to which the one he is moving was an auxiliary. The sum which Mr. Coombs will receive from the city is $40,000.

EARLY DAYS IN PHILADELPHIA.

Phil Interviews John Walker.

[It chanced that, March 18, John Walker, of Youngstown, O., revisited the scenes of his youth. Mr. Walker talked so entertainingly of his experiences that it would be a loss not to repeat them. Some things have been purposely omitted, in the belief that Mr. Walker would prefer it so, and others, let us hope only a few, may not have been recorded on memory's tablet.—Phil.]

I commenced work [so relates John Walker] when a barefooted lad of 12 years, for Lemuel and Charles D. Ball, then doing business as Ball Bros., at Tacony. This was in 1872. Ball Bros. grew a general line of soft-wooded plants and several specialties. Lemuel Ball was extremely particular about the neatness of his houses. My first duty was to sweep the place. If I left a little piece of a 3-inch pot under the table, or any small bit of rubbish, Lemuel Ball would say, "Johnnie, sweep that house over again," and I did it. Charles D. Ball was most particular to dress neatly, but I do not think I have ever seen anyone else so particular about the neatness of the greenhouses as Lemuel Ball. This was a great advantage to me, for as a boy I learned habits of greenhouse cleanliness that were of great value to me afterward.

Lemuel Ball was greatly interested in dracænas, marantas and the like. He searched the catalogues for new varieties and when he found one that pleased his fancy, he sent for it, so that gradually quite a collection was acquired. From it I learned the different varieties and their habits in a practical way, not easily forgotten. One's memory is keen at that age and every plant carefully noted can easily be remembered. It is far, far more difficult to remember plants now; you see them, admire them and usually forget them. The other day I saw a plant I had not seen or thought about for thirty years, but I recognized it instantly and in a moment remembered its name. It was one of the clerodendrons.

A Trio of Hard Workers.

One of my duties at Ball Bros.' was to take the flowers in on the early train to Pennock Bros., who were then on Twelfth street. In this way I got to know some of the leading men in the business. They were hard workers at Pennock Bros.' Abram L. Pennock devoted about one-third of his time to the flower store, the rest going to his other interests. Thomas Cartledge gave about 105 per cent of his time; Thomas was a worker. John Westcott gave about ninety-five per cent of his time; Johnnie liked to go fishing once in a while.

The two Assembly balls and the Orpheus Club concert were the big flower events of the Philadelphia season in those days, when all the flowers in Philadelphia and many from New York were used. Thomas Cartledge would always let Lemuel Ball know the dates of these affairs well in advance, so as to have as many flowers as possible for them. Ball Bros. forced lily of the valley in 8-inch pots in those days and got $1.50 a dozen wholesale for the flowers. They were retailed at $3 a dozen.

Didn't Like the Soap Business.

In 1878 Ball Bros. went into the soap business and I went with them. Their greenhouses were pulled down and the plants, pots and sashes were sold. Robert Craig bought some. A short time before this he had left the Presbyterian Board of Publications, where he was a clerk, to become a florist. George Craig was then running the greenhouses at Thirteenth and Locust streets, and David Joyce was in charge of the greenhouses at Twelfth and Chestnut streets.

I did not like sliding around on the slippery floors of the soap factory, so I soon gave up my place and went to work for Robert Craig. I commenced on his birthday, March 18, 1878. The only three days I have ever been out of a job since I commenced working were the three days that intervened between the Wednesday when I left Ball Bros. and the Monday when I commenced with Robert Craig.

Twenty-two Years with Craig.

I worked with Robert Craig for twenty-two years; fifteen before I became foreman. Mr. Craig was his own foreman for a while. Then he had John Smith, and Bradley and Jacob Becker. I have never believed in taking more time to walk through a greenhouse than was necessary, or in tapping a plant gently several times when repotting geraniums. When I see a man do that I generally ask him where he learned his trade. It is ten to one he answers that it was on a private place. One tap for a geranium is enough commercially. Suppose you do kill a few, you will many times make up for it by the extra number you do in a day.

We all know that praise from one's first employer is good to hear. It so chanced that John A. Shellem came to me for help about getting a man when I was foreman at Mr. Craig's. He had so much trouble with his men that I advised him to get a couple of good boys and then make it interesting for the best one. After we had finished talking, Lemuel Ball, who had been standing by, said, "It will be hard to find as good a boy as Johnnie Walker."

PLANTINGS FOR A TOWN HOME.

I am enclosing a rough sketch of our grounds and buildings. We wish to add a touch of privacy and beauty to our town home. As the sketch indicates, our residence fronts toward the west and is approached by a curving walk, which branches so as to lead to the two porches, one on each side of the main part of the building. The grounds are 200 feet wide and 170 feet deep. There is a barn in the rear. The residence has a long wing on each side, extending until only twenty-five feet from the north boundary of the grounds and fifteen feet from the south boundary. Along the north boundary is a row of apple trees. Along the south boundary is a driveway, leading to the barn. The driveway is straight until it reaches the rear part of the grounds, where it curves northward toward the barn.

There is a drive next to our drive and we wish to have some kind of division between them. Our idea is to have a flowering hedge, or a fence covered with vines. At the turn in the drive we should like a group of 6-foot or 7-foot shrubs, which would hide the adjoining back yards. We thought a 3-foot bed of perennials would add to the beauty of the place if planted along the fence by the apple trees. What are the best things to plant in these places, if the plan is practical? We shall be glad to have any suggestions. O. A. K.—Ohio.

A rustic fence made of oak, cedar or some other hard wood and covered with pink rambler roses, such as Dorothy Perkins or Tausendschon, would make a nice division. You might alternate some Clematis paniculata with the roses and thus prolong the flowering season; or, if preferred, you could use roses only or clematis only. For a flowering hedge althæas, Philadelphus Lemoinei or Spiræa arguta are all good. Philadelphus Lemoinei is a less robust grower than the old P. coronarius and blooms when quite small. It would probably be the best of the trio.

At the turn of the drive, if you want a permanent block, I would plant the American arborvitæ, Thuya occidentalis. If you prefer deciduous flowering shrubs, lilacs are good; so are the loniceras, such as Tatarica, and any of the viburnums. Lilacs hold their foliage late, however, and are most satisfactory flowering shrubs. A border three feet wide will not accommodate many perennials and a row of nice flowering shrubs would be more effective and more easily cared for. You could use one or several varieties. I would suggest using several kinds, thus securing a longer season of bloom. A few of a suitable nature to use are: Deutzia Lemoinei, Spiræa Thunbergii, S. arguta, Prunus tribola, Exochorda grandiflora, Hydrangea paniculata grandiflora and H. arborescens, Philadelphus Lemoinei, Elæagnus longipes and Persian lilac. C. W.

The alarm clock went off at four o'clock in the morning.

"I fooled you that toime," said Mike with a grin, "for I wasn't aslape at all."

The florist fools himself who thinks there is any way of selling goods in the trade more effective than advertising in The Review. Also, it's the most inexpensive way in proportion to results.

"We are completely sold out and have had to send money back. The Review is, without doubt, the best advertising medium in the trade."—J. C. RENNISON CO., Sioux City, Ia.

Review readers are not asleep. Note this:

"Please tell us confidentially what you think of — —. Why doesn't he advertise in The Review if he is O. K.?"—MILLER FLORAL CO., Farmington, Utah.

The alarm clock rings in The Review office at 4 o'clock (p.m., not a.m.) every Tuesday. It is to let everybody know advertising forms close for that week's issue in just sixty minutes.

ALSO CALLED ELKHORN MOSS.

I saw in The Review of April 22, page 18, a second reference to the Mexican Pink, about which a subscriber had been inquiring. I am almost sure that the plant so named is a mesembryanthemum, as suggested by some of The Review's correspondents in reply to the inquiry. A Mexican Pink was sent to me from El Paso, Tex., and it then bore the name, also, of Elkhorn Moss. It is grown extensively in southwestern Texas, especially by Mexicans. There is nothing equal to it for porch boxes, especially in a hot, dry climate.

The Mexican Pink cannot be Antigonon leptopus, though some of the subscribers have so conjectured, for the Mexican Pink makes enormous roots and one good vine will cover several square rods in one season. The flowers of the different varieties of mesembryanthemum, I understand, have different shades of color, but the flowers of my plant are of a bright, shiny pink and are as large as a silver dollar. C. L. Shell.

I certainly appreciate the interest taken by The Review in my inquiry regarding the Mexican Pink. A guess I made at the time was that it might be Kochia trichophylla, a plant I heartily dislike. Another guess was that it might be a portulaca. A friend of mine who has lived in Mexico thinks that probably an antigonon is meant. He says the Mexican Pink is the finest pink flower in Mexico and grows in great quantities at altitudes of 4,000 feet and over. B. C. Auten.

Laporte, Ind.—The candy and flower store of I. M. Hoffman, on Lincoln Way, is being fitted with a new front, especially designed for displays. Interior remodeling is also going on, and Mr. Hoffman expects to increase his business considerably when everything is in shape.

Madison, N. J.—The Aphine Mfg. Co., M. C. Ebel, manager, has offered a handsome silver and bronze bowling trophy to be awarded to the member of the Society of American Florists, National Association of Gardeners or American Association of Park Superintendents making the highest individual score at the contest which will be held under the auspices of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society, in San Francisco, the third week of August, when the meetings of all of the organizations named will occur in that city.

HAIL STORMS OF A WEEK.

Fredonia, Kan.—The first hail storm to break glass for several years occurred on the night of April 27. Loyd C. Bunch lost about one-fourth of the glass on the south side of his houses. J. R. Glass lost in about the same proportion. The storm covered a considerable area, and wheat and alfalfa were damaged greatly.

Utica, N. Y.—The worst hail storm in years visited this town April 28 and broke many panes of glass in the greenhouses. William Mathews, 19 York street, lost 150 lights; Samuel Whitton, 242 Churchill avenue, 500 lights, and William P. Pfeiffer, Whitesboro street, 300 lights. Charles Whitton, York street; Stephen Whitton, 49 Green street; Samuel Pinkstone, 61 Hickory street; E. T. Hermant & Son, North Genesee street, and William Pfleeger, of Deerfield, lost some glass, but not a great deal.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS.

A. L. Miller, Jamaica, N. Y., expresses the unanimous opinion of the plantsmen that the sudden advent of spring is making them all hustle and forget their past misfortunes. Indications point to an exceptionally good season. Mr. Miller is rapidly transforming his recent acquisition of twenty-five acres into a model nursery.

Fred Marquardt, Middle Village, N. Y., sees a rift in the cloud, predicting good sales and at usual figures. His combined plant and cut flower trade affords him abundant scope for observation; it is possibly the largest on Long Island.

Philip Haas' Sons, College Point, N. Y., say that a possible additional White car expresses their views of the situation.

Anton Schultheis, College Point, has "Nil desperandum" as his motto and is adding to his holdings as opportunity offers.

G. Golsner's Sons, College Point, came out on top in their suit against the gas company, but would much rather the accident had never happened.

Louis Enne, Flushing, N. Y., has a most attractive place, a splendid ad.

The Knight & Struck Co., Flushing, features heather as a specialty, but generalizes in nursery stock to meet the ever increasing demand. "Fine time for our own planting," remarked Manager Darlington.

Louis Dupuy, Whitestone, N. Y., is decidedly continental in both the construction and management of his model establishment. There is always something interesting to be seen here.

Jasper McMullen, Whitestone, had the whole family working on some fine floral pieces at the time of my visit.

Dreyer Bros. will shortly have their range of glass transferred from Woodside to the place already established at Whitestone, giving them a large area.

Victor Dorval Sons, Woodside, N. J., view with great satisfaction the change to electric power in the locomotives which pass them on both sides and which threatened to annihilate them with the effects of the smoke. While not entirely victorious, they are much better off than formerly.

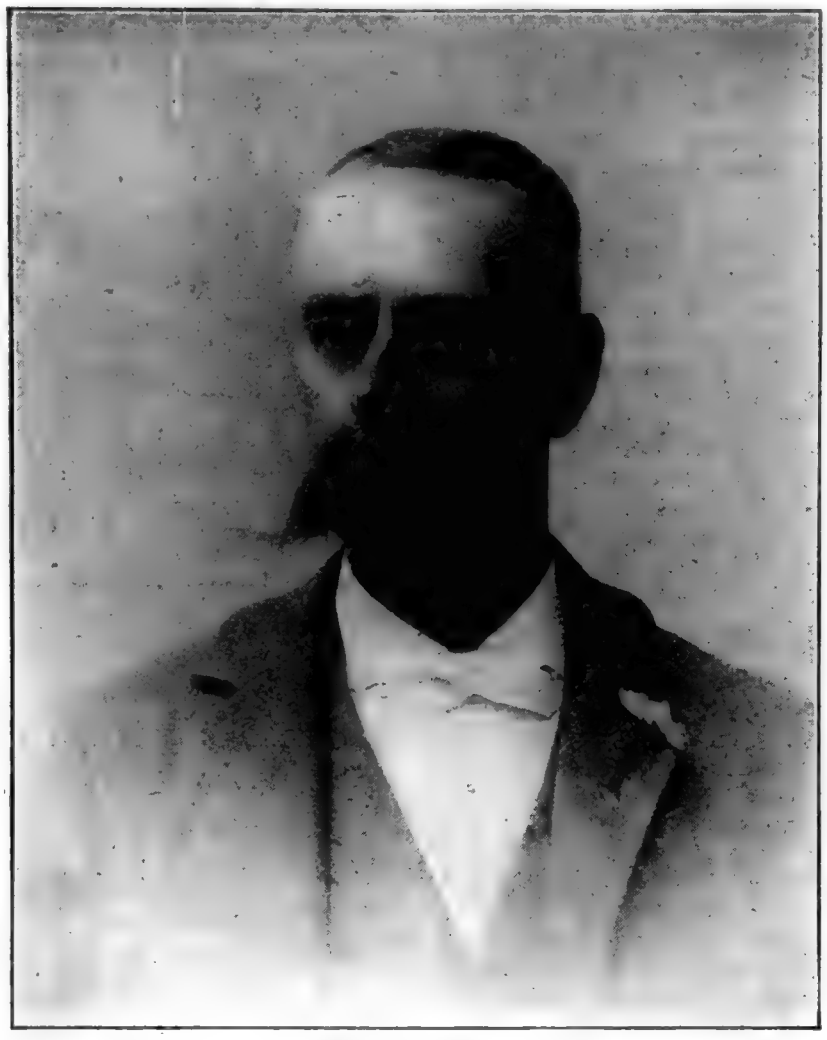
Satow & Suzuki, Woodside, form a duet of oriental artists who delight the eyes of those fortunate enough to inspect their creations, both at the greenhouses and at their New York store.

The John Scott Co., Flatbush, N. Y., always understood that lightning, or other great catastrophe, never struck twice in the same place, but fire last winter following flood of the previous one has caused them to waver in their opinion. By strenuous efforts a calamity was averted and their ferns never were in better shape.

Louis Schmutz, Jr., Flatbush, says there is a limit to all things. Not to his resourcefulness.

Gus Messeberg, Flatbush, says he did not make a fortune this season, but expects to get there just the same.

The Cottage Gardens Co., Queens, N. Y., is ahead of last year in the nursery department, according to Manager R. Brown, and thus the dull fall season will be made up. A good rain is badly needed. The carnation houses are now in charge of Mr. Ward, Jr. The stock is in grand shape, showing evidence of high cultivation.



John Lewis Childs, Queens, believes the season will average about as usual. It started slowly, but is now taxing the capacity of the establishment.

Henry Weston, Hempstead, N. Y., figures he could easily have spared the big house erected last summer, but thinks this will be a profitable year.

J. Hick & Son, Auburn, suffered an affliction at Easter in the death of the wife of the senior member, who has the sincere sympathy of their many friends.

Dobbs & Son, Auburn, find their business warrants an additional auto car. A unique sign, conspicuously placed, announces the fact, in Polish, that they furnish wedding bouquets to pretty brides. The idea originated with a Polish friend and has caught on.

Eastwood & Tincknell, Auburn, have leased the houses formerly run by Dobbs & Son, who are located directly opposite in a thoroughly up-to-date establishment of their own construction.

John F. Cowell.

John F. Cowell.

Prof. John F. Cowell, director of the South Park Botanical Gardens, Buffalo, N. Y., died suddenly from heart disease Saturday afternoon, May 1, while returning to Buffalo in an automobile from East Aurora. The funeral was held May 4 at his home in the park near Ridge road. The park commissioners acted as honorary pallbearers, while the active pallbearers were W. J. Palmer, Dr. Leo Smith, Charles Huson, William Bott, Frederick Busch and David A. Seymour.

Dr. Cowell spent May 1 tramping in the woods near East Aurora, collecting botanical specimens, accompanied by his son-in-law, Charles B. Moulthrop, and L. C. Jackson. When they started home a tire blew out. All three got out of the machine to change the tire. Dr. Cowell had one hand on the wheel to steady it when he suddenly exclaimed, "My, I'm going!" His companions did not know what he meant until he sank back into Mr. Jackson's arms. Even then they thought he had only fainted, and brought him to a nearby farmhouse, where Dr. Lawrence Smith, of East Aurora, was summoned.

Dr. Smith said that death had been instant and attributed the cause to heart disease. Dr. Cowell had never shown any symptoms of heart trouble and was apparently in the best of health and spirits. He was 63 years old.

Dr. Cowell was an authority in botany, particularly on the orchid, which was his hobby. He had also made an exhaustive study of the chrysanthemum.

Dr. Cowell was born in Wrentham, Mass., March 3, 1852. He was educated in Wrentham and studied law at the Boston University and at the Harvard law school. He practiced law for three years in Boston and in St. Paul, Minn.

In 1874 he went to Buffalo to take the position of principal of school No. 36. Later he was transferred to school No. 6, where he remained until 1894, when he became superintendent of the South park and botanical director of the park system of Buffalo.

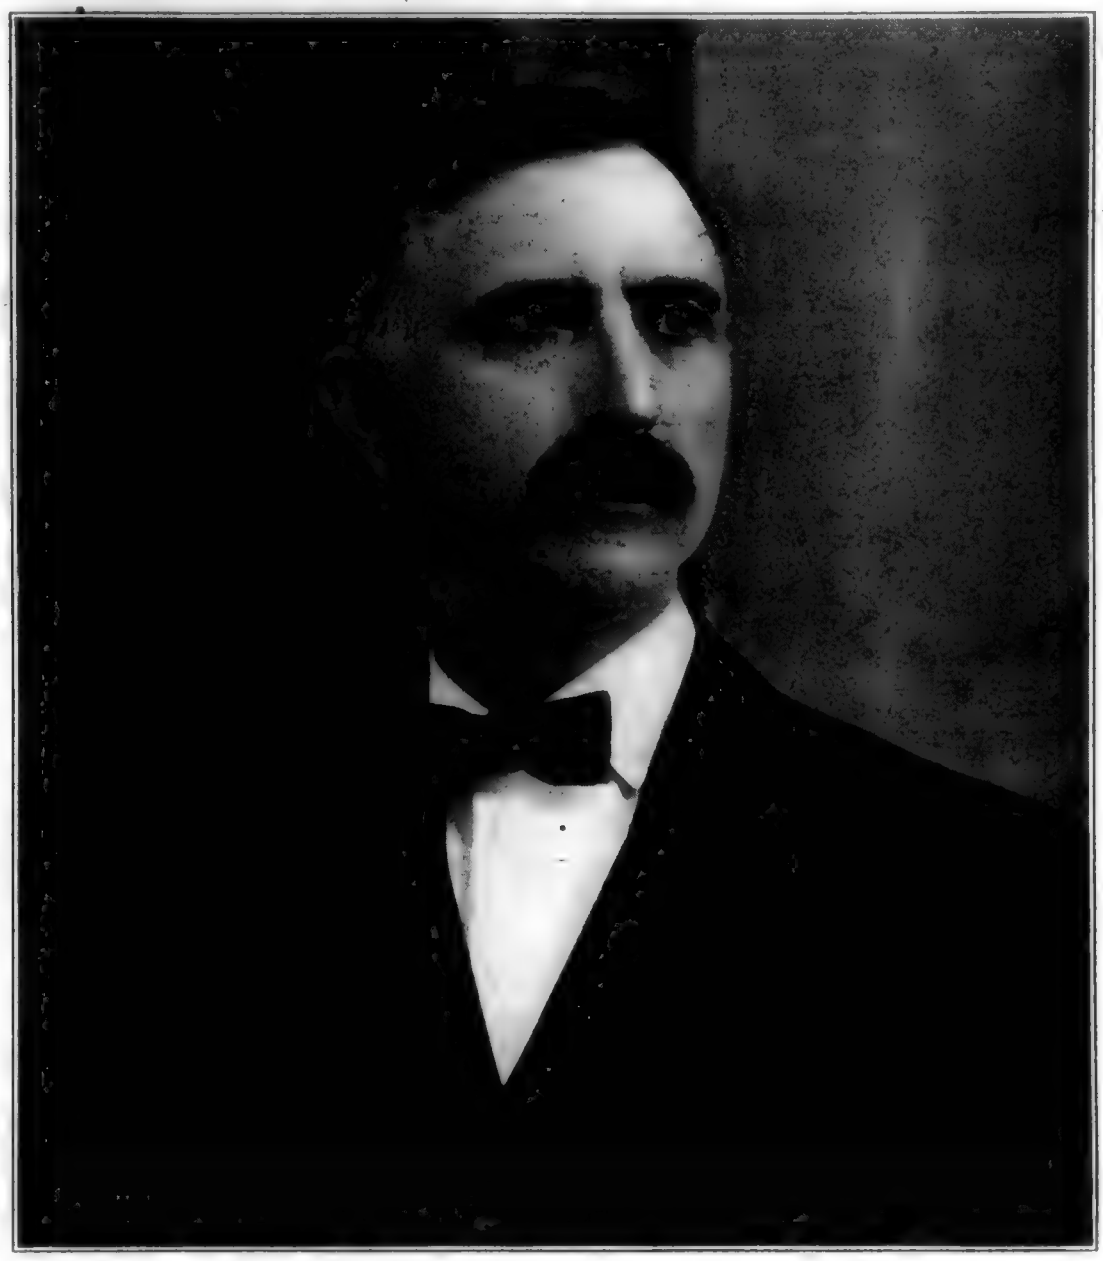
For several years Dr. Cowell had been professor of forestry in Buffalo University. He made many lecture trips through the country. He was a member of a large number of botanical societies, and assisted in the activities of the Buffalo Florists' Club, acting as chairman of the reception committee at the time of the carnation convention in Buffalo last January.

Dr. Cowell is survived by his wife, one daughter, Mrs. Charles B. Moulthrop, and a son, Francis Cowell.

John Zech.

John Zech, well known Chicago wholesale florist, whose sudden, serious illness was reported in last week's issue of The Review, died April 29, at Columbus hospital, where he had been operated on for appendicitis four days before.

Mr. Zech was born at Laporte, Ind., August 20, 1861. Following the custom of the time, he was apprenticed in early youth to a relative who taught him the stonecutters' trade. He soon developed the qualities of reliability and thoroughness for which he became well known in later years and while yet a mere boy achieved a mastery of the occupation chosen for him. Feeling that he was doing a journeyman's work, he resolved to leave home to seek his fortune. Arriving at Chicago, without even a nickel in money, he swung his tools over his shoulder and walked the long miles to Rosehill cemetery, where he had acquaintances and was not disappointed in his hope of finding work at his trade. Here he wielded mall and chisel for several years, gaining, in the meantime, the acquaintance and confidence of Peter Reinberg, whose greenhouses adjoin the cemetery, so that, when at length he became convinced the work he was doing was undermining his health, Mr. Reinberg gave him a place in the city wholesale store of Reinberg Bros. It is a far cry from working in stone to working with flowers, but Mr. Zech soon became as capable in the new trade as he had been in the old. Then he became assistant to S. B. Winter, a commission dealer in cut flowers, who did quite a business in Chicago in the old days.



It was May 16, 1898, that J. A. Budlong opened a store for wholesaling the cut from his large range of greenhouses in the outskirts of Chicago. He took Mr. Zech as his salesman and later, when A. H. Budlong was required to devote practically all his time to the growing end of the business, Mr. Zech came to have charge of the store. Later he was with E. C. Amling.

In 1905, the failure of M. Winandy, who occupied one of the limited number of stores in the Atlas block then available for wholesaling cut flowers, opened the way for Mr. Zech to enter business for himself. He formed a partnership with Mathias H. Mann, a well known grower north of town, and Zech & Mann took over the Winandy business from the receiver, March 28. In its next issue The Review said Mr. Zech "is a hard worker and well equipped to make the business a success." This he proceeded to do. In the course of time the quarters on the second floor of the Atlas block were outgrown and in May, 1913, removal was made to the present quarters, where three times as much floor space was available. Since then the business has grown faster than ever. Shortly after the founding of the firm Aloysius Zech, the elder son, just through school, became his father's understudy and chief assistant. It is announced the business will be carried on unchanged under his management.

Mr. Zech married Lena Armbruster. They had six children, four of whom survive with their mother. They are: Aloysius, Amelia, Caroline and Leo. Amelia is Mrs. John Cunningham.

It was in 1906 Mr. Zech joined the Society of American Florists. He has attended all the conventions held since that date. He also was a member of the Illinois State Florists' Association, the Chicago Florists' Club and several other trade organizations. A wide acquaintance grew out of these and his business connections. A man of strong convictions and determined purpose, he was everywhere held in high esteem for his unswerving commercial integrity.

The funeral was held May 3, from the residence, 1837 Summerdale avenue, to St. Gregory's church, in which Mr. Zech was a member and an active worker, thence to St. Boniface cemetery. The church was filled with friends of the family and members of the trade. The Knights of Columbus and the Catholic Order of Foresters, of which he was a member, attended in a body. The flowers were extremely numerous and beautiful. Peter Reinberg, George Reinberg and M. Matchen were the pallbearers representing the trade.

John Zech.

William J. Walsh.

William J. Walsh, Springfield, Ill., died April 28 in St. John's hospital. He was 68 years of age and had been in the business many years, with an establishment near the fair grounds.

Nazareth, Pa.—A suit instituted nearly two years ago by Mrs. Mary L. Geiger against the Nazareth Cement Co., the Phoenix Cement Co. and the Dexter Portland Cement Co., all located about a mile from her greenhouses, is being heard. Mrs. Geiger asks $20,000 damages, alleging that the dust from the cement works coats her glass so that plants cannot be grown profitably in the houses. The range was a paying proposition in the lifetime of George R. Geiger. After his death Mrs. Geiger conducted it for a time, and then leased it to Johnson & Garland, who would not renew the lease at its expiration in December, 1913, declaring it impossible to continue the business profitably on account of the dust from the cement works.

The Review brings results.

THE progressive florist must be a good prophet, getting a correct idea of the future in the light of the present and the past.

NOW that most of the carnation plants have gone into the field, quite a few buyers are looking for cuttings. It is ever thus.

NOT a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

THE trade is taking up Pink Delight to a greater extent this season than in any other since it came out, and Matchless will be planted by many hundreds of growers who have been watching it through its first season. These two are the varieties that have made most new friends the last few months.

IT is to be noted that, while the cotton states are not prosperous this season, florists located in that section are having a fair season, in some cases the best ever. The inference is that we have been going ahead with such speed in that part of the country that it takes more than one year of low-priced cotton to overcome our momentum.

WITH Easter three weeks later next year, the lilies should be more generally on time than was the case this Easter. Every large cut flower market in the country has been loaded with belated lilies all through April. Not only did a larger part of the crop than usual fail to make Easter, but the prices received for the after-Easter cut were the lowest ever recorded.

WHAT WILL PEOPLE THINK?

Last week many a wholesale florist found it difficult to clean up accumulated carnations at a nickel a bunch. At the same time 5 cents per flower was the quotation for Mothers' day.

The average florist, with his knowledge of trade conditions, understands such a situation and thinks little of it. But how about the public? What does the consumer think of $1 to $1.50 per dozen this week after having had carnations thrust at him in every department store and on every street corner last week at 5 to 10 cents per dozen?

A great many times we have had low prices following high prices, but not often have prices jumped as Mothers' day has made carnation prices jump this year. Will the people understand?

THERE WITH BOTH FEET.

The twofold object of a trade paper is, first, to tell its readers what is going on in the trade and, second, to put them in touch with business opportunities through its advertisements. The journal which gives its subscribers a great lot of reading matter but fails to keep them in touch with the best sources of supply, as well as the journal which neglects the news and is satisfied with printing what advertising it can get, is like a one-legged man; one is without a right leg, the other lacks its left limb. Either sort of trade paper may hobble along with some sort of crutch to take the place of the missing member, but they are both left far behind in the race with the paper that is there with both feet. See how this man vouches for the soundness of both the pedal extremities of The Review:

The Review is the brightest and spiciest trade paper published, and is always a welcome visitor to us.

When I look for anything I need in the florists' line, I can find it among your advertisers.—Clarence L. Spahr, Tarentum, Pa., April 30, 1915.

BOOMERANG.

We hear a great deal about the bargain counter sales during a glut educating a lot of people to buy flowers.

But how about this?

During the recent unpleasantness in the wholesale markets a commission man was noted handing over to a department store messenger several bundles of roses that were longer than it seemed should go to a store that has no regular flower department—where the special sales of roses are a penny a flower. "Don't worry," said the seller, "we are getting all they are worth; been in the icebox just two weeks today."

Doubtless the department store easily sold the flowers, but how about the educational feature? Do you suppose the women who took them home were in a hurry to buy more, at any price?

Of course such stock ought only to go to the—but it's easy to tell what to do with the other fellows' dollars.

IT'S ALL THE SAME.

Florists who use the classified section of The Review to clean up their surplus stock all make the same report. Like this:

We find The Review indispensable.—Booneville Floral Co., Booneville, Miss., April 30, 1915.

I thank The Review for good results.—Charles Taynor, New Carlisle O., April 30, 1915.

NEXT WEEK'S WEATHER.

Weather forecast for the week beginning Wednesday, May 5, issued by the U. S. Weather Bureau, Washington, D. C.

For the Region of the Great Lakes—Indications are that generally fair weather with moderate temperatures will prevail throughout the week.

For the Upper Mississippi Valley and Plains States—Fair weather, with slowly rising temperature, is indicated for several days, probably followed toward the end of the weekly period by showers over the extreme northwest.

For the West Gulf States—Showery weather early in the week will be followed by generally fair for four or five days; temperatures will be seasonable.

CONGRATULATIONS ALL AROUND.

The Review's business is more nearly normal this spring than is the business of any other trade publication with which we are acquainted. It is a matter for mutual congratulation, because it seems to indicate that on the whole the business of florists, seedsmen and nurserymen is more nearly normal than is the business of the trades behind the other publications—coal, lumber, iron, textiles, contracting, automobiles, etc. The business of the horticultural trades always is seasonal, more or less a feast or a famine, but it looks from this point of view as though this trade is enjoying rather better times than are those who provide the so-called necessities of life.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

The inevitable has happened. The change anticipated in Chicago market conditions began to operate April 30, and that day and the following stock cleared in good shape. To begin with, the superabundance of stock that has been crowding the market for almost three weeks has, in the nature of things, found its way out, either through the regular channels of trade or by way of the waste pile. And then, as though to obviate any possible recurrence of the passing conditions, the weather became unqualifiedly cool. As a result, there has been an appreciable stiffening in the prices as well as improvement in the quality of the stock. Supply and demand are more nearly balanced this week than they have been in many months.

Roses, as a matter of course, have not fully recovered from the deteriorating effects of the extreme heat. And while the stock is perceptibly firmer, it is small in bloom and much of it cannot be classed as excellent. As for the demand, roses, with the exception of Beauties and the possible exception of short-stemmed stock, are not moving as well as they should under the circumstances. They are, however, clearing better than they did last week. Outdoor bulbous stock is going off the market rapidly, and this will have a tendency to increase the demand as well as the prices for other lines. Snapdragon, though of superior grade, seems to be losing favor, as the demand is not even fair. The same thing

WE OFFER A SPLENDID CROP OF

BEAUTIES

STOCK THAT WILL MAKE SALES FOR YOU

IT s not often you are able to get such fine Beauties as the present crop. Cut from plants benched last fall and grown cool all winter for a spring supply. We offer all lengths. Try some today.

ROSES

Your customers will talk for you if you use our Novelty Roses: Russell, Milady, Sunburst and Killarney Brilliant. These are specially fine just now and the supply is so large you can get them at prices below what you would expect to pay for such fine stock. Also we have a good cut of Ward, Richmond, etc.

SWEET PEAS

Our growers have begun to pick the spring blooming Spencer varieties and the quality is all you could ask; much better than the run out winter-bloomers generally seen on the market.

SNAPDRAGONS

Try our Snaps. You will find them ready sellers, especially the pink. Snaps can be used for almost anything—they are even making corsage bouquets of them—but they are specially good for decorations, in home or window.

CARNATIONS

Remember we have the largest supply of strictly fancy carnations in the west. The warmer the weather the more important it is to buy the best stock.

You will find no finer Pansies, Daisies, Stocks, Iris, Mignonette, etc. We offer a large supply. Peonies are beginning; shall soon have plenty.

FANCY VALLEY ALWAYS ON HAND

We handle the Chicago Market Brand Valley exclusively. There is none better. A never-failing supply.

may be predicated of Spanish iris, mignonette and daisies, while Easter lilies, callas, pansies and violets are dead. Orchids are quite too patrician ever to be in large demand, and at present they hardly enter into a consideration of the market. Sweet peas are slowly retiring to the background. The heat hastened the departure of the winter bloomers, although quantities of short-stemmed peas still are seen. The spring bloomers are just coming in.

Carnations, of course, have come into their own with the approach of Mothers' day. Practically all of the wholesalers are booking advance orders of more than respectable magnitude, and from present indications it is safe to say that the supply of carnations for this holiday will not be more than enough to go around. The stiffening of prices in this line has been commensurate with the increase in demand.

With the removal of the abnormal conditions that have weighed like an incubus on the trade since Easter, there is every reason to encourage the belief that the improvement in market conditions will continue without serious interruption for, at least, a reasonable length of time.

Various Notes.

A fire practically destroyed the fixtures and all of the stock in the store of Daniel Branch, 313 East Fifty-first street, April 30. Fortunately, the wind was from the south and the flames were carried away from the greenhouses, which were uninjured. It is understood that the present building is to be removed and a new one erected, which will be much longer and better equipped for the florist's business.

May 1, Mathias H. Mann made the announcement that the firm of Zech & Mann will not be changed because of the sudden death of the senior partner, recorded in this week's obituary column, but that the business will be continued under the management of Aloysius Zech, who has received a thorough training in the trade, as he has been his father's chief assistant for a number of years.

"If you look back to the days of the bicycle craze," says P. M. Brodbeck, "you will recall that the arrival of outdoor weather was bad for the flower business. It's more or less the same way today with the automobile."

The season's first two bunches of peonies were received by Kennicott Bros. Co., from Spaulding & Son, Villa Ridge, April 30.

Kyle & Foerster will use artificial refrigeration in their new establishment and have ordered equipment from Kroeschell Bros. Ice Machine Co. This makes the fourth wholesaler in Chicago to install artificial refrigeration and it is the third order the Kroeschell concern has obtained in this trade in the last six weeks.

The Meyer & Dramm establishment, at Elmhurst, built last season, is to be doubled in size this summer. Material is on the place and work is under way on two houses, each 42x400, to be planted to roses.

At Maywood Weiss & Meyer Co. is cutting perhaps the finest Beauty crop in the history of the concern. The plants were benched last fall, too late to do anything during the winter except to gather strength for a big spring crop.

One of the interesting facts of the business is that Emil Reichling has held every job in Peter Reinberg's establishment, from apprentice to superintendent. It has been fifteen years since he made his start, when the place was less than a quarter its present size, and he knows every inch of space under the acres of glass.

Winterson's Seed Store has received a carload of Holland bay trees that arrived in excellent shape.

It is the custom with Wietor Bros., who believe in playing safe, to plant about half their carnations direct to the benches and grow them under glass all summer. A part of the stock of each variety is so handled. Of the plants that spend three months in the field half are planted on high ground and half on low ground. In an average season all the stock does well, but in the worst of seasons they are sure to have enough good plants for their needs.

Friends of Fred Lautenschlager will offer congratulations when they learn of the arrival of two little girls at his home, April 30.

The first Carbondale peonies for the 1915 season reached the E. C. Amling Co., April 29, Old Red, of course. The report at this house is that nowhere south of here will there be over half a crop this year, in most places about one-third of an average crop.

George Asmus has been east on business connected with the next national flower show.

This is vacation time, if there is anything of that character in a large greenhouse establishment, with the A. F. Amling Co., Maywood. With the early benching of the Mrs. Russell plants the replanting for the season was completed. William Collatz says they expect to begin cutting Russell about June 1.

The automobile owners in the trade will be interested in a recent feat performed by Charles Hartwig, driving Joseph Foerster's Moline-Knight "50." THE FREIGHT ON MOSS.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has rendered a decision upon the legality of the rates on moss from Mather, Wis., to Chicago, which were the subject of a recent complaint by Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, against the C., M. & St. P. R. R. The complainant attacked the rate and the minimum carload weight on moss in bales. The present charge is 13 cents per hundred pounds, with a minimum weight of 34,000 pounds to the car. The commission says the lawful rate is 12.1 cents and the company was therefore overcharged nearly a cent per hundred pounds. In 1913 a rate of 22 cents, with a minimum weight of 15,000 pounds, was established by order of the commission in the case of the W. W. Barnard Co. vs. the C., M. & St. P. R. R., the commission then ruling that any higher rate from Mather to Chicago was unreasonable. The present decision reaffirms the old one and is favorable to the shippers.

SERVICE The accompanying photograph has nothing to do with the florists' trade in general, except, perhaps, that it is a florists' refrigerator that you see in the foreground. We are showing it to you for just one reason, and that is because, of all the concerns building refrigerators in the city of Chicago, we were given the contract to build this display refrigerator that now stands in The Fair—one of Chicago's largest department stores. In the first place, when The Fair began looking around for a box that would meet all

The commission holds that the rate charged the Vaughan concern on moss was unreasonable because it exceeded the charges which would have accrued had the 22-cent rate been applied, upon the basis of 15,000 pounds minimum weight. The commission will direct the railroad to refund the overcharges on seven cars of moss shipped by Vaughan from Mather to Chicago, on which the complaint was based, upon proper showing of the quantities shipped and the freight bills.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Last week was a counterpart of all the weeks since Easter—no market until Saturday, and then a rather better clean-up than usual, but without any advance in prices. The low level has surely been reached; any change must be for the better. Now comes Mothers' day, and a good many are counting on that for a good ending to the present week. The inevitable shortening in shipments is also predicted, and Memorial day will hold the market steady from now until June. Weddings are increasing in number; the bookings for May, I am told, are many.

Mothers' day is well advertised, not only by the suggestions in the florists' windows, but by the metropolitan dailies.

Roses hold at the quotations of a week ago, from American Beauties all through the list of over a score of varieties. After the first-class stores are supplied with their selections, at the top figures, the remainder go to the department stores, speculators and street men at any price.

The hot weather last week was one cause of loss, carnations suffering the most. The hottest April day ever known here carried the mercury up to 99 degrees in the shade, and in less than twenty-four hours the thermometer fell nearly 50 degrees. A few car-

SELF-WATERING LINERS

Something New

The porch and window basket often becomes spoiled on account of leakage of the container. This year we have made arrangements to equip our baskets with a well known self-watering device, which we have tested and found to be all that is claimed for it. This hamper and metal container comes in two sizes, stock No. 16132.

nations sold as high as $1.50 per hundred. Thousands were sacrificed at 50 cents and under.

Orchids are down to 35 cents for selected Cattleya gigas. The other varieties go much lower. The supply is large. Gardenias have not sold lately at over $1 per dozen. Lilies are actually improving in value, some good longiflorums touching $5 per hundred; but there are plenty left that are closed out at $3 and even at $2 per hundred.

Of bulbous stock there is no end; especially discouraging are the great quantities of tulips that are wasted. Daffodils were selling Saturday, May 1, at ten bunches for $1.

There is an abundance of iris, pansies, stocks and daisies. There is no diminution in the shipments of sweet peas, and the market is literally flooded with lilac, not only from the south but from New Jersey, Maryland and lower Pennsylvania.

Various Notes.

The dahlia society seems to be already an assured organization, so wide has been the interest in its formation. R. Vincent, Jr., of White Marsh, Md., writes that the response to his suggestion has been most encouraging. The preliminary meeting will be held at the Grand hotel, Broadway and Thirty-first street, Monday, May 10, at 2 p. m.

On the evening of May 10, the meeting of the New York Florists' Club will take place at the Grand Opera House, and in addition to a display of bedding plants, E. H. Wilson's illustrated lecture, on "Gardens and Flora of Japan," will make the evening one of enjoyment for all. The dahlia experts have promised to attend.

The New York and New Jersey Plant Growers' Association contemplates holding its annual outing early in June, by boat up the Hudson to Newburgh and Beacon. The trip to Bermuda is postponed for another year.

The Cosmopolitan Market, called the biggest retail market in the world, was opened Saturday, May 1, at 32 to 44 West Twenty-third street. It has a floor space of 70,000 square feet and will have 200 tenants and 150 stands. The entire fourth floor will be devoted to horticulture in all its branches, if the plans of the managers are carried out.

Saturday and Sunday, May 8 and 9, the first summer exhibition of the New York Horticultural Society will be held in the Museum building, Bronx park.

Henry Schmidt, of North Bergen, N. J., is erecting two new houses, which will be largely devoted to his specialty, Primula obconica compacta.

The J. J. Wilson Seed Co., of Newark, N. J., at the motor pageant there last week, was awarded a silver cup for the best decorated float in the floral section of the parade. There were 500 cars in line.

Young & Nugent are rebuilding their icebox and enlarging it and the adjoining office. The front has already been greatly improved.

P. J. Smith removes this week to his new store, at 131 West Twenty-eighth street, next door to Walter Sheridan's.

Traendly & Schenck say the number of daily customers has doubled since their move to Sixth avenue.

The annual meeting of the Cut Flower Exchange was held at the Coogan building, Saturday, May 1. The directors of 1914 were reëlected. John Schneider is president, V. Dorval secretary, Charles Beckman treasurer, and Thomas Jackson manager. The by-laws were amended so that the monthly meetings, held at the Queen's Plaza, Long Island City, will take place at 2 p. m.

The New York Florists' Bowling Club ended its spring sessions Thursday evening, April 29. The match with the Tuxedo Club will complete the records. The personnel of the team to represent New York at the S. A. F. convention in San Francisco has not yet been decided.

H. A. Bunyard and several of the wholesale florists and seedsmen received invitations to the meeting of the International Garden Club, Saturday, May 1, at the ceremony of replacing the treaty oak, the governor of New York state presiding.

Everything will be up-to-date at P. J. Smith's new headquarters, 131 West Twenty-eighth street, and May 8 will see him at home to his friends.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

A tremendous supply of flowers marked the week ending May 5, a supply that was due to the hot weather of the week before and increased by outdoor lilac, a week earlier than last year. Outdoor lilac is so popular while it lasts that a decided impression is made on the market. It is a perishable flower and must be sold quickly. The price starts well at 50 cents a bunch of about seven sprays, but weakens quickly as the supply grows, until the late arrivals realize little. The sales of lilac are felt by the lower grades of other flowers, which immediately drop in price.

Roses arrived in enormous quantities. The medium grades sold fairly well at low prices. The top grades were in excess of the demand, while poor stock begged buyers. The hot weather caused some of the stock to retrograde. Carnations felt the hot weather like roses, but under more favorable conditions of the present week have improved. The price on white is already advancing under the influence of heavy Mothers' day inquiries and some orders. Today it seems probable that white carnations will command two or three times as much as colored, which is a pity, for were all flowers used on this occasion the market would be more satisfactory, both to buyers and to sellers.

Sweet peas have been completely knocked out by the heat; the supply of both good and poor peas is smaller. Quality peas are usually the result of a new crop just coming into bloom. There are some of these and there will be more. Daffodils are pretty nearly over. There are still some late tulips. Mignonette and pansies have said goodbye. Cornflower is coming in a little more freely. Spanish iris in all colors is to be had in moderate numbers. There are some baby gladioli and a few of the finer varieties, also a moderate supply of larkspur. The first peonies have come from the south; no red this time, but P. festiva maxima, Victoria and a few others, with good flowers and stems. Outdoor valley has come. The call for greens is not nearly so active as it has been.

was made with the preliminary arrangements. Louis Burk was appointed to one of the vacant chairmanships. The other has not yet been filled. Secretary Young was deputized to appear before the amateur garden clubs soon to meet in Baltimore to ask that their next annual meeting be held in this city at the time of the national flower show next spring. Plans were made for interesting various bodies and persons of prominence in the show. It is probable that the committees on music and on special features will work together as one committee.

in 1914. It took a big slice out of his pile to pay for that stock, so Samuel grew it carefully and well. He stayed home all summer and had the plants in tiptop condition by fall. When October came he began cutting the flowers quite freely, expecting to realize on his investment. The returns from his commission house were so small that it seemed probable that it would take all winter to pay for the plants, to say nothing of labor, coal or interest. So Sam put on his coat and went to town to investigate. At his wholesaler's the salesmen were blue. "Things are not as they used to wuz," was the burden of their cry. Just then Sam's principal competitor came in quite chirpy. When asked about the novelty he said that he was satisfied with the price this same wholesaler was returning him. He named the price. It was even lower than Sam was getting. The stock, he said, was grown for quantity rather than quality. He then asked Sam to get in his car and come out and see the plants. Wonderingly, Sam complied. After a pleasant ride they saw some excellent plants of the novelty. Nevertheless Sam was confident they were no better than he had at home, if as good. Now, Sam wants to know, how can you get a car when a novelty is selling far, far below cost? The only answer, Sam thinks, lies in keeping down expenses.

The Market.

On account of the extreme heat and unseasonable weather which we experienced from April 20 to 29, we have the largest glut of flowers that has been on the market this year. Not only is there a glut, but trade has been bad, and this makes matters worse. Cooler weather has come again, and the growers are hoping that the supply for Mothers' day will be up to the average. Extra advertising is being done and a brisk business is looked for.

The quality of the flowers is below standard. The sun has softened them considerably. Large quantities of roses continue to pour into the market. Good stock has had to be moved at low figures. The same can be said of carnations; there are thousands too many at the present time. Sweet peas are soft and somewhat off color. Violets are all through for this season. Baby gladioli are on the market and sell slowly. Valley is receiving a little better call. Easter lilies are not so good, but callas are fine. Yellow and white daisies, forget-me-nots, sweet alyssum, tulips and jonquils are all plentiful, but move slowly.

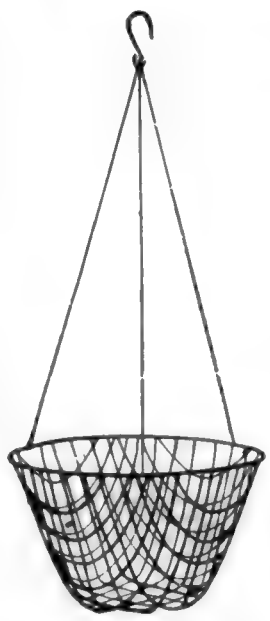
Various Notes.

J. B. Keller Sons had an artistic window decoration last week. It consisted of a good-sized laburnum bush in bloom, with calceolarias in many shades arranged prettily at the base, forming a large bed of blooms. This firm has been well occupied of late with a number of weddings.

Visitors last week were Ed. K. Sithens, of the Bowen-Dungan Co., Philadelphia; Jac Groet, of Guldemond & Son, Lisse, Holland; W. A. Stearns, of the Sefton Mfg. Co., Chicago; George L. Ely, of Clyde, N. Y., and Sidney Kuney, of Waterloo, N. Y.



Joseph Cragg, of Irondequoit, N. Y., was taken down with grip some time ago and has not recovered as fast as was hoped. His condition at this time is not at all favorable, but we all wish for him a quick and permanent recovery.

A store window full of Easter Greeting pelargoniums in full bloom was displayed by Geo. T. Boucher, and the plants were offered at the low figure of 25 cents each. Mr. Boucher is doing some novel advertising. At the Regent Picture theater several potted plants and a large bouquet of cut flowers are placed daily on the stage with a card, "George T. Boucher, Florist." He says it brings him good returns.

The seed houses of the city are doing a good business. James Vick's Sons say they are running ahead of all other years, and the flower seed contracts for 1916 are away ahead of any previous season. At their Elm Grove farm they are installing the Skinner system of irrigation.

Mrs. Ransford W. Wilson is steadily gaining in strength after her six weeks' siege of grip, and is able to take short walks outdoors. Mrs. Dunbar also is improving after her accident.

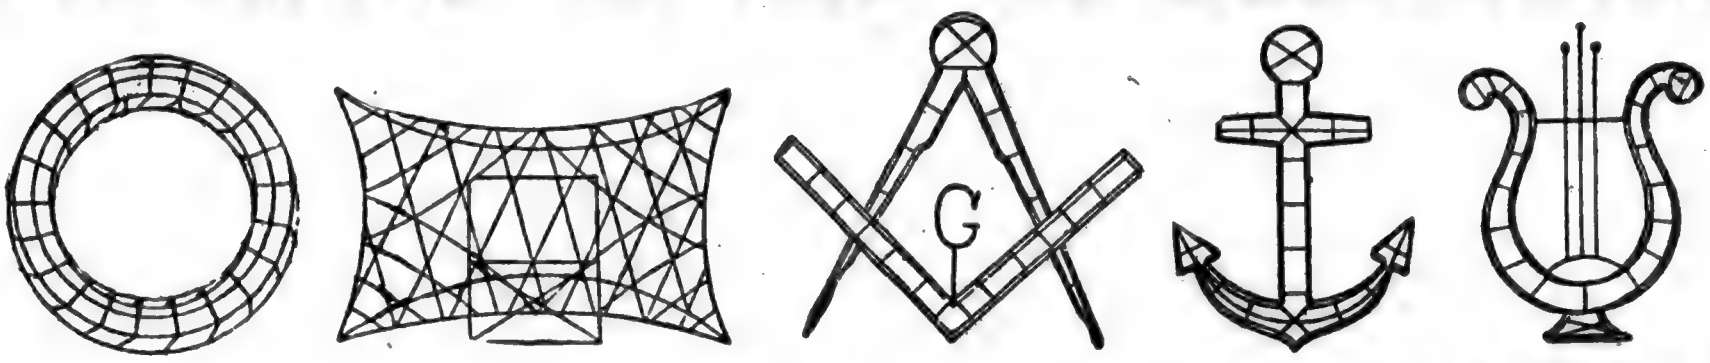
BUFFALO.

The Market.

The thermometer rose to almost 90 degrees April 27. Naturally, the warm weather put a damper on business and the lethargy continued through the entire week, though the weather turned cooler toward the last. There is a general glut in the market. It is difficult to move anything either in cut flowers or plants. Roses are soft and in a few hours are wide open. This is especially true of Taft and the Killarneys. Carnations, for the first time this spring, are showing signs of deterioration. They are softening and becoming smaller. Sweet peas are somewhat inferior, because of the sudden warm weather. Snapdragons, in pink, yellow and white, are extra fine and bring a good price. Violets are poor and will soon be at an end. Darwin tulips and Blushing Bride gladioli have begun to come in.

Various Notes.



L. H. Neubeck is producing some excellent calceolarias, schizanthus and French hydrangeas in his greenhouses at Williamsville. He has a fine lot of Boston ferns. The landscape force is busy with planting and other outdoor work.

Harold Brookins took the thirty-second degree in the Scottish rites last week at the Buffalo Masonic consistory during the festivities, which lasted the entire week. The decorations at the club house and chapel were elaborate. The work was done by S. A. Anderson and his force of assistants.

Harry E. Bates, of Rochester, was in town last week. He seemed much elated(?) because the Lord & Burnham trophy has come to stay in Buffalo for the summer.

The Lenox Flower Shop has a new floor covering for the summer months.

It is a light linoleum, which looks like tile and gives the store a clean aspect.

James J. Bates, of Akron, N. Y., was in town on business, April 30.

Barney Myers, of Lancaster, N. Y., is growing some good Darwin tulips and Blushing Bride gladioli.

Word has been received from Harold Taylor, of Detroit, Mich., that his position there is satisfactory and that he likes the Automobile City.

The tulip and hyacinth beds at the parks, the circle and McKinley's monument are in full bloom, giving the city a festive look.

S. A. Anderson and family have gone on a two weeks' fishing trip in Michigan.

J. Benson Stafford had a fetching window display last week. A life-sized portrait of the actress, Adele Blood, who is playing at the Teck theater, was mounted in a huge frame and made to hold a stunning bouquet of white lilac with a valley shower.

Miss Edith Christy has resigned her position at the Elmwood store of S. A. Anderson. She is to be a June bride. Charles Butz is the fortunate man.

C. H. Heelas, at Jamestown, N. Y., is having plenty of funeral work and a good counter trade to help things along.

Mrs. A. E. Pettit, of Corry, Pa., reports business as brisk, with a good cut flower trade. She is growing some exceptionally fine carnations.

Dana R. Herron, of Olean, N. Y., is having fine success with carnations. He is about to add four 150-foot houses to his range and then specialize in carnations.

Elmer Rawlings, of Alleganv, N. Y., has his houses well stocked with geraniums for the coming bedding season.

at Bradford, Pa., is growing fine snapdragon. He also is cutting some excellent carnations.

Mrs. E. B. Sage, of Bradford, is confined to her bed for a few days following an automobile accident last week, in which she was badly shaken up.

George Lawrence Graham, of Bradford, has been exceptionally busy with funeral work for the last few weeks.

Chas. G. Offerle, of Erie, Pa., is cutting some fine roses and carnations. Business, he says, is improving right along.

Miles R. Miller, of Erie, is showing some fine snaps, also a good variety of the season's novelties.

The Schluraff Floral Co., of Erie, is busy with lawn and shrubbery work.

John V. Laver, of Erie, is showing a nice variety of spring flowers, both cut and in pots.

Trost & Steinfurth, of Erie, are busy getting their bedding stock ready for the coming season.

The florists through western Pennsylvania will remember Allen M. Langhans, formerly traveling salesman for the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. The writer called on him in Warren, Pa., and talked over old times. He wished to be remembered to his friends along the road. W. T. U.

Fulton, Mo.—Fred A. Hallows, who formerly conducted a greenhouse at Bowling Green, Mo., has leased the Neukomm Greenhouses, and has a fine stock of bedding and pot plants for the spring trade. A little rain recently, which was badly needed, has made people more optimistic and stimulated trade.

RADIUM
MAKES THINGS GROW

This border of vegetables, lawn and shrubbery grown with Radium Brand Fertilizer (R. A. F.)

For better flowers, a perfect lawn, luxuriant shrubberies, more vegetables and better vegetables—and for increasing the rapidity of all vegetable and plant life—use Radium Brand Fertilizer (R. A. F.)

Use it when planting; if planting has already been done, it should be applied frequently. Dig it in around the roots, top dress your lawns, feed your shrubbery and vines. Give your plants food so that they will grow and you will not be disappointed.

RADIUM BRAND Fertilizer

A scientific and thoroughly proven combination of Radium Element with fertilizer, containing Nitrogen, Phosphoric Acid and Potash. One pound will fertilize 50 square feet, or a plot 10 feet by 5 feet.

Dr. H. H. Rusby, of Columbia University, says of tests he made with Radium Brand Fertilizer (R. A. F.): "These tests also demonstrated that the quality of Radium-grown vegetables was much better than the quality of vegetables grown in untreated ground."

It also wonderfully improves the bloom of flowers.

This Free Book tells how Radium makes things grow.

Special Discount to Dealers

We desire to place Radium Brand Fertilizer (R. A. F.) on sale in your store now. Write us today for particulars and let us show you the many helps we will give you to push sales.

PAGES OF RETAILERS' CARDS

This department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

Fred H. Weber,

Florists' Review,
Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen:-

During the SIX MONTHS from March 4 to September 4 I have received from other Florists, by mail, telegraph or cable, orders to the amount of $513.25 as a result of my advertisement in the Retailers' department of The Review. With the allowance to senders the record for SIX MONTHS is:

Value of orders received----------	$513.25
Less 20% allowed senders--------	102.60
Net value of orders for SIX MONTHS--	410.65

It should be noted that this showing covers the DULL SUMMER MONTHS, when any addition to a Florists's business is decidedly welcome.

Retail Florists not advertising in The Review should profit by this letter.

Respectfully,

F. H. Weber

The Market.

If there is any improvement in market conditions, it is hard to find. We have had considerable cold and dark weather, following a brief heat wave, but flowers seem to be as numerous as ever. May 1 saw a fair demand for flowers suitable for baskets, but this did not seem to relieve the congestion much. All hopes are now built on Mothers' day trade. This day is being pushed more than ever, and a good market is looked for. Roses continue decidedly druggy. Prices vary from $1 to $8, except for really fancy flowers; some blooms are cleared at even lower prices. Beauties drag. The best sellers are Prince d'Arenberg, a rose which is becoming more appreciated; Russell, which is not abundant; Hadley, Richmond, Taft, Ophelia and Killarney Queen. Yellows seem to be off crop with nearly all growers. Carnations go rather slowly, but the present week sees a slightly better call for them. Violets are done. Sweet peas are abundant. Good Spencers bring $1 per hundred; some go at this price per thousand to clear.

Indoor Dutch bulbous flowers are nearing the end. Outdoor supplies compete with them, and prices are poor. Spanish iris continues to sell unsatisfactorily. Yellow marguerites are in heavy supply and a trifle lower in price, but make a good clean-up. Calendulas are a glut. Snapdragons, except pink shades, are not wanted. Callas, lilies, candytuft and English primroses are not selling well. Valley moves a trifle better. In addition to the small-flowered gladioli, small lots of America, Peace and Mrs. F. King are seen. The first arrivals made $3 per dozen. Cattleya Mossiæ is plentiful at $3 to $4 per dozen. Select gardenias make $4. Bedding plant trade is starting in a moderate way, geraniums being most in demand.

Various Notes.

Patrick Welch's new wholesale store, at 262 Devonshire street, scheduled to open May 3, had to start business two days earlier than planned, as shippers started to forward cut flowers. May 3, arrivals were heavy and business was brisk. For the present, at least, only cut flowers will be handled here. In addition to the main store, seventy-five feet in depth on the street floor, there is a big, roomy basement and every convenience for the handling of a large wholesale business.

An electrical storm did considerable damage near Boston on the evening of April 26. A veritable tornado struck the carnation house of Thomas Capers, Wellesley Hills, and tore the roof away bodily. The ironwork was twisted and the whole structure entirely wrecked. The house, which was of pipe-frame construction, was 35x275, and contained about 16,000 carnations. Mr. Capers is planning to rebuild with an up-to-date structure. The one wrecked was 14 years old and a first-class growing house. At Paul E. Richwagen's, Needham, a 60-foot chimney was blown over and crashed through a shed and part of a greenhouse. Mr. Richwagen thinks $600 will cover his loss. At R. & J. Farquhar & Co.'s Dedham nurseries the terrific wind lifted some sixty hotbed sashes and sent them crashing onto the roofs of the greenhouses, a large quantity of glass being broken.

Frank Edgar, of Waverley, is cutting a fine lot of yellow marguerites and sweet peas. He finds a good demand starting for geraniums and other bedding plants.

Thomas Stock, of Dorchester, who has been confined to his house for several weeks, is able to be around without his crutches.

John A. Nelson, of Framingham, has a new 7-passenger, 6-cylinder Overland car, and so far has not met with any casualty. His carnations, which include Pink Delight, White Enchantress, White Wonder, Enchantress and Beacon, are fine.

Chandler Bros., of Tewksbury, are shipping large quantities of splendid sweet peas. Those of Kidder Bros. continue to be fine.

April waited until its closing day before giving us any appreciable precipitation. For the month we got 1.66 inches, about one-third of the average. The month, while quite open, was not a warm one. On one occasion the maximum reached 86 degrees, but the cold east wind kept the temperature low for the season during the month.

Tag day at Salem, Mass., was held May 1. Over 25,000 carnations were sold on the streets, and $3,000 was real-

Remember the May exhibition of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, which comes May 15 and 16.

At Penn's, business was brisk May 1. Advertisements in the leading dailies brought in a rush of orders which kept the full force busy from 6 a. m. until midnight. A large number of boys were used as messengers to deliver baskets. A big Mothers' day business is looked for May 8.

Lively & Bond, of Holbrook, are still cutting narcissi and callas in quantity, in addition to carnations and sweet peas.

R. E. Wadsworth & Co., of Northboro, are sending in a fine lot of Gypsophila elegans and sweet peas. They have a fine crop of carnations for Mothers' day.

J. Streiferd & Son, of Weymouth, are cutting a fine lot of Killarney and White Killarney roses, also callas and carnations.

Perry E. Green, of Quincy, is a well known grower of specialties. At present he is sending in pansies, ranunculi, ixias and anemones of fine quality.

A. G. Lundquist, of Woburn, who ships to the Coöperative Market, has a fine crop of pansies, sweet peas and narcissi.

Reports continue to come to hand that more evergreens have succumbed this spring than for many years. Drought, and not cold, is the cause of the big death roll. Rhododendrons have died in thousands.

Splendid yellow marguerites, many on 24-inch stems, are coming from James Wheeler and N. A. Hudson, of Natick.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

Last week the extremely hot weather put a crimp in the florists' business; the temperature went above 100 degrees, glutting the market with flowers of all kinds. The wholesalers welcomed this condition, because it brought into crop large quantities of stock which would have otherwise held out over a longer period. The heat had a bad effect on roses and carnations. The latter are getting smaller in size and will soon be undesirable for other than funeral work. With the commencement of the present week a noticeable change in the temperature took place, and the supply of stock shortened up considerably. If this continues for a few days more and the weather then warms up, there will be an oversupply of carnations for Mothers' day. Prices are gradually advancing and good stock is bringing $2 and $3, with the probabilities of the whites going to $6 and more, and colored stock to $4 and $5 per hundred.

During the hot period the outdoor flowers were the greatest sufferers, because they spoiled before opening out; this was particularly true of lilacs and fruit blossoms. This had little effect on the market, for large quantities of outdoor stock are coming in, and wild honeysuckle, iris and dogwood are in great profusion. This has killed the sale of many greenhouse flowers, and lilies were offered in quantities at as low as $1 per hundred, whereas last month they brought far more than that per dozen. The only flowers that have retained any semblance of price are cattleyas, valley, gardenias and Spencer sweet peas, all of which have been somewhat scarce.

Various Notes.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Walter E. Hawley, of Gude Bros. Co., to Miss Margaret Oliver, also of this city. The ceremony was performed April 15, in Baltimore, Md., where the young people went without letting their friends in on the secret. The news came out by accident, and now the young couple are receiving congratulations.

Among the visitors last week were A. Farenwald, of Roslyn, Pa.; Arthur Niessen, of the Leo Niessen Co.; Joseph J. Goudy, representing H. A. Dreer, and John Van Aalst, manager of the American branch of Gt. Van Waveren & Kruijff, all of Philadelphia.

Ernest F. Gude, son of William F. Gude, who has been working as general utility man for Gude Bros. Co., acting as chauffeur and helping at the make-up table, was recently appointed to a position under the Geological Survey and has been sent to southwestern Ohio with a surveying party. He writes home that he is greatly enjoying the outdoor work and expects to be away until late in the fall.

A handsome gold medal, to be competed for each year at the annual exhibition of the Brookland Rose Society, has been donated by Bishop Thomas Shahan, rector of the Catholic University, according to an announcement made at the meeting of the society last week. This year's exhibition, to be held May 20 and 21, will be the fourth. The prizes to be awarded will include seven medals, in addition to the regular ribbons. Special premiums are to be offered for the most artistically arranged baskets or other receptacles of roses. It was decided that the society shall visit the government rose gardens at Arlington, Va., in a body during the rose season. C. L. L.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

There is little change in the wholesale cut flower market this week. The supply of almost everything in season continues to come in great quantities, with little hope of a let-up. Outdoor stock is coming in heavily and this greatly hurts the sale of indoor stock. Prices are low on all grades. Roses in all varieties are in especially heavy supply, the first quality bringing hardly over $5 per hundred. The Killarneys are the bulk of the supply. There are plenty of Beauties, Wards and Hadleys for all demands. Carnations were selling as low as $5 per thousand last week. Extra fine stock never went higher than $10. Should this keep up, Mothers' day prices will be exceedingly low, as they are booking orders ahead at 3 cents. Sweet peas are daily coming in large numbers and selling at low prices. Outdoor valley hurts the sale of forced stock. Miniature gladioli are now coming in and will soon help to crowd the market. Indoor gladioli bring good prices. The first brought $10 per hundred. Some nice America, Francis King and Chicago White were seen last week. Antirrhinums in all colors had little demand at any time.

There are a number of large social events, weddings, receptions and dinners, for this month, which should help to keep the west end retailers busy.

Various Notes.

The St. Louis Florists' Club will hold its monthly meeting, Thursday, May 13. President Bourdet says there is to be a lot of important business to transact and a full attendance is requested.

The W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. purchased the entire fixtures and stock of the Metropolitan Floral Co., which closed its doors ten days ago. The owners of the building sold the fixtues and stock for back rent. Some of the wholesalers and growers were hit pretty hard.

W. S. Wells, who has charge of the Washington University grounds, has a big force of men at work. The landscape work, under his direction, has made the surroundings more beautiful.

A. G. Greiner, on Natural Bridge road, has had a big season in nursery stock and landscape work. The planting season, which is now on, will keep him busy for some time.

Ostertag Bros. say they handled quite a large number of fruit trees this spring. Strong advertisements in the local dailies cleaned them out last week.

The Kalisch Bros. Floral Co. says it had a splendid spring business in all lines, with a number of weddings booked for this month and next. Edward Kalisch puts in all his spare time looking over his fishing outfit, that he may be ready when the time comes.

Fred W. Bruenig spends a great deal of time at his Columbia, Ill., greenhouses at this time of the year. He has about finished the carnation planting.

John Moritz, who has charge of the city greenhouses in Forest park, has a world of fine bedding stock ready for distribution to the different city parks. Superintendent Ernest Strehle has everything in readiness for the planting, which begins this week.

J. F. Ammann was defeated for mayor of Edwardsville at the election held April 20, but the successful candidate was elected by a small majority, showing that Mr. Ammann is popular in his home town.

B. L. Robinson, professor of systematic botany at Harvard University, spent April 26 and 27 in the city as a guest of Dr. George T. Moore, director of the Missouri Botanical Garden.

At Angermueller's, they report an excellent demand for supplies of all kinds. The shipping of wire hanging baskets and sheet moss was large last month. Memorial day orders are coming in daily.

Visitors last week were T. W. Plant, representing the Haeger Brick & Tile Co., Elgin, Ill., and J. J. Karins, representing Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, who is on his way home from the coast.

It is reported that a number of new greenhouses will be built this summer in Kirkwood. The success of Werner Bros. and W. J. Pilcher in growing roses may instill into others a desire to enter this branch of the business. John T. Milliken, of Crescent, Mo., will add considerable new glass this summer.

J. J. B.

LANCASTER, PA.

The oldest inhabitant cannot remember such a season of extremely hot weather in April as we have just passed through. For several days the thermometer outdoors registered 100 degrees at midday. The effect on stock indoors can easily be imagined. Sweet peas suffered severely, and the quality of carnations was reduced several points. Numerous thunder storms have reduced the heat somewhat and have also furnished some showers, which were most welcome to those florists who have thousands of young carnation plants in the field and to the aster specialists, who have acres set out already.

In the city parks, Thos. R. Fries' planting of the tulip beds in Prison park was undoubtedly the finest seen this spring. Buchanan park was a cloud of pink with its masses of Judas trees, Sunday, April 25.

W. A. Hammond served as foreman of the Lancaster county grand jury last week. H. K. Rohrer served as petit juror in the Court of Quarter Sessions at the same time.

During the last week Geo. W. Park's show grounds, at La Park, near Paradise, have been the Mecca of all flower-lovers. The showing of spring-flowering

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, Lester L. Morse, San Francisco, Cal.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.
Thirty-third annual convention, San Francisco, Cal., June 22 to 24, 1915.

HOLDERS of valley pips in cold storage are discovering that stock they thought in good condition actually has made several inches of growth and is of no value.

IN the vicinity of Chicago, onion seed planted for sets has been whipped out of the ground by the strong winds. Radishes planted for market purposes have suffered a like fate.

BEET seed has been added to the list of articles which are temporarily exempt from duty when imported into France, under a recent decree of the French government.

THE Dutch bulbs have pretty much all bloomed and are gone. The stock seems to have been used up without any strain on the trade that could be laid directly to the greater quantities of bulbs brought over last season.

RETAIL seed business this spring has been the best in the history of the Younkerman Seed Co., Council Bluffs, Ia., according to W. C. Grote, secretary and manager of the company. Wholesale trade has been good, but not above normal.

AFTER traveling over the entire country several times, John De Groot, representative of Driehuizen Bros., Lisse, Holland, has decided upon Chicago as the ideal place for permanent headquarters. As soon as he has his household comfortably located, Mr. De Groot will go on his western trip.

COMMENTING on the financial troubles of certain of New York's big stores, an observer says: "The department store still sells everything from seeds to ostrich feathers, but its appeal is no longer so compelling that specialists in those lines fear its competition, or care much for its intermittent attempts to feature special sales at cut rates."

THE seed importers who made hay while the sun was shining, in the matter of bringing in stock for 1916 season, appear to have done the right thing. The embargoes may not prevent further exports of 1915 crops and may be raised before 1916 harvest is cleaned, but the man with the stock in the warehouse is the one on the safe side.

AS he is chairman of the transportation committee of the American Seed Trade Association, which holds its thirty-third annual convention in San Francisco, June 22 to 24, S. F. Leonard, president of the Leonard Seed Co., Chicago, will see the exposition from necessity as well as from choice. It is his intention to take his family with him and, after seeing the expositions, make an extended tour of the Pacific coast country.

Uncle Sam, for the 1916 congressional seed distribution, has placed no contracts in Europe. If the avuncular seed shops can get along on seeds, "made in America," probably the rest of us can, after a fashion.

The unprecedented drought in the greater part of the north central states is holding back the planting season, as it has been worse than useless to put seed into the parched ground. Not only was April a dry month, but March, as well, broke records in that direction. It is doubtful if the rains of the last few days have been sufficient to make any appreciable difference in the conditions.

The British wholesale seedsmen are going strong after the seed business that heretofore has been Germany's. One of them writes: "There is no doubt that the Germans have obtained, by their cleverness in business matters, a far larger share of the world's seed trade than ought to fall to Germans as seed growers. It is quite a fallacy to suppose that the bulk of so-called 'German' seeds are grown to any considerable extent in Germany. We would like to emphasize that practically all the kinds of seeds which Germany has been supplying to other parts of the world, can be supplied still, however long the war lasts, through the medium of wholesale houses such as ourselves, who grow seeds either at home, or in the countries or climates best suited for the saving of them. Speaking for our house, we are not dependent on German growers, nor do we expect to place orders in Germany for many a long year to come."

A SOUTH DAKOTA SEEDSMAN.

Although O. S. Jones, president of the O. S. Jones Seed Co., who looks up from his desk in the accompanying illustration, has been a South Dakotan since he started his seed business, he has been in Sioux Falls, his present location, only since 1909. The company was established four years earlier, at Madison, S. D.

The company's building, a sketch of which also appears, is a quite up-to-date seed structure. It, with the real estate and machinery, represents an investment of $70,000. It contains three stories and basement and is of reinforced concrete construction. The elevator in the rear is two stories higher and has a capacity of 75,000 bushels. Northwest of the city the company operates a farm of 480 acres.

The officers of the company are: President, O. S. Jones; vice-president, Fred J. Evans; secretary and treasurer, A. M. Honey.

HASTINGS FORMS TWO FIRMS.

H. G. Hastings & Co., of Atlanta, Ga., a partnership composed of H. G. Hastings and H. W. Brown, filed application in Fulton Superior court, April 23, through their attorneys, E. M. and G. F. Mitchell, for two charters of incorporation, one corporation to be known as the Hastings Seed Co., handling the retail end of the business, with an initial capital stock of $1,000 and the privilege of increasing to $500,000, and the other corporation to be known as the H. G. Hastings Co., handling the wholesale end of the business, with a capital stock of $250,000 and the privilege of increasing to $500,000.

It is stated in the application that the large growth of the business has made a partnership rather awkward to handle, whereas two corporations chartered as above will facilitate the business and enable the concern to serve the public to much better advantage.

It is proposed in the application to make W. R. Hastings, a son of H. G. Hastings, a member of the new firms.

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

S. C. Templin, Garrettsville, O.—"The Wonderful New Pelargonium, Easter Greeting"; this 6-page folder, treating of Mr. Templin's specialty, is accompanied with a leaflet containing instructions for the growing of the plant. Enclosed, also, is a circular on "The New Geranium, Scarlet Bedder."

L. D. Mudgett, Shirley, Mass.—A 24-page catalogue of dahlias. The varieties, of whatever type, are all arranged in one alphabetical list, but each name is followed by a word in parentheses, such as "show," "cactus," etc., to indicate the class to which the variety belongs.

Searl & Sons, Sydney, Australia.—An accurate, comprehensive catalogue, listing both greenhouse and outdoor stock, for florists, nurserymen and seedsmen. Included in the lists are vegetable, farm and flower seeds; roses; fruit-bearing and ornamental trees, shrubs and flowering plants; ferns, palms, orchids, wreaths, bouquets and designs; Jadoo fiber, insecticides, etc.; 104 pages, illustrated.

McHutchison & Co., New York, N. Y., agents for Schaum & Van Tol, Boskoop, Holland.—A 36-page wholesale list of azaleas, pot-grown Japanese maples, rhododendrons, roses, peonies, magnolias, decorative plants, climbers, shrubs for forcing, conifers, small fruits, etc.

The Early Bird

Ever see an early bird at work? Set your alarm clock at 4:15 and sharply listen for the first call of the robin. In sunshine or rain his merry call is the same.

Well, when you've done this you are in line for the next step—the securing of a batch of Silver Pink seedlings to make a merry time for yourself. Early and late the joy is great, and whether grown indoors or out they give the same satisfactory results.

Right now is the time to get busy for fall blooms. Don't lose a minute, but start a flat at once, remembering that SEEDLING plants of Silver Pink will outclass cuttings five to one. Seedlings are simply wonders. Price of seed, $1.00 per pkt.; 3 for $2.50; 7 for $5.00. Plants for early flowering as follows:

SILVER PINK SEEDLINGS - $4.00 per 100
YELLOW, NELROSE, GARNET, 5.00 per 100

Our yellow variety is the finest of its color and should be in every collection.

For prompt service cash must accompany all orders. Free cultural directions.

Vegetable Forcing

APHIS ON CABBAGES.

What shall I use to destroy green fly on young cabbage plants?

H. C. B.—Md.

If they are in coldframes, put on the sashes and give a fumigation with a nicotine paper. Or you can spray with a nicotine extract or any of the soap preparations, such as whale oil soap, kerosene emulsion, Aphine or even Ivory soap. One pound of the Ivory soap, sliced fine and dissolved in boiling water, with enough water added to make the total liquid five gallons, makes a cheap, effective insecticide for aphis.

C. W.

LARGE TOMATOES FOR FORCING.

I have a house of Comet tomatoes which are bearing profusely, but the fruit is small and will not sell against the large ones that come up from Florida. Is there a larger tomato that will force under glass during the winter?

F. B.—Ala.

Comet is the leading forcing tomato for the great northern markets, where fruits which will run from six to eight to the pound in winter are much preferred to those of larger size. Lister's Prolific, Carter's Sunrise, Sutton's Best of All, Stirling Castle and all other purely forcing tomatoes are small varieties, carrying a good number of fruits per bunch. I do not know of a large-fruited tomato adapted for forcing purposes. You might try Chalk's Early Jewel, a somewhat larger fruit, which has succeeded fairly well with some. Stone is a splendid tomato, the best we have outdoors, but it is not of much value in the winter. If you want a late spring or early summer crop, it would be all right. I am somewhat surprised that customers prefer outdoor Florida tomatoes to those ripened under glass. The indoor fruit is immeasurably superior in flavor and the color is always rich.

Chrysanthemum
By Arthur Herrington
Formerly president Chrysanthemum Society of America.
The most complete and comprehensive work on the cultivation of the chrysanthemum that has yet been published in America. Its scope and character may be gleaned from the list of contents, which comprises chapters on composts; planting; benches, boxes or pots; general cultural details; crown and terminal buds; feeding, its object and application; care of the buds; exhibition and judging; specimen plants, plants in pots; raising from seed and hybridizing; sports; hardy chrysanthemums; chrysanthemums for south and west; insect pests and diseases; classification and selection of varieties for special purposes; history of the chrysanthemum, etc. The book will be welcomed for the lucid, comprehensive, as well as the practical character of its contents. Handsomely illustrated. 168 pages, 5x7 inches. Price 50c postpaid.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

CALIFORNIA IN FEBRUARY.

The midwinter scene in southern California shown in the accompanying illustration is the nearest approach in appearance to a field of snow that this locality ever experiences. It is a 4-acre field of Purity freesias, which were grown by Mr. and Mrs. James H. Bays, in Ventura county, near the city of Ventura.

Four Acres of Freesia Purity Near Ventura, Cal., in February.

Several seed and bulb growers are located in this section, and some of the finest petunia seed in the world is produced here. Sweet pea, Cobæa scandens, smilax and many other varieties of seed are largely grown here for the wholesale trade. White and yellow callas, poinsettias, heliotropes and many more tender plants and bulbs are also grown in this district.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

The demand for cut flowers is about up to the recent average, neither special orders nor counter trade being anything to boast of. To one who is much about town, it appears that flowers are being regularly used in business offices, etc., to a larger extent than ever before. The example set by a few large concerns has been taken up by the papers and is gaining great popularity, but the retail florists get little benefit from the movement, as most of the buying is done from street venders. In fact, this new outlet does not even seem to help the wholesale market out greatly, as the daily offerings exceed the demand in nearly all lines. As to the stock offered, there is not much new to report. Carnations, sweet peas, and German and Spanish iris are all fine, in heavy supply and cheap, and are almost crowding other goods out of the market. Roses in general move slowly, except Cecile Brunners, which remain popular, though all varieties are fine. Peonies are getting better all the time, and the larger stores are using a good many. Gladioli are doing fairly well. The excessive cut of Easter lilies is about cleaned up and there are few spiræas left. Offerings of valley are still light. There is an abundance of excellent Cattleya Mossiæ and plenty of nice gardenias, but the demand for all high-priced stock is limited. Violets are scarce. A few good daffodils and narcissi are still arriving from distant points and an occasional bunch of tulips is seen, but such goods are scarce. Exposition requirements have caused a steady drain on the supply of palms and ferns for many months, and stocks in marketable shape are rather low at present.

Various Notes.

Pelicano, Rossi & Co. have just received a large shipment of baskets.

Podesta & Baldocchi made a nice showing of Irish Elegance roses last week.

A. O. Stein, on Sutter street, is still keeping busy with special decorations at the exposition.

C. W. Ward, of Queens, N. Y., was in San Francisco a few days ago, accompanied by his daughter, and made arrangements to occupy a large space in the convention garden. He is now in Humboldt county, where he has a large nursery.

The United Flower & Supply Co. has been incorporated in San Francisco, with a capital stock of $10,000, by I. Adachi, H. T. Oichi, T. Masunda and others. The new corporation was organized to take over the shipping department of the California Flower Market, at 448 Bush street, and is controlled by the same interests. S. T. Beatie, who has been sales-manager for the California Flower Market, covering its outside territory, continues in the same capacity with the United Flower & Supply Co. and will also be associated with the Flower Market in an advisory capacity. Mr. Beatie says the Flower Market this year controls the cut from 2,000,000 chrysanthemums, and with the shipping business handled by the new company, expects to sell them all. The new shipping company will also handle violets extensively.

The committee in charge of the preparations for the fall flower show, or chrysanthemum show, to be held under the auspices of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society, in conjunction with the Chrysanthemum Society of America and the Panama-Pacific exposition, has its prize list about made up and will have it printed in a few days. The show is, of course, not limited to chrysanthemums, and it is believed that a large number of exhibitors will participate. There are a large number of cash prizes, as well as exposition medals.

H. Plath has a large quantity of rooted cuttings from some new rubber plants, Ficus utilis, which he got last fall, all doing nicely, and believes they will be quite popular. He is anxiously awaiting a shipment of palms which was sent from Belgium some time ago, but has not since been heard from. He has propagated a good number of primulas from two of last year's growth that seem to be distinct varieties of desirable quality; at least they seem to resemble nothing listed in any of the catalogues. Mr. Plath has purchased a lot across the street from his establishment; he is building on it a large, new tank-house and removing the old one.

J. A. Carbone, of West Berkeley, has a remarkably fine crop of orchids this spring. For about a month past he has been cutting from a big house of Cattleya Mossiæ, from which he is supplying practically the whole coast. He has never had such large flowers; some specimens measure over nine inches from tip to tip, four flowers on a stem, and one of the largest plants bore about 200 blossoms at once. He has also a nice house of C. Gaskelliana, and one of C. gigas imperialis, which will be coming out in about two months. A large collection of dendrobiums and vandas are also coming on in good shape. He is showing some handsome Miltonia vexillaria, one plant of which has six sprays. Mr. Carbone reports a good call for Phalænopsis amabilis, of which he has hardly had enough for requirements this year. Odontoglossum crispum also, he says, is becoming quite popular, and of this he has a whole house.

The Hogan-Kooyman Co. is still showing squaw grass blossoms from the mountains. These are a strong attraction, as the long stalks are covered with a mass of tiny, delicate white blossoms, with a faint, sweet odor. It is said that these bloom only after a forest fire; they are certainly a novelty.

E. James, of East Oakland, has another good-sized lot of rambler roses, principally Tausendschon and Dorothy Perkins, which will soon be ready.

The rhododendrons in the Court of the Universe at the exposition are still in full bloom, but those in the horticultural gardens are about gone. The principal feature in the gardens just now is the German iris, which is at its best. The roses at the exposition are also beginning to show up rather well.

V. Fregosi, who was formerly associated with his brother, on Fillmore street, has for the last two months been conducting a shop at 3218 Mis-

Superior-Grown ROSES for Immediate Delivery

September Morn Our sensational light pink rose. Throws extra strong canes in rapid succession, 2 to 4 feet, producing high-grade stock without pinching. Wonderful keeper, full, double, with petals of grand substance waved on edges, giving it a most distinct appearance. Light shade of flesh-pink on outside, shading to pure rose-pink in center. We planted 10,000 of it for cutting and have had more repeat orders on it than on any other rose and at better prices. Flowers every day in the year and never soft in the hottest weather. Strong stems, no mildew or spot. (See our full-page ads. in issues of January 21 and 28.)

Own root plants only, from 2½-inch pots, $30.00 per 100, $250.00 per 1000, 5000 for $1000.00.

Francis Scott Key Flowers unusually large and double, rosy red and quite distinct from any other indoor rose. Its keeping qualities are remarkable. While being so double, it is especially good for hot weather conditions. Worthy of its name and its raiser, Mr. John Cook. Note our prices.

$10.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000

Mrs. F. F. Thompson The beautiful shell-pink sport of the well known Mrs. Geo. Shawyer. It combines all the fine qualities of its parent, and this surely is recommendation enough when added to its magnificent coloring. Always in bloom and already proved a money-maker.

$30.00 per 100; $250.00 per 1000

Hadley Brilliant, deep, velvety crimson, a color which it retains all the year round. Flowers borne on stiff, upright stems, and a first-class variety in every particular.

$10.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000

Mrs. Chas. Russell In greater demand than any other rose of the year. American Beauty has often had its position threatened by new comers, but Mrs. Russell is the first to prove a serious menace.

Splendid stock from 2½-inch pots, $10.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000.

Prince E. C. d'Arenberg Has fulfilled every prediction made for it last season and is a big winner everywhere. There is no red rose grown that will make as satisfactory returns for the space occupied. Of exceedingly strong, sturdy growth, throwing splendid stems at all times; splendid foliage. The one best bet in red roses.

$6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000

Ophelia has proven of exceptional merit as a forcing rose; a great grower, clean and strong, very free, and a most beautiful color—brilliant salmon-pink, shading to orange. A fancy rose that you will be more than pleased with.

$10.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000

Killarney Brilliant This is the very last word in the Killarneys—an exceptionally strong grower, increased petalage and of heavier texture. A most brilliant and pleasing color; is doing well everywhere, and will be planted heavily this season.

$10.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000

Mrs. Geo. Shawyer The most popular rose of its color ever introduced; has won its way to the very top on merit alone. A grand grower, very free, a splendid keeper and the most pleasing shade of pink; sells on sight, at top prices. Will be planted heavier than any other pink rose this season.

$6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000

All the new and standard varieties in quantity. Let us figure on your requirements for the coming season. We can make the price right for first-class, well grown stock.

The Market.

Just at the time of writing, the florists are all on the lookout for good decorative greens for the many floats and other structures for Fiesta week. There will be plenty of flowers from outdoors, for probably there never was a season when everything looked so bright and so full of bloom as this year. The last few days have been showery; the nice, gentle rains have soaked into the newly cultivated ground and helped wonderfully the late plantings of nursery products and other stock. The retail nursery business is keeping up remarkably well on this account, and as the customers are likely to be successful with the plants purchased, this augurs well for future business. The florists' trade has been rather on the quiet side and the prices of even the best grades of stock have slumped materially. As far as can be noted, there is no shortage of anything and the prices along all lines favor the buyer.

Various Notes.

Replying to the usual question, "How's business?" H. Reeve Darling, of Darling's Flower Shop, said, "Unsound;" at least, that was the definition I found of the word he used, when I looked it up in the dictionary. All the same, there seemed to be a good deal going on in the back of the store, while the windows were attractive as usual and Manager Garbett was trying to answer the telephone and wait on customers at the same time. Possibly these Sixth street merchants set too high a standard, but that is a good fault.

Manager Fred Sperry, of the L. A. Floral Co., returned from San Francisco in good time for the expected rush for Fiesta week. While admitting the beauties and charms of the northern city, he says that Los Angeles still looks good to him and it has been said of our friend that he "knows a good thing," etc.

Calling on J. McGillivray, superintendent of Eastlake park, I was surprised to see what an improvement had been made in a short time in the greenhouse department and the grounds adjacent to the greenhouses. In the large conservatories the center beds are becoming furnished, while there is a bright and showy display of flowering plants on the side benches. The orchids here have greatly improved since the new houses have been built and there is at present a fine show of cattleyas and lælias. Quite a large importation of Mexican species has arrived from a collector sent by the department, and while it is evident that only the more common species and varieties have been sent, yet they will, when established, prove of interest to the many visitors to this always popular park. While all lovers of orchids will deplore the spending of good money on this amateur style of collecting, it is at least a start and we may hope for better things as time goes on. At all events, we may be sure that Mr. McGillivray will make the utmost use of the material at hand. The fern-lined walls in the corridor connecting

To Pacific Coast Florists:

What stock have you for sale to the trade? Is it moving as it should? No?

Then tell the trade about it by using the Pacific Coast Pages of The Review.

Pacific Coast advertisers almost invariably report good results. Like this:

Say! That ad's a humdinger for getting the business.—Everett Floral Co., Everett, Wash.

I sold all the Mum cuttings advertised, and you will not hear from me again until I can get some more stock ready. Shall root 100,000 Carnation cuttings for next season, as I know The Review will sell them for me.—Frank Wilhelm, Los Angeles, Cal.

Please cut out of our advertisement in The Review the cyclamen seedlings. We sold all our surplus cyclamen seedlings as a direct result of our advertisement in your paper.—Spokane Greenhouses (Inc.), Spokane, Wash.

We want to say that our last advertisement in The Review brought us orders from both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. We had, strangely enough, on following days, orders from Salem, Ore., and from Salem, Mass.—State Floral Co., North Yakima, Wash.

We are well pleased with the results obtained by advertising in the Pacific Coast Department of The Review. We sold out clean and refused many orders. The Review surely gives results.—Van Slyke & Seamons, Tacoma, Wash.

the houses are fine now and cause much favorable comment.

H. W. Turner has the work on his new houses well advanced. He reports big sales on rose plants of the newer varieties and an increasing demand for those kinds that thrive outdoors.

C. C. Navlet, of San Jose, paid us a flying visit last week.

The rose display along the country highways is not, perhaps, what its sponsors hoped for, but the perennial billboards are a blaze of color.

H. R. Richards.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Cooler weather has reduced the cut of carnations and roses and there is not such a heavy overstock as there was last week. Social events and counter trade are moving flowers in about normal quantities. The demand for funeral designs has been above the average. Potted hydrangeas in all shades of color are shown and are selling fairly well. Some azaleas and potted roses are offered, but the demand for them is light. Snapdragons in a variety of colors are coming in and sell well. Sweet peas are abundant. Violets are entirely off the market. The first Ulrich Brunner roses are in. The movement of bedding stock has been retarded by the change in the weather.

Various Notes.

L. G. Pfunder, a retired pioneer florist, has leased his greenhouse range, at East Forty-ninth and Alder streets. The lessees are growing principally vegetables and bedding stock.

W. F. Bodley, the father of T. C. and R. M. Bodley, well known greenhouse men, died April 29. He had lived in Portland over forty years.

E. J. Nausa has become associated with C. C. Ruenitz as manager of the flower store in Masonic Temple. This arrangement will give Mr. Ruenitz, who is an experienced grower, more time to look after his greenhouses, on Palatine hill.

The Tonseth Floral Co. is showing some excellent French hydrangeas in bright colors.

Growers of bedding stock who have booths at the public market are reported to be selling geraniums to the public at the same prices they are bringing in wholesale lots. No good reason appears for such action, as there is no oversupply of geraniums. S. W. W.

BURNT SPOTS ON FOLIAGE.

I am sending a sample of the foliage on some of our plants and should like to know what causes the discolored spots. Some of our benches of small geraniums are nearly all affected. The callas also are in bad condition.

B. G.—Okla.

The burnt spots on the calla foliage are undoubtedly caused by sun-scald through some defective glass. The geraniums seem to be affected in much the same manner. I would suggest spraying a thin coating of shading over the glass, just sufficient to break the sun's rays. You will find kerosene and white lead a good shade. If preferred you can, of course, apply it with a wide whitewash brush on a long handle. I think you will have no further trouble if you shade at once. C. W.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

It is reported that a nursery is being started at South Reno, Kan., by Samuel D. Buhler.

Of the 375 acres owned by the Northwest Nursery Co., at Valley City, N. D., 200 acres are planted to small trees and other nursery stock.

The Moon Nursery Corporation, of White Plains, N. Y., has been incorporated by J. Edward Moon and Henry T. Moon, of Morrisville, Pa., and E. Wright Peterson, of Gouverneur, N. Y.

G. C. Whittaker, formerly of Seattle, Wash., has purchased thirty acres of land at Grand Mound, Wash., where he will establish a nursery. He expects to have berry plants ready to market in 1916.

There are not many nurserymen who expect to break records this season, but there are few who at the moment find time hanging heavily on their hands. The pressure of the spring rush is just as severe as ever.

W. J. Hughes, of the Cedar Rapids Nursery Co., Cedar Rapids, Ia., says that, although he doesn't know the cause, there has been a big increase in the nursery business in his locality this year. Fruit trees, of course, form the larger part of the sales.

Instead of burning the leftovers at the end of the season, Holsinger Bros., of Rosedale, Kan., gave away about 3,000 fruit trees, shrubs, bushes and vines May 1. They decided this practice would not diminish their profits for this season, while it might add a few to their customers next year.

W. C. Griffing, manager of the nurseries of the Griffing Bros. Co., at Grand Bay, Ala., spoke before the Gulf Coast Horticultural Society at Mobile last week on "Diversification in the Orchard." The company's nurseries at Grand Bay cover 200 acres, and contain flowers and shrubs as well as fruit and ornamental trees. Over 100 varieties of citrus fruits have been set out.

Filling orders and planting young stock is keeping 460 hands busy at the William P. Stark Nurseries, at Neosho and Stark City, Mo. To the 500 acres of the firm, an extra 100 has been added this spring. A gasoline tractor has just been purchased for cultivating. From 500 to 700 orders a day are being sent out by mail, express and freight. The 7,000,000 strawberry plants, a new line this season, have a strong demand. Many of the Royal Arch Masons came from the state conference at Joplin to visit the nurseries April 27.

MAILING PLANTS TO CANADA.

The postal administration of Canada having advised the U. S. Postoffice Department that it has been necessary for the Canadian customs authorities to refuse entry to and reëxport a considerable number of small shipments of prohibited nursery stock from the United States, the Postoffice Department has directed the attention of all postmasters to the postal regulations, which prohibit the importation into Canada through the mails of all nursery stock, including trees, shrubs, plants, vines, grafts, scions, cuttings or buds. Greenhouse-grown florists' stock, cut flowers, herbaceous perennials and bedding plants are admitted only in case a detailed statement of the contents is attached to the parcels containing such matter.

Enclosed you will find some advertising matter. We have a surplus, and we believe IF ANYONE CAN HELP US MOVE IT, YOU CAN.—Atlantic Nursery Co., Berlin, Md., D. W. Babcock, Mgr., January 30, 1915.

Postmasters have been directed to adopt at their offices such additional measures as may be necessary to prevent the mailing to Canada of packages of prohibited nursery stock and also of packages of plants excepted from the above prohibition unless such packages conform to the conditions prescribed.

SPRAY FOR APPLE TREES.

What would be the best spray for old apple trees which have not been sprayed for a long time? I want to know of the most inexpensive spray.

B. T. D.—Ia.

If you mean a winter spray, to be applied only while the trees are perfectly dormant, on a clear day, either the lime-sulphur solution or one of the soluble oils, such as Scaline or Scalecide, can be used. When a lot of spraying has to be done, it will pay to use the lime-sulphur spray. Otherwise one of the soluble oils named, applied at the rate of fifteen to twenty parts of water to one part of the soluble oils, makes a splendid spray, which cares for the San Jose and other scales effectively.

In order to have good fruit, free from blemish and from the attacks of the codlin moth caterpillar and other pests, spray the trees with arsenate of lead and Bordeaux mixture as soon as the blossoms fall. A second spraying twelve or fourteen days later, and a third fourteen days later still, will help to insure freedom from both insect attacks and fungoid affections. The best spray is always the cheapest.

THE VALUE OF A TEST ORCHARD.

[An address by Harry Nicholson, of Winchester, Tenn., before the convention of the Tennessee State Nurserymen's Association, on the subject, "Should Every Nurseryman Have a Test Orchard?"]

To the question, "Should every nurseryman have a test orchard?" I would answer, "Yes, if possible." I do not know of anything that could be of more help and pleasure to the nurseryman than having a good test orchard of the fruits he sends out to his customers. That is the place for him to learn if the trees he sells are what they should be as fruit bearers. I know of nothing that will give the nurseryman a firmer hold of his business and enable him to answer intelligently the many questions asked him by agents and customers as to what is best and profitable to plant and grow in the way of fruit trees.

I think, also, that a test orchard will be the means of helping him to breed his varieties to a higher standard. After having some experience in this way, we found that in the same row of trees, perhaps one tree or more would have much better fruit than others of the same variety. We think it well to cut buds or grafts from these trees having finer fruit and perhaps finer growth. Some years ago we planted in our orchard fifty varieties of peach trees, five trees of a kind, to test them, and in some varieties we were much disappointed as to fruit and bearing qualities, while of others we found the fruit was much better than we thought.

Now, I don't pretend to say that the nurseryman can depend on getting all his buds and grafts from his test orchard, for I know he can't unless he is only growing a few, but I believe he can grow a few trees from this test orchard from varieties showing the best fruit, and then transfer these trees to his scion orchard.

I cannot say why these trees of the same varieties show better fruit than others. It may be that the land is stronger, or there may be some other reason, but I know it is a fact. We have one Elberta tree on our place that it 21 years old, and this tree bears fruit so much finer than other trees of the same kind all around it, that there is

Hybrid-Tea Rose Killarney

The Dreer Roses for bedding are strong field-grown plants which were potted during the Winter months, stored in cold houses and frames, and are now in the best possible condition to turn over to your retail customers for outdoor planting. They must not be compared to dormant cellared stock and all are in 5 or 6-inch pots, according to the growth of the variety.

a marked difference. We use buds from this tree every year as much as we can. I believe that, to get the best results from a test orchard, it should not be used too long, as in peaches we find the best fruit on young trees. The same is true of the apple, but, of course, the apple test orchard would last much longer than the peach.

Another thing in favor of the test orchard for the nurseryman: I believe that we should take our scions and buds from bearing trees as much as possible, say every three or four years, anyway. This will keep the trees closer to the parent tree, and, I think, add to their bearing quality.

Before I close I want to say that if the nurseryman is going to have a test orchard, he should inform himself as to the best way to cultivate, prune and fertilize the test orchard, in order that it may be a fair test. Of course, judgment must be used as to the varieties used in the test orchards in our own and other sections.

DAYTON, O.

The Market.

Midsummer weather prevailing through this section has brought most of our hardy shrubbery into bloom. This year the city has planted thousands of ornamental and flowering shrubs and shade trees, which will help to make it more beautiful.

Carnation planting was finished last week, and what the florist wants now is a good rain. No rain to speak of has fallen here in the last six weeks. Business in cut flowers has taken a decided drop. Every grower has a big crop on, especially of carnations, and consequently a good many find their way to the dump.

Various Notes.

The florists of this city have decided to boom the porch and window boxes again this season, acting in conjunction with the Greater Dayton Association, which sends out a little booklet to increase interest in this line and giving instructions how to care for the plants. Last year there were 5,000 feet of boxes filled; this year we expect to double it. All local florists are well prepared to take care of the expected increase.

Tulips and hyacinths were remarkably fine outside this year, but, the weather being so warm, they did not last long.

Jas. Ewing, who has been in the employ of the Miami Floral Co. for the last eight years as foreman, resigned May 1, taking a position as private gardener to Walter Kidder, Arnold place and Grand avenue. MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

Business has not shown much improvement during the last week. Stock is still extremely plentiful and prices are low. The weather, however, has turned much cooler and the sun has remained hidden most of the time. This is decreasing the supply, and the surplus is not nearly so great as it has been. Roses are in fine shape, despite the abnormal weather conditions, and at the prices they are bringing they are surely a bargain. Some fine Russell, Prima Donna and Shawyer roses are being shown. Carnations are still overabundant and are being cleaned up at low prices. This stock is not quite so good as it should be, but, considering the premature warm weather, there is little complaint to be made on the quality and surely none on the price.

Sweet peas are still plentiful, but are bringing next to nothing, although a large percentage of them are the butterfly variety. Violets are about gone for the season and what little stock is brought to the market is poor. Valley is good and is having a steady sale. Lilies are in good supply and are moving fairly well. Spring stock is going fast and is not bringing extra good prices.

From present indications, there will be plenty of stock for Mothers' day, although many large advance orders are already booked. There probably will be some scarcity of white carnations, not because of any falling off in the supply, but because the demand for these always exceeds the demand for other stock.

Various Notes.

N. W. Perstein, who moved into a brand-new store at 471 Twelfth street only a short while ago, reports business highly satisfactory so far. This store is one of the best outside of the downtown district. All the fixtures are of the latest pattern and present an attractive appearance. Mr. Perstein has had a good deal of funeral work lately, among which was one casket cover, and also several large designs for the funeral of Mrs. W. B. Rubin. Henry Benz, formerly with J. M. Fox & Son, has charge of the designing and decorations.

Among the visitors of the week were George Benke, of Benke Bros., Watertown, and Emil Buettner, Chicago.

Yellow King Humbert Canna

The grandest canna on earth. A sport of Red King Humbert, originated by us five years ago.

Large 3½-in. pot plants.

$1.00 each; $9.00 per dozen; $60.00 per 100

Grow this canna and you will never grow any other yellow canna with green foliage. Flower larger than King Humbert, lightly spotted red, not affected by sun or heavy rain; 5 and 6 clusters, larger than a peck measure, on one stalk. A very healthy grower. Plant design beds with red and yellow King Humbert cannas, same as red and yellow coleus, and you will have something wonderful. Florists who have seen this canna growing on our place say without exception that it leads anything for show, in rank growing and free blooming they have ever seen. Only a few thousand plants for sale at any price. Order some today. This ad may not appear again.

CLEVELAND.

The Market.

The market the last few weeks has been away off color. Beginning a few days after Easter and continuing up to May 1, we have had more hot, dry weather than we would expect in June. During the last ten days more than one grower has lost thousands of bulbous stock that had been intended to be held for Mothers' day. Roses, too, have suffered. The big spring crop is nearly gone, and the quality is not so good as in other years at this season.

Carnations are looking fine and the chances for a record crop for Mothers' day are good. Baby gladioli, snapdragons, stocks and sweet peas are in good supply. The Florists' Club's advertising committee has been busy for a few weeks with Mothers' day publicity. This year's business is expected to surpass all others.

Club Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Florists' Club, held May 3, was preceded by a get-together luncheon at the Hollenden hotel. A good crowd turned out. The meeting was called to order at 8:30 by President H. P. Knoble. Mothers' day advertising and business prospects were discussed at length. All are confident of the largest and best Mothers' day yet experienced.

M. A. Vinsen, general booster for our fall flower show, was on hand to tell the members of the start already made toward holding the largest flower and trade show yet attempted in the middle west. Carl Becherer, Dixmont, Pa., sent a vase of his seedling carnation, a yellow and red variegated, which shipped finely. Some of the flowers in the box were cut April 27 and were perfectly fresh. It looks good. F. A. F.

Paterson, N. J.—On Billy Sunday's Mothers' day, April 25, 40,000 carnations were sold here by the girls who were working in the interests of charity. A clear profit of $2,565 was realized for the Paterson Orphan Asylum.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

From present indications, it will be a "merry month of May" in Providence society, for the social horizon is bright with the prospect of many activities. In this respect last week was unusually gay and brought with it a greatly stimulated business. Three especially prominent weddings, the Sophomore ball at Brown and other functions in this city, with a big wedding at Woonsocket, kept things humming.

There is a good supply of everything seasonable. Roses and carnations are holding well and sweet peas are excellent. Violets are much on the wane and are at present superseded by arbutus. Marguerites, snapdragons and iris sell well. Most of the growers report an abundance of potted plants for Memorial day.

Various Notes.

T. O'Connor had the decorations for the Affleck-Perkins wedding. Easter lilies and palms were used at the church. At the house American Beauty roses entered largely into the effects, more than 300 being used. O'Connor also had charge of the decorations at the church and home for the Metcalf-Shepley nuptials, where apple blossoms and white lilacs, with pointed cedar trees as a background, made an appropriate May day arrangement.

At the Turner-Harris wedding the decorations were in the hands of T. J. Johnston & Co., Ed Brooks, proprietor. The drawing room, where the reception was held, had a setting of green, pink and white, with stocks and snapdragons to carry out the color scheme.

E. D. Tucker has removed his store from 296 to 204 Broad street, Pawtucket.

H. C. Neubrand, representing A. N. Pierson, Inc., of Cromwell, Conn., was a business visitor in this city last week.

M. J. Leach & Sons, Pawtucket, have been making a number of alterations and improvements at their store.

J. Henry Cushing, of the Quidnick Greenhouses, at Quidnick, who has been confined to the house for several weeks by illness, was able to be out last week.

Esther E. Everett has filed notice with the city clerk's office that she is conducting the E. E. Everett Forestry Co., 1047 Broad street. W. H. M.

HYDRANGEAS

We have a magnificent lot of large plants grown in tubs and half-barrels for

JULY AND AUGUST FLOWERING

We have made a specialty of Hydrangeas for years, and our plants have never been finer than they are this year. They are well budded, and will begin to show color the end of June, and will be in perfection during July and August—when they are most in demand.

Hydrangea Otaksa, the standard pink variety, and the new French Hydrangeas—Avalanche, Fraicheur, La Lorraine, Mme. Maurice Hamar, Mme. E. Mouillere and Mlle. Renee Gaillard. Strong plants in tubs, $2.00 and $3.00 each—according to size.

Otaksa, very large specimens in half barrels, $7.50, $10.00 and $12.50 each—according to size.

DRACAENA INDIVISA

Large plants for centers of vases, 50c, 75c, $1.00 and $1.50 each—according to size.

CROTONS

Assorted varieties for bedding, in 3½ and 4-inch pots, $15.00 and $25.00 per 100.

VINCA MAJOR VARIEGATA

We have a fine stock of this in strong, heavy plants in 4-inch pots, at $10.00 and $12.00 per 100—according to size.

ENGLISH IVY

Strong plants, 4-inch pots, $10.00 and $12.00 per 100—according to size.

CROMWELL, CONNECTICUT

COLUMBUS, O.

The Market.

The warm weather of the last few days has had a tendency to curtail the sale of cut flowers and to increase the demand for potted plants. The call for bedding plants is quite heavy, even at this early date, as everybody is anxious to get them out, regardless of the warnings against being too early; and the consequence is, quite a quantity of geraniums, as well as other plants, are moved. As a result, there will no doubt be a good chance to resell to the same people later.

Cut flowers have been quite plentiful, with a good lot of funeral work to take up the stock. Carnations threatened to be a glut a few days ago, as it seemed everyone was cutting heavily and there was little demand. Since then, however, they have cleaned up nicely. Roses have been of good quality and about enough in supply to go the rounds. Beauties have been a little scarce, with a fair demand. Sweet peas are coming in good shape and are still the favorite for corsage work. Some fine Darwin tulips are seen and they make a good display. Miniature gladioli are cut heavily and are filling a want for something we have not had all winter.

Various Notes.

Sherman Stephens is reported somewhat improved and we are all in hopes he will soon be himself again.

Mrs. C. E. Stone has been seriously ill for the last two or three weeks.

J. M.

Joplin, Mo.—The second annual rose show at the Country Club will probably be held on the last Sunday in May, although the time will not be fixed definitely until the height of the blooming season locally can be ascertained. President Burt Lyon has received a letter from Benjamin Hammond, authorizing the award of one silver and two bronze medals in the name of the American Rose Society. Wm. L. Rock, of Kansas City, will act as chairman of the jury of awards.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

BOILER TUBES FOR PIPING.

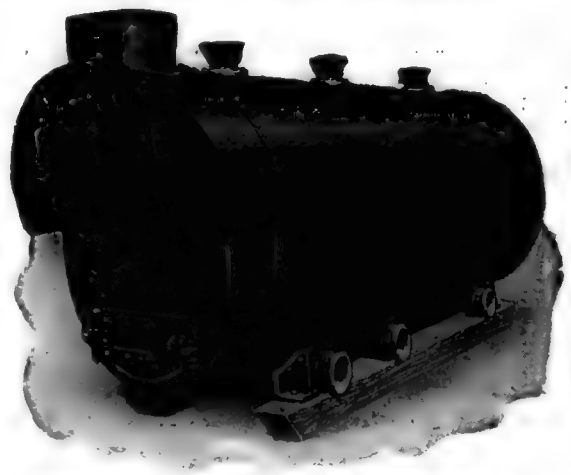
We should like to get your advice regarding used boiler flues as a medium for hot water heating. It seems to me that as flows they would serve the purpose as well as standard pipes, as the sun reaches the flows at all times. On the other hand, if used as returns under benches, where they would be subject to continual moisture and would be completely screened from sunshine, they would soon rust out, I think, owing to their light construction and questionable quality. We are aware of the fact that the circulation is much better and faster with their use, and this is a point in their favor. What would you estimate as the average life of such pipes under benches?

H. E. & C. W. K.—Ia.

From the fact that boiler tubes are usually thinner than standard wrought iron pipes, the latter would prove more durable, but if all rust scales are carefully removed from the exterior of the boiler tubes and they are then covered with a paint composed of lampblack and linseed oil, they will last a long time. After the pipes are in place, a second coat should be applied, with special care in painting near the joints. If care was taken to remove all of the scale, it would not be necessary to repaint the pipes for two years, although if rusty spots are noticed they should be touched up occasionally. Just how long boiler tubes can be relied on as heating pipes will depend, of course, upon the extent to which they have been rusted. This really should determine whether or not they should be used.

I fail to understand why it is stated that "the circulation is much better and faster with their use," since the circulation in a 3-inch boiler tube would not be appreciably faster than in a 3-inch standard pipe. Since the exterior diameter is used as the measurement of boiler tubes, while the interior diameter is used for standard pipes, the latter would afford slightly more radiating surface, but this would perhaps be nearly counterbalanced by the greater radiation through the thin-walled boiler tubes.

THE COAL MARKET.



Dull and monotonous as a flat and barren landscape—such is the actual, present condition of the coal business. There is no change of scenery in view as far as the eye can see. There has been no variation in the surroundings in the last two or three weeks of travel. In order to get any encouragement, the coal men must direct their thoughts beyond the horizon and see in imagination what is outside the range of their physical vision. That is what they are doing and they say that "prospects are better."

And the most cheerful part of the prospect to the coal men, though not

WHAT THE USERS SAY ABOUT KROESCHELL BOILERS

Kroeschell Boiler—Half the Coal and Half the Work.

Your No. 13 Boiler is carrying 25,000 square feet of glass, and I can keep it at 60° in the coldest weather without any trouble. I have three other types of boilers also, heating a range of 25,000 square feet of glass, but the No. 13 Kroeschell Boiler only takes half the coal and half the work to get the same results.

J. G. FRISZ,
Vincennes, Ind.

P. S.—Mr. J. G. Frisz, of Vincennes, Ind., has the largest range of glass in Indiana devoted to vegetable forcing. In 1914 five cast iron boilers were taken out and a central heating system was installed by Kroeschell Bros. Co. Two No. 18 Kroeschell Boilers are used for the purpose, saving in coal twelve carloads for the season.

necessarily to the florists, is the likelihood of an increase in the foreign demand. Says a Chicago reporter for the Black Diamond: "The smokeless situation, which has been off color, has improved in tone, although not in fact, in the last week. One of the things of real importance was the receipt of a letter from one smokeless operator. This letter instructed the western representative not to make any commitments without consultation with the home office. The operator said that he did not care whether any business was closed in Chicago this year or not and certainly would make no concessions in price. The reason for this statement was that the export trade is finally opening up. Inquiries for coal abroad are improving and, what is most satisfactory, the facilities to carry the coal are now in excess of demands. This means that a great deal of smokeless coal will go to tidewater and less of it will be shipped west. This is strengthening the contract situation, but, of course, has had no influence on the last week's business, because some little coal was up to demurrage and moved at a sacrifice. However, the market has been fairly strong." The price of mine-run smokeless, f. o. b. the mines, is still $1.25.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

The general glutted condition of the market continues. Everything is plentiful, and some new lines have been added. Prices are still rather low. Shipping business is fair.

Rose receipts include some good American Beauties and Richmond. Carnations have been greatly affected by the warm weather and many are soft. The lily supply easily takes care of all present needs. Callas, too, are plentiful. Many fine orchids and excellent valley may be had. Other offerings include iris, peonies, gladioli, snapdragons and parrot tulips.

Various Notes.

C. E. Critchell was the first in the market with new ferns this spring.

The marriage of Frank Kyrk and Miss Edna Ganzmiller will be solemnized June 22.

E. G. Gillett's wire-work department has had all it could do to keep up with the heavy orders for hanging baskets that have been coming in.

L. H. Kyrk has been getting some fine parrot tulips from Geo. Klotter.

B. J. Dudley, of Parkersburg, W. Va., was a recent visitor. C. H. H.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

Business conditions are much the same as last week. There is nothing unusual going on and there has been any quantity of stock, much of it being sold for a song. The first of last week was hot, but the weather has become much cooler and there was frost in the low lands May 1. Vegetation is so far advanced that hard frost would play awful havoc.

The wholesale houses have been having their troubles handling the stock coming in, as much of it was poor. Sweet peas and roses showed the worst effects of the heat. Loads of snapdragon are coming in, with sale for only a small part of it. Beauties also are feeling the effects of the slump. Lilies and callas bring little or nothing. Violets are down and out.

Plantsmen seem to be doing well; in fact, better than usual if they do not want too prompt payment. The landscape people are also well pleased with their business.

Various Notes.

There was a good attendance at the meeting of the club May 4, at the Fort Pitt hotel. The main feature was an illustrated address by Dr. O. E. Jennings, of Carnegie Institute.

The Market.

Several days last week the thermometer registered from 85 to 90 degrees, and this caused vegetation to grow rapidly. Flowers and plants of all kinds that were planted in the open, and had just begun to bud, quickly developed into the full flower. This caused a great rush of outdoor tulips into the market. Pansies for planting outdoors are even more plentiful than last week and are selling at fair prices in large numbers. Rose bushes and shrubs continue to find a ready sale. Cut flowers still sell well, though they are not so active as they have been. Sweet peas continue of good quality and the price keeps up pretty well. As a general rule, however, the prices of cut flowers are a little low at present. Lilacs are beginning to come into the market in large quantities. Iris is beginning to arrive in fair quantities and sells at fairly good prices.

Various Notes.

J. F. McDonough has sold large quantities of plants for the Mount Pleasant cemetery, opposite the store at 376 Belleville avenue.

George Pehek has opened a branch store at 142 Belleville avenue, under the name of the Newark Floral Co.

John Crossley, 37 Belleville avenue, reports an unusually large amount of funeral work during the last three weeks. It has kept him busy early and late nearly every day.

The Essex County Florists' Club will hold its monthly meeting May 13, instead of May 20, as the Shriners are to use Krueger auditorium, where the club meets, on the latter date.

H. C. Strobell & Co. had on display in its window last week pretty silver fern dishes. These were filled with small ferns and ready to place on the tables of purchasers.

J. J. Brummer, of Elizabeth, N. J., has been busy for the last few weeks with funeral work. His transient trade since Easter has been small.

A number of Newark florists have subscribed liberally to the $250,000 fund which is being raised to defray the expenses of the celebration, to be held next year, of the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the founding of Newark. Among the contributors are Fred P. Wolfinger, Henry A. Strobell, August C. Begerow and J. F. McDonough.

Malta, O.—W. C. Scovell reports business this spring better than ever. The season opened up early. The weather has been unusually warm, the temperature last week reaching 94 degrees.

The Market.

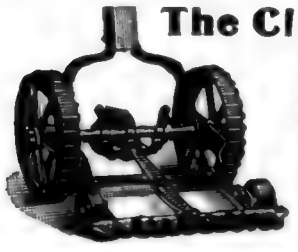
"Quiet" is the best word to express the condition of business and there seems to be little likelihood of much life among the wholesalers until Mothers' day arrives. The growers, however, are busy with the young stock, and as labor is plentiful and the season exceptionally early, work is much farther advanced this year than usual. No immigrants are applying for work this year, probably owing to the fact that labor is scarce over the water, but the general slackness throughout the Dominion has made it easy to secure all the help necessary for the coming season.

Stock is selling at lower prices than for many years and there is a great deal of competition. Beauty roses, cut back in February in anticipation of Mothers' day, have come on rather rapidly, and it is doubtful if there will be nearly enough to supply the demand for that occasion. The same applies to other roses and also to carnations, which are being brought in at the rate of about 23,000 and 20,000 daily.

Various Notes.

E. A. Parsons is now in full charge of the carnation and mum sections at the Dale Estate. C. Hotchkiss and H. Middleton are both away on a trip to England. W. G. P.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y.



The regular monthly meeting of the Oyster Bay Horticultural Society was held on Wednesday evening, April 28, at Fireman's hall, with President Joseph Robinson in the chair. There was a good attendance of members and the exhibition tables were nicely filled, although the weather was rainy and disagreeable.

Russell Ebbits, Frank Devers and Michael Maher were elected associate members and Joseph Stirling, Marino Grella, George Wood and Harry Hutchings were elected active members.

The dates of the 1915 shows were set as follows: Spring show, June 11; dahlia show, October 5 and 6; chrysanthemum show, November 2.

It was decided to have leaflets printed setting forth the best means of destroying tent caterpillars, and to mail the leaflets to all in the vicinity who might be interested. Floyd Blowers spoke on spraying and the members joined freely in the discussion that followed. A. R. Kennedy, Sec'y.

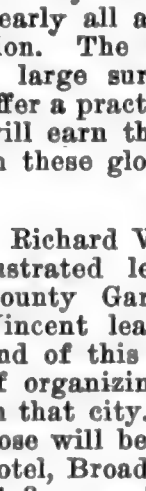
The Market.

The production of flowers has reached a stage where it is impossible to secure buyers for a large proportion of the stock which has flooded the wholesale stores. This week the growers are sending in enormous cuts and the retail business has decreased until little other than funeral work is being done. The street fakers buy a good quantity at their own prices, but even then there is a large surplus. Carnations, roses, lilies and, in fact, everything in season, go to make up the surplus.

There were no special features of the week's business, except the prices, which were so low it would almost take a magnifying glass to find them. A number of those identified with the trade have expressed their opinions as to why the surplus is so large, but nearly all advance a different explanation. The fact remains that there is a large surplus and anyone who can offer a practical solution of the difficulty will earn the gratitude of every florist in these glorious United States.

Various Notes.

Richard Vincent, Jr., delivered an illustrated lecture before the Harford County Garden Club, April 29. Mr. Vincent leaves for New York at the end of this week, to take up the work of organizing a national dahlia society in that city. The meeting for this purpose will be held May 10, at the Grand hotel, Broadway and Thirty-first street, at 2 p. m. This meeting was scheduled for another hostelry, but, owing to its change of ownership, the place of meeting was changed to the Grand.



The funeral of W. W. Burger, whose death was recorded in the obituary column of The Review's last issue, was held at his parents' residence, 2828 St. Paul street, April 30, and was largely attended. The floral tributes received were handsome and unusually numerous, attesting his great popularity. The sympathy of the trade is extended to his family in this, their saddest hour.

Mr. and Mrs. James Glass motored over to Philadelphia last week in their new touring car and were well pleased with the trip.

Mrs. A. E. Eberhart is seriously ill with blood poisoning, at her home on West Baltimore street, and there are grave fears that she may not recover.

The next club meeting will be held at the club rooms, May 10.

Stands at the flower market to be held at Mount Vernon place, May 12, are being rapidly taken up and anyone wishing to occupy a stand would better consult the Women's Civic League as soon as possible. W. F. E.

A Model Vegetable House

WM. ASHE & SONS, of So. Vineland, N. J., three seasons ago concluded there was money to be made from inside farming. They already had some houses made from hot bed sash; but these they found too dark during the winter months to properly mature tomatoes, to get the cream of the top notch prices.

After a lot of thinking, studying and figuring, the decision was to build the best iron frame vegetable house that could be built.

Not a cent to be spent for anything fancy—but not a dollar left unspent that would make it a better growing house or that would make it last longer.

We built the house, 200 feet long by 40 feet wide. It paid so well that we have just received an order for another, 200 feet long by 68 feet wide.

Wouldn't you like to know the facts and figures on one of our houses—little or big?

"We Understand Our Business Thoroughly"

Our thorough knowledge of the finer points in greenhouse construction enables us to save that much on the cost of our output—and we are giving you the benefit of this saving. We have always given 100 cents value for every dollar—sometimes more. As we have never yet had any complaints, we lose nothing by guaranteeing our material against defects.

Willens Personal Service

Every bit of the work is personally directed by one of the Willens'. If we do the erecting, one of the Willens' personally supervises the work. Careful attention is paid to the minutest details, each of which is conducive to longer life and better greenhouse service. If you have never tried us or are dissatisfied in your past dealings with others, begin now to benefit by our service and material. Write us today.

What They Say:

Willens Construction Co.,
Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen: The greenhouses you built for me last summer and with which I am so well pleased, received several severe tests within the last few days. During one cold spell of 30 degrees below, I easily maintained the desired temperature in the greenhouses.

I am well pleased with the material and also your pleasant business methods and am convinced that I have the finest greenhouses in Nebraska.

Yours very truly,
L. Buckendorf,

The Market.

The market has shown a slight improvement over the previous week. Everything in cut flowers was sold out at closing time on Saturday. Stock in general has increased in price. Without doubt, carnations will reach the 5-cent mark for Mothers' day. Beauties are more plentiful and are of fine quality. Bulbous stock was finished up last week. Lilies were scarce at the close of last week, but irises and other outdoor stock are plentiful, helping to fill up the vacancy left by bulbous stock. Cut flowers in general will be a little on the scarce side after Mothers' day.

Various Notes.

R. S. Brown & Son lost about 100 lights of glass in a hail storm last week. This firm reports that bedding stock is going fast. They ship a great deal of stock out of town. They had over half a million young plants at the beginning of the season.

E. A. Humfeld had the decorations for the wedding of Miss Nellie Barber and Mr. Huffey, which was one of the largest affairs of the season. He had to call on several florists for decorating material to help out. Mr. Humfeld has started to plant the beds at Electric park, using over 22,500 large plants. Altogether, he has been exceedingly busy.

A. F. Barbe suffered from the hail storm, losing over 100 lights of glass. He has a fine lot of geraniums, which will be in bloom just at the right time.

W. J. B.

NEWPORT, R. I.

Kempenaar & Christensen, proprietors of the Boulevard Greenhouses, report an exceptionally heavy business in bedding plants in the last week or ten days.

Park Commissioner James McLeish is recovering from the effects of a bad fall.

The committee of the Newport Horticultural Society, consisting of William Mackay, James Robertson and Andrew J. Meikle, which has had charge of the distribution of seeds and bulbs to the school children for their gardens, has completed the work. W. H. M.

This certainly looks more like a glimpse in some park than the entrance to the Saucon Plant of the big Bethlehem Steel Works.

Some Interesting Greenhouse Facts About the Big Bethlehem Steel Plant

This is Mr. Gross himself, the man who inoculated the steel plant officials with the floral beautifying germ. It is one of the most valuable germs known. Without it, life is indeed dull and gray.

JUST now, when this wonderful plant, miles long, is turning out so many mammoth guns for the war, and when its common stock has had its sensation in Wall Street, it gives added interest to the floral expressions that one so unexpectedly finds on their grounds.

At a gritty, smoky steel plant you don't expect to find much sentiment. But it seems that within us all, no matter what our business, there lurks a love for flowers.

For the conversion of the office grounds of this vast concern into spots of beauty John Gross, one of the superintendents, is responsible.

He started with a small lawn at the Saucon office. The other offices followed. Some foliage plants were contributed. Then two or three hundred dollars was raised for flowers by "chipping in." The interest became so keen that a little home-made greenhouse was put up. Soon it was too small. Then came the word for a modern house costing several thousand dollars.

And so it is that strength and fragile beauty are linked. Man demands strength, but he also craves the beautiful.

That big manufacturing plants are recognizing the importance of contributing their part in satisfying this craving by decorating their grounds and encouraging the interest of their men, is not alone sentiment; it is a wonderful economic move, the money value of which the big executives are growing more and more fully to appreciate.

In some future issue we will tell you of other big industries that have their own greenhouse.

This is W. G. Mangan, the gardener, who so successfully grows the thousands of plants now needed to meet the ever-increasing demands of the beautifying germ.

BUTTERFLY LILIES.

HEDYCHIUM, OR BUTTERFLY LILY.
Also known as the Ginger lily, as it is a near relative to the Ginger root of commerce. Grows best on low damp ground; roots and plants much like cannas and should be given similar cultivation, but the leaves are narrower and the flowers are produced from a close head blooming about 4 o'clock P. M. The large pure white flowers look much like butterflies and are as fragrant as jasmines. Recommended for growing in the north in tubs over winter in the house, when they bloom continuously. Every one should try a few plants of this beautiful flower. Price, $2.50 per 100 postpaid.
L. H. Read & Co., Deer Park, Ala.

CARNATION CUTTINGS.

Buy your stock DIRECT from the grower. I GROW my own stock and GUARANTEE IT. If stock is not satisfactory upon delivery it may be returned at once and money refunded. I have never yet had any returned. I have specialized in rooted carnations for years and KNOW HOW. The most profitable commercial varieties are grown, and my stock is clean, strong and vigorous. I have many satisfied customers, who are not afraid to say so, but below is a VERY REMARKABLE testimonial to the general vigor of my stock when the lateness of planting is considered. A customer in Suffern, N. Y., writes in a letter dated Apr. 12, 1915—"I bought nearly 2000 plants from you last fall (shipped Nov. 13) and they have done so well that I would like to give you an order for some now."

In making up your order don't fail to include MATCHLESS. It costs a little more but you will never be sorry. It is conceded to be THE MOST PROFITABLE WHITE to date. It is a great producer of fine flowers that don't burst and is a splendid keeper. Get discount price on a quantity. Also send for photo of Matchless, growing in the field.

PANSIES.

TOOLE'S PREMIUM AMERICAN PANSY PLANTS are grown from our own superior strain of seed that has just the right proportion of each color to suit your retail trade. They are greenhouse started in January and are twice transplanted and hardened in cold frames. This treatment gives a sturdy plant with a mass of fine roots that have never been checked in growth. The leaves are bright, the flowers fresh and large and will blossom for your customers late into the hot weather. Strong plants in bud or bloom, carefully packed in light wooden boxes, $1.40 per 100; $12.50 per 1000. Telegraph orders filled promptly. Cash or references from unknown parties. Pansy Guide and wholesale list free on request.
WM. TOOLE & SON,
PANSY HEIGHTS, BARABOO, WIS.

PANSY PARK PERFECTION is the most thoroughbred strain of giant show and fancy pansies. It contains every variety introduced to date, the reds, bronzes and best fancy sorts in large proportion. Growing pansy seeds and plants a specialty over 40 years. One of many testimonials: "I enclose $10.00 for pansy plants. This is the 6th year I have used your plants and each year have found them satisfactory in size of flowers, colors and other respects."—M. J. McCabe, Washington, D. C. Stocky field-grown plants from seed sown in August, thinly, broadcast, in sandy soil, and they have extra fine roots; over 75 varieties mixed, mostly in bloom or bud, 1000, $4.00; 500, $2.25. PELARGONIUMS.

PELARGONIUMS.
THE WONDERFUL "EASTER GREETING."
There are many nice things being said about "Easter Greeting" these days, just what we have been telling you these many moons. It has made good and WE KNEW IT WOULD. It will for you. Our stock is yet complete in all sizes. The 4-in. at 18c per are fine; the 5-in. at 30c are elegant; the 3-in. at 12c will make fine Memorial day plants; the 2¼-in. at 10c are vigorous, fat and hungry, and if any be left over at Memorial day, which is doubtful, they will be fine for stock. It is well to look out for 1916. Better buy some now, especially for stock. It's the best selling plant in existence. Our guarantee is ironclad. No risk to you. Cultural directions with each order. S. C. Templin, "E. G." Specialist, Garrettsville, O.

SALVIAS.

SALVIA BONFIRE.
10,000 Salvia Bonfire from selected seed. We grow all our salvias from seed, not cuttings, thereby avoiding a hard, woody plant that blooms early but stands still balance of season. These salvias were all shifted from 2-in. to 3-in. last week of April, are now making a nice growth and, while they will not bloom as quickly as plants from cuttings, when they do come you have something that satisfies your customers, and that is what you want. Price, $3.00 per 100 whether you take 100 or 1000. Cash with order.

Silver-pink, 2¼-in.	3.00	25.00
Silver-pink, R. C.	2.00	15.00

Again we urge those who intend growing snapdragons to plant stock produced from cuttings and not from seed. A CUTTING WILL PRODUCE ITS KIND, A SEEDLING WILL NOT. Some few will look like their parents, but their sisters and brothers will more likely resemble ancestors long since discarded. We have for several years aimed to work up a stock pure in color and free from lateral growths. It now almost satisfies us. If you want some of this stock, send your order for present or later delivery. David J. Scott, Corfu, N. Y.

"AND DEPONENT SAITH FURTHER, AS FOLLOWS:"

Out of a great mass of testimonials in support of the excellent character of Cypress for greenhouse construction, we have singled these few for your consideration:

Arthur Cowee, Gladiolus Specialist, proprietor of "Meadowvale Farm," Berlin, N. Y., writes: "My houses are now ten years old and I have not yet been obliged to spend one dollar in repairing any woodwork, with the exception of some of the posts. My only regret has been that I have not used CYPRESS for the benches, which I think would have been cheaper for me in the end than using hemlock, which, of course, with us is very much cheaper per thousand."

That's the point, CYPRESS literally CHEAPER in the end. Mr. Cowee names the proper system.—FIGURE THE COST BY THE YEAR.

John C. Moninger Co., Greenhouse Builders, Chicago, say: "We first began using CYPRESS exclusively for greenhouse construction in 1885, using it previous to that time in conjunction with pine. The greenhouses built with clear CYPRESS, free of sap, 21 YEARS AGO, are being used today by their owners and the wood is found perfectly preserved and free of any decay or rot." Ask this prominent concern about the "cheaper" substitutes, and why they won't use them nor attempt to dump inferior values onto their customers.

The Dingee & Conard Co., Rose Growers, West Grove, Pa., say: "We have used CYPRESS lumber for greenhouse building for many years, and we find that there is no lumber we can secure so satisfactory for that purpose." Nothing in that about a "cheaper substitute," is there?

Bobbink & Atkins, Importers, Nurserymen and Florists, Rutherford, N. J., are not backward in coming forward: "We would say that CYPRESS lasts with us from two to three years longer than any other wood for table purposes, and ITS LIFE SEEMS TO BE ENDLESS WHEN USED IN ORDINARY GREENHOUSE CONSTRUCTION. We use CYPRESS solely in our plant tub department."

Wagner Park Conservatories, Sidney, Ohio, rise to remark: "We use NOTHING BUT CYPRESS in the construction of our greenhouses, as we find it the most economical, on account of it outlasting other kinds of wood." No comfort there for the "substitute" lumbers.

Bassett & Washburn, Growers and Wholesale Dealers in Cut Flowers, Chicago, testify:

"We formerly used hemlock and pine, but found that 2-inch stock lasted only about four years, while so far, we have had no 'Pecky' CYPRESS rot out in 10 or 12 years. We use clear CYPRESS for all our roof work, ventilators, etc., and it is very satisfactory. We think it is the only kind of lumber for the purpose." Not bad, is it?

"'PECKY' CYPRESS FOR THE BENCHES—NOTHING BUT!"

Draw freely on our Cypress Pocket Library—they are free. Vol. 3, "The Only Greenhouse Wood;" Vol. 22, "Cypress for Silos and Tanks," and Vol. 28, "Cypress for All Trellises and Arbors." Write for what you need, or hope to need, or ought to need.

We Erected the Greenhouses in Prospect Park (Brooklyn, N. Y.) At Top-Notch Speed

This illustration shows the second step in constructing the new greenhouses in Prospect Park. Erecting the superstructure and iron work took us two weeks.

A sufficient number of men were put on the job to bring the work to an early completion. All were working in gangs—the masons, iron workers and carpenters. Laying the foundation, erecting the walls and putting up the superstructure and iron work took four weeks. That's speed. The life of a Metropolitan greenhouse is longer than that of any other make. If you contemplate building one, allow us to submit plans and prices. We can show you better results, and what's more, we can save money for you.

Plans and prices submitted without obligation. We go anywhere in the U. S. A.

"AND DEPONENT SAITH FURTHER, AS FOLLOWS:"

Out of a great mass of testimonials in support of the excellent character of Cypress for greenhouse construction, we have singled these few for your consideration:

Arthur Cowee, Gladiolus Specialist, proprietor of "Meadowvale Farm," Berlin, N. Y., writes: "My houses are now ten years old and I have not yet been obliged to spend one dollar in repairing any woodwork, with the exception of some of the posts. My only regret has been that I have not used CYPRESS for the benches, which I think would have been cheaper for me in the end than using hemlock, which, of course, with us is very much cheaper per thousand."

That's the point, CYPRESS literally CHEAPER in the end. Mr. Cowee names the proper system.—FIGURE THE COST BY THE YEAR.

John C. Moninger Co., Greenhouse Builders, Chicago, say: "We first began using CYPRESS exclusively for greenhouse construction in 1885, using it previous to that time in conjunction with pine. The greenhouses built with clear CYPRESS, free of sap, 21 YEARS AGO, are being used today by their owners and the wood is found perfectly preserved and free of any decay or rot." Ask this prominent concern about the "cheaper" substitutes, and why they won't use them nor attempt to dump inferior values onto their customers.

The Dingee & Conard Co., Rose Growers, West Grove, Pa., say: "We have used CYPRESS lumber for greenhouse building for many years, and we find that there is no lumber we can secure so satisfactory for that purpose." Nothing in that about a "cheaper substitute," is there?

Bobbink & Atkins, Importers, Nurserymen and Florists, Rutherford, N. J., are not backward in coming forward: "We would say that CYPRESS lasts with us from two to three years longer than any other wood for table purposes, and ITS LIFE SEEMS TO BE ENDLESS WHEN USED IN ORDINARY GREENHOUSE CONSTRUCTION. We use CYPRESS solely in our plant tub department."

Wagner Park Conservatories, Sidney, Ohio, rise to remark: "We use NOTHING BUT CYPRESS in the construction of our greenhouses, as we find it the most economical, on account of it outlasting other kinds of wood." No comfort there for the "substitute" lumbers.

Bassett & Washburn, Growers and Wholesale Dealers in Cut Flowers, Chicago, testify:

"We formerly used hemlock and pine, but found that 2-inch stock lasted only about four years, while so far, we have had no 'Pecky' CYPRESS rot out in 10 or 12 years. We use clear CYPRESS for all our roof work, ventilators, etc., and it is very satisfactory. We think it is the only kind of lumber for the purpose." Not bad, is it?

"'PECKY' CYPRESS FOR THE BENCHES—NOTHING BUT!"

This illustration shows the second step in constructing the new greenhouses in Prospect Park. Erecting the superstructure and iron work took us two weeks.

A sufficient number of men were put on the job to bring the work to an early completion. All were working in gangs—the masons, iron workers and carpenters. Laying the foundation, erecting the walls and putting up the superstructure and iron work took four weeks. That's speed. The life of a Metropolitan greenhouse is onger than that of any other make. If you contemplate building one, allow us to submit plans and prices. We can show you better results, and what's more, we can save money for you.

Plans and prices submitted without obligation. We go anywhere in the U. S. A.

ALL STEEL
SAFE AND SURE

You would not build a bridge that would collapse

if you drove a reasonably heavy load over it. You would take great care that the strength and design were correct before you built it.

Be just as cautious in building your greenhouse. You probably do not know, but it is a fact that most of the greenhouses built by other manufacturers are structurally far too weak to withstand the stresses and strains put on them.

Our plans and designs will be O. K.'d by any reputable civil engineer. Try this with the designs of other manufacturers.

One of the big surprises of our new design steel frame house is that it actually costs less than the old type.
